I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ills of our sex, I bought a bottle and began using it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and took three more and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a fine tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and am pleased to endorse it.

West Chilton.

As the election is near by I wish to tell the voters of Chilton county something about Republicanism from 1865 to 1875. We were under the black Republican government in Alabama. I lived during that time in Dallas county, and the county was full of scallawags, carpetbaggers, dead beats and dead heads, all office seekers like some men are to-day. We had during that time a black negro, I. B. Thomas, as probate judge, a black negro sheriff and a negro deputy, negro police and negro juries—12 white men and 12 black negroes. We had to sit on the jury with the black canebrake negro and smell his stink and drink out of the same dipper with him or do without water.

This was the way things were when the Republicans were in power in this State, and when you met a negro in the road you had to give him all the road or have a fuss. All this was negro rule. You had to give a negro the sidewalk or he would shove you off. All summons were served by a negro deputy, and arrests were made by a black negro. All this I witnessed when Dallas county was under negro government, as I lived there in those days.

And now, in the name of God, how can any white man have the face to vote the Republican ticket? Can it be possible that some white men in Chilton county have no love, no regard nor respect for their wives and daughters? Oh, where are we drifting to. Wake up, men, and vote the Democratic ticket and help keep the negro out of office and out of power. Every white man who votes the Republican ticket is helping and aging on the negro. There will be a race war soon enough anyhow without letting them get in power again. Now, men, make up your minds and vote the Democratic ticket.

FAT OLD MIKE.

Oakywoods, Oct. 10

Editor Banner—Your correspondent was around over a portion of the county within the last few days and spent nearly all one day among the good people of Thorsby. Naturally I enquired about the political status of that progressive people when I was assured Judge Deason would get every vote there except possibly two, which would of course go for Reynolds, and as to our friend Bice they said publicly and with emphasis, that if they voted for him at Thorsby at all, it would be purely for the purpose of getting rid of him, and not because they preferred him.

It is strange how some men and things do change. I, in my mind, can see Jonathan Bice perched upon the judge's stand in the court house in 1894 wielding the gavel over the Democratic convention of Chilton county. I can hear him as it were giving vent to his arbitrary impulses; that heir of pomp, as he declared in favor of the Johnston wing and against Oates and his following. I can see old Uncle Bill Mills, K. Wells and Peg Leg Gulledge as they struggled and plead for justice, and yet with an iron hand Jonathan said "nit."

Now see how he has flopped. Don't know where to get nor what to do to be saved as it were. He will be preaching next i.e., if he fails to be elected. Thorsby people say also that they don't need Mr Edler as a resident any more.

Falakto.

I have seen nothing in the Banner from here recently, people are so busy gathering their crops they probably won't take time or have nothing of interest to write. If the weather continues good the cotton picking boom will soon be over. Our Brother—Card of Thanks.

"My feet are wearied and my hands are tired,
My soul oppressed,
And I desire what I long have desired,
Restfully rest."

Our brother, Ellie J. Milling, passed into eternity Sept. 29, death resulting from an operation performed at Copeland hospital. He had been a resident of West End Birmingham a number of years and gathered around him a number of ardent friends who mourn his demise. Our brother was in his forty fourth year, a faithful member of the Baptist church twenty five years; married twenty years and leaves a widow and five children. Funeral services held at undertaking establishment of Lige & Hoyt, Thursday afternoon, Sept. 30, remains carried to Riderville, where interment took place Friday afternoon in the presence of a host of old friends, neighbors and sorrowing relatives; services conducted by Rev. Robert Jones, of Stanton, Ala.

In behalf of his widow and five children, our sister, Mrs. Carroll, and brother, Robert M. Milling, I desire to tender thanks to the good people of West End Birmingham, who were so unstinted in their kindly administrations to our suffering brother. Especially do we thank his pastor, Rev. J. O. Colley, and his fellow workers at the L & N. Shops for their kindness and tender sympathy in this dark hour.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALA.

An Ohio farmer has been operated on for appendicitis. This will never do, remarks the Birmingham Age-Herald. It is bringing an aristocratic complaint down to the common level.

An Illinois girl who desires to become a great pianist has taken an instrument into the woods and will do her practicing there. Isn't she entitled to a Carnegie medal? asks the Chicago Record-Herald.

Twenty sticks of dynamite were stolen by a tramp from a stone quarry near Wheeling, W. Va. Up to this time the police have been unable to locate the thief or any part of him, states the Newport News Press.

The higher education is all right, of course, but it surely is true that a lot of time and money is lost trying to make lawyers and doctors out of material nature intended for shoemakers and carpenters, the Opelika (Ala.) News comments.

The Atlantic City (N. J.) lovers who are forbidden to spoon on the beach should have sand enough to stand up for their natural rights, comments the Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

This is from the jealous-minded Atlanta Constitution: "Up in Ohio the farmers are so prosperous that they are being operated on for appendicitis," says the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune.

The University of Chicago has added 1700 volumes of books on marriage and divorce to its library. People will still continue to get their information on these subjects from the school of experience.

It will be one of the greatest tributes to democracy that the age has afforded if little Japan, with her thoroughly democratic system of military organization, should triumph over Russia with her autocratic and aristocratic methods, says the Boston Globe.

The fable of the hare and the tortoise received a modern illustration in the experience of an automobile party that started from Becket, Mass., for Boston, says the Boston Transcript. After going four miles the machine broke down and was hauled back by a yoke of oxen.

The celebration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the founding of Kings College, now Columbia University, will take in only members of the family, but, as there are now about 14,000 of the alumni, it may be quite a tea party, after all, says the Boston Transcript.

Ask any of those who promote men in their employment what happens—especially when they give a man authority over others and make a petty boss of him. There is not one man in five that can stand the exercise of authority without being made conceited and more or less useless.

Short fiction writers seem to be turning toward business for inspiration, the New York Evening Post states. May we not hope that in this field, at last, something stimulating will be found against which the intellectual tooth may be set with confidence that there is wherewithal to gnaw.

It has been suggested that, as there is no established abbreviation for Alaska, Aaa., would make a convenient and distinctive abbreviation. This form would not be confounded with the abbreviation for Alabama. The suggestion is made by William A. Kelly, superintendent of the Industrial Training School, Sitka, Alaska.

The United States shipped to Europe the last year apples to the value of $8,750,000, Great Britain being the chief consumer. American apples of the best varieties are becoming more popular in Europe every year, the New York Tribune declares, a fact which may give owners of New England farms, unprofitable at present, a valuable hint.

Several of the idle American war correspondents in Tokio are learning Japanese. Opinion is divided as to why they are doing so, remarks the New York Evening Sun. Some say it may be because they hope to make their way to the front disguised as Japs, and others think it may be that they wish to thank the military censor in his own language for his many attentions to them, their own language not being expressive enough.

SIX MEN SUFFOCATED

In the Grand Trunk Railway Tunnel Under the St. Clair River.

RESCUERS SUCCUMB TO GASES.

Coal Train Broke in Passing Through. Heroic Efforts at Rescue Were Made.

Six employes of the Grand Trunk railroad were suffocated to death by coal gas in the St. Clair tunnel, which runs under the St. Clair river from Port Huron, Mich., to Sarnia, Ont. A coal train broke in two while passing through the tunnel, and three of the train crew were suffocated, while part of the train lay stalled in the tunnel. The engineer lost his life when he returned and endeavored to push the stalled cars back to safety, and two other rescuers perished in attempts to penetrate the atmosphere of the great tube.

The train, which entered from the American side of the tunnel, was made up of seventeen coal cars. When it broke, Engineer Coleman realized that the accident had happened, and with the three cars that were still attached to the engine, steamed out of the tunnel into the Sarnia yards. He hastily detached his engine and went back into the tube for the stalled cars.

When his engine reached them he attempted to push them back through the tunnel, and out on the American side. The grade proved too steep, however, and the attempt was a failure. The engine and cars rolled back into the gas-laden tunnel, and Engineer Coleman was suffocated at his post in the engine cab. His fireman, Fred Forester, jumped into the partly filled water tank of the engine, where there was enough air to preserve his life, although he is in a serious condition.

When news of the broken train reached the American side of the tunnel Superintendent Begg, accompanied by two employes, started on foot, hoping that the train was near enough to the entrance so that they might rescue and carry out some of the crew. They had gone but a short distance when the coal gas became stifling and Begg succumbed. The other rescuers succeeded in crawling to the portal of the tunnel on their hands and knees.

Meanwhile preparations were being made at the Sarnia end of the tunnel to rescue the imprisoned train crew. An engine with a party of rescuers entered the tube and had proceeded but a short distance when they found John Haley, a track walker, lying unconscious. He was taken out and again the engine plunged into the gaseous atmosphere. The rescuers were overcome, however, by the gas before the train was reached.

Switchman Blake, who was a member of the party, after a time made another attempt to penetrate the gas and this time succeeded in reaching the stalled engine, coupled it to the cars and ran the train into the daylight. Simpson, Tinsley and Gillis were found dead in the caboose. Fireman Forester was found in the water tank of the engine nearly two hours after being rescued, and his escape is regarded as almost miraculous.

Yale Enrollment.

In commenting on the decrease in the number of freshmen this year, the Yale News says that the rigidness in the examinations in ancient and modern languages and bad business conditions in the west were two potent causes. The net decrease in entrance is thirty-nine in the university.

Powder Explosion.

A special from Medina, Tenn., says by the premature explosion of gunpowder at that place, Herman Walker, the 11-year-old son of the Rev. E. T. Walker, had one side of his face torn off and received other injuries which will result fatally. Jerry Zwell had his leg broken and may die.

Pension Report.

The annual report of Pension Commissioner Ware, covering the fiscal year ended June 30, 1904, shows that during the year the cost of maintaining the pension system of the government has been $144,712,787. The appropriation for this purpose was $146,419,296, leaving an unexpended balance of $1,706,508.

During the year 47,374 persons were added to the pension rolls—329 by special act of congress and the balance by the pension bureau. During the same period 49,157 pensioners were dropped from the rolls.

Hat Saved Him.

Carl Hayes, the 7-year-old son of Ed Hayes, of Alabama City, came very near losing his life.

He and several other boys were playing in a sand bed and had dug a tunnel several feet long and deep under the sand, and were playing there when the bank caved in. His hat fell over his face and this probably saved his life, as he was nearly dead when rescued.

JAPANESE FIRE

Damages Russian Shipping at Port Arthur.

It is reported that the fire of the Japanese land batteries severely damaged four Russian warships in the harbor of Port Arthur. It is stated that one of the vessels was completely wrecked. The name of none of the ships was given.

Lieutenant General Hasegawa, late commander-in-chief of the Imperial guards division, has left for Korea to assume command of the Japanese forces there. It is probable the Korean army was dispossessed or brought under Japanese command. It is probable that this Japanese move is made in order to expel the bands of Cossacks now operating in western and northwestern Korea.

Vladivostok is being heavily fortified, the harbor is being mined and repairing of the damaged ships is going on. It is believed that it will be impossible to put the armored cruiser Rossia in a seaworthy condition.

It is stated in Vladivostok that General Kuropatkin has been very ill and unable to personally command his army since the battle of Liao Yang. Russian officers at Tsintau are responsible for the statement that ammunition and guns for the protected cruiser Diana have reached Port Arthur from Chefoo. The Germans do not believe the story. The Russians are in constant communication with Port Arthur, it is believed, by wireless messages sent to Che Foo, though it is claimed that the expected dash of the Port Arthur fleet has been frustrated by the terrific storms which have prevailed.

TWO MORE STACKS

Will be Ready for the Torch About November 1st.

The work of repairing one of the Birmingham furnaces of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company and the Vanderbilt furnace of the Tutweiler Coal, Iron and Railroad company is being pushed and both companies expect to be able to resume operations at their respective plants by the first of November, or shortly thereafter. Both of these plants are being relined and otherwise improved and their production capacities are being increased. The Vanderbilt plant will receive more blowing power, a large engine being installed there, while the size of the furnace is being increased. Considerable work is being done about the Sloss-Sheffield company furnace.

Receivers Appointed.

At Montgomery William C. Levering and W. E. Hocker were appointed receivers of the Alabama Cotton Produce company by Judge Sayre. The bond of each of the receivers was fixed at $10,000. The large concern just recently established headquarters here where they removed from Atlanta.

The receivers were appointed on the prayer set out in a bill of complaint in the equity court in the form of Charles E. Kimball et al. vs. Allen Fleming.

The liabilities of the concern are put at $323,757.82. The company handled the roundlap bale entirely.

Diver Injured.

At Waco, Tex., Chester Perry, known to the profession as Starlow, a professional diver, is seriously if not fatally injured as the result of a high dive from the new iron bridge across the Brazos river.

He fell from the floor of the bridge to the water, turning a somersault as he made the descent. He broke his collar bone and sustained internal injuries. There is not much hope for his recovery.

The Dog Eaters.

It is stated that the now famous Igorrote village at the world's fair in St. Louis will be taken to Jackson, Miss., for the cotton and corn carnival to be held in December.

Negro Bank.

The American Trust and Savings bank is the name of a new financial concern that threw open its doors to the public in Jackson, Miss., Friday. The stockholders are all colored business men of the town. The capital stock is $25,000.

SHOT HIS SON-IN-LAW.

Claimed Self-Defense, but the Jury Thought Otherwise.

At Dawson, Ga., Jesse Wall shot and killed Hill Oxford, his son-in-law. The coroner's jury decided the killing was unjustifiable. Wall's statement at the inquest was to the effect that he was reprimanding Oxford for neglecting his wife, when Oxford cursed him and advanced with an open knife, and that he fired to save his own life.

A knife was found by Oxford's side unopened, and this with the fact that he was shot in the back, and testimony of eye-witnesses, led to the verdict rendered.

Auto Duty.

Automobiles to the number of 427 were brought to America through the port of New York during the nine months ending October 1st. This is almost double the number imported during the same period last year.

The total value of the 427 machines was $1,600,000, giving an average of about $3,750 for each machine. The duty paid on the machines at 45 per cent amounted to $720,000.

PAYNE'S FUNERAL.

Interment Will be in Milwaukee, His Home.

Although an official funeral, the service in St. John's church over the body of the late Henry C. Payne, postmaster general, were marked by impressive simplicity. Official Washington filled the church and brilliant as were the uniforms of the large representation from the army, navy and marine corps, the solemnity of the scene was only enhanced by the sharp contrast of color with the deep mourning of the family and personal friends of the dead cabinet officer.

Side by side with Mrs. Payne sat the president and Mrs. Roosevelt, both in deep mourning.

The procession was escorted by the postal carriers of the city of Washington in uniform to the Pennsylvania station, whence the body will be taken on a special train to Milwaukee. The interment will be in that city, the home of Mr. Payne.

FIVE SUBMARINES

Shipped Across the Continent. Value, $4,000,000.

Five sub-marine torpedo boats, built in Massachusetts, have been shipped by rail from Jersey City. "West of Chicago" is the destination expressed upon the way bill which accompanied one of the first vessel shipments which has ever crossed the American continent.

Valued at nearly $4,000,000, the torpedo boats occupied seventeen new steel flat cars and six box cars. The boats were shipped in sections and each car was covered with canvas which concealed the contents.

There was not the slightest mark on any car to indicate the contents or the destination or to the railroad employes who inquired, the stereotyped answer given was that the covered masses was a part of a large shipment of machinery destined for the west.

NO EXTRA SESSION.

Governor Cunningham Declines to Call One.

There will be no extra session of the legislature of Alabama. Announcement to this effect was made by Acting Governor Cunningham.

A statement is now being prepared by the governor in which he will give his reasons for declining to call the legislature together.

There has been great pressure brought to bear upon the governor to issue a call for an extra session, owing to the numerous complications which have arisen by reason of the Lusk bill having been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court of Alabama. The governor invited suggestions from all sections of the state, and his decision is taken after consideration of all of these.

Sash and Door Men to Meet.

At a meeting of representatives of yellow pine, sash, door and blind interests of the southern states, held in Macon, Ga., an organization was perfected to be known as the Yellow Pine Sash, Door and Manufacturing association. Over twenty firms were represented, and the states of South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Florida, Mississippi and Arkansas furnished the majority of the members. David Woodward, of Atlanta, is president.

The object of this organization is to secure uniformity in grades of goods, to secure uniformity in railroad rates and to reform and correct abuses of the trade. The next meeting will be November 16th in Birmingham.

Bit Her Tongue.

Little Pearl Evans, the 2-year-old daughter of Fred Evans, while playing on the porch of the family residence, fell to the ground, striking her chin in such a manner that she almost bit her tongue in two.

Mustered Out.

Adjutant General W. W. Brandon, of the Alabama national guard, mustered company F, third regiment, Huntsville, out of the service of the state in accordance with the recommendation of the military court of inquiry and the order of the governor.

Veterans' Reunion.

The reunion of Perry county, Mississippi, confederate veterans took place in Hattiesburg and proved a great success. About two thousand visitors from all parts of the state and many from outside the state attended the event.

Fell from Train.

Henry Couch, a soldier, fell out of the coach window near Blount Springs. He was in sleeping attire. Fortunately he was not injured. He walked into Blount Springs in his night clothing. His uniform was sent back to him and he continued his journey.

Senator Ransom Dead.

Matthew W. Ransom, United States senator from North Carolina for 22 years, and minister to Mexico for two years, died suddenly of heart failure at his country home near Garyaburg. He was seventy-eight years old, his death occurring on the date of his birth.

General Ransom was one of the most popular men in public life in the state. He leaves an estate estimated at $1,000,000.

A DESPERATE MAN.

Frank Duncan Threatens Alabama Officers With Bottle of Nitro-Glycerin.

SMUGGLED TO HIM BY HIS WIFE

Stafford's Nerve Failed Him—Duncan Expected in Birmingham at Early Date.

Frank Duncan and his partner, Kid Stafford, were arraigned in Florida on the charge of blowing a safe at Leesburg, April 14th. They were found guilty of the charge and given the full limit of the law fifteen years in the Florida penitentiary.

The judge suspended the sentence of Duncan and he was turned over to the Alabama authorities.

The prisoners were escorted back to the jail. As the men were standing in a corridor with the prisoners Duncan pulled a bottle of nitro-glycerin from his pocket, and raising it aloft, exclaimed in a most dramatic way:

"Turn us both loose or we all go to hell together."

The sheriff ordered him shot, but Detective Ahn leveled his pistol at Stafford, who begged him not to shoot and sank to his knees. This took Duncan by surprise, who told the officers if they would not shoot his partner he would not throw the stuff, and the officers by threats to shoot made him place it gently on the floor.

After Duncan had been foiled in his attempt he begged the officers to shoot him, saying that he was ready to go.

Duncan's wife came from Tampa and advised her husband to never hang, but kill himself. It is thought she slipped him the bottle of nitro-glycerin. She left and did not hear the trial. It is thought that she went to Birmingham.

A little apprehension is expressed for the Alabama officers, as it is feared their confederates will wreck the train. The prisoners have been well guarded for three weeks past. Two consecutive nights last week the jail was rocked and the guards expected to be attacked any time.

DEAD ON A BOX CAR.

Tuscumbian Found Murdered in Mobile Freight Yard.

Hal Goodloe, aged about 25, a pharmacist of Tuscumbia, Ala., was found murdered on top of a freight car in the Louisville and Nashville railroad in Mobile. When discovered, the man had apparently been dead for several hours. Railroad people say the car upon which the body was found came to the city from the north. The pockets of the man were turned, showing the murder to have been committed for robbery. There is no clue.

There were letters by which he was identified recommending him from doctors and druggists of Tuscumbia, and in the lot was a ten-page letter from a young lady of Epps, Ala., sweetheart of the dead man.

ALABAMA GREAT SOUTHERN

Stockholders Held Annual Meeting Wednesday.

The stockholders of the Alabama Great Southern railroad held their annual meeting Wednesday and re-elected the old board of directors of the railroad. The meeting was purely a formal one.

The report of President Samuel Spencer for the year ending June 30, 1904, was presented. It showed the affairs of the railroad in good condition and the prospects bright.

Met Head-On.

A head-end collision occurred on the Southern railway at the switch at Ashby. Both engines were badly damaged, several cars demolished and the track torn up for some little distance. Engineer Frank Ensley jumped from his locomotive and sustained a fractured leg as well as other bruises.

New Reservation.

At the request of Secretary Hitchcock, President Roosevelt has signed an order setting aside three islands near the mouth of the Mississippi rivas a government reservation. The order was made to curtail the wholesale killing of ducks and other wild fowl by pot hunters. The reservation which is to be known as the Breton reservation will be turned over to the agricultural department as a breeding ground for native wild fowl, to which the islands are admirably adapted.

The islands, Breton, Old Harbor and a third nearby, are located just north of the mouth of the Mississippi off the Louisiana coast.

Truck Growers.

Formal call has been issued for the annual convention of the Southern Truck Growers' Association which will be held at Newton, Miss., on the 25th and 26th of November. It is expected that delegates from every local association in Mississippi and many from adjoining states will be present. The association was organized several months ago, and this is the first formal convention.

NO CHANGES

Made by Louisville and Nashville Stockholders.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company was held Wednesday. The annual report of President Smith showed the Louisville and Nashville operated during the year [illegible] closed 4,226 miles of road. The gross earnings of the system were $[illegible],792; operating expenses, $[illegible]; net earnings, $11,902,241.

The report notes the acquirement of the entire capital stock of the Newport and Cincinnati Bridge company and states that $7,202,811 had been expended in the purchase of the Knoxville, Lafollette and Jellico railroad and equipment and that this road, which is used as a connecting link between the southern end of the Louisville and Nashville and Atlanta, Louisville and Northern will give the road a direct route between Cincinnati and Atlanta. The line will probably be opened about January 1.

The stockholders elected the old board of directors.

Huntsville Prisoners Decided to be Legally Held.

James H. Mitchell and James [illegible] strong charged with murder, and son in the lynching of Horace [illegible] were released from jail by Judge M. Stewart, of the probate court, habeas corpus proceedings. The court held that the men were illegally held having been indicted by a grand jury in the circuit court of the [illegible] circuit, which had no legal existence. Mitchell was in jail because his bail had failed to agree and the trial of Armstrong had been continued to the November term. Judge Stewart, the county court, has continued cases on his docket of defendants who had been indicted by the two grand juries. Motions had been made in a majority of the cases to quash the indictments.

FATAL ERROR.

Mobile Man Mistakes His Wife for Burglar.

Benjamin Baron, formerly of New York city, now residing in Gaines suburb of Mobile, mistook his wife for a burglar and shot her through the left lung.

The couple were asleep when they were aroused by a noise. Baron told his wife to get a match in the sitting room, but instead she went into the parlor adjoining for the match. In the darkness Baron could not see that she had gone in that direction, and hearing a noise, fired with the result.

Baron is head clerk in a wholesale goods house and the family is prominent. The woman is not dead and slight hopes are entertained of her recovery.

PHYSICAL EXHAUSTION

Held by the Court to be a Defense from Responsibility.

Judge Swartz, in court at Pittstown, Pa., refused to affirm a point of law submitted by an attorney that when a railroad employe fails from physical weakness, from old age or from weariness from long hours or steady employment, and an accident occurs, the employe should be acquitted.

The case was that of John [illegible] chult, of Pittsville, Pa., an engineer on a Pennsylvania railroad freight train. The freight train and a passenger train collided near Pittsville in April, and two persons were killed and a dozen injured. The crew of the freight train were held by the coroner's jury for criminal negligence.

COURTMARTIALS.

Increased Over One Thousand Last Year.

The annual report of General Geo. B. Davis, judge advocate general to the secretary of war, shows the total number of trials by general court-martial during the year to have been 4,249, being 1,026 less than in the preceding year. "The marked diminution in the number of trials by general court-martial, which amounts to nearly 20 per cent of the number of cases tried in the year ending June 30, 1903," says the judge advocate general, "is very gratifying as indicating that the conditions of the military service are now such as to require less frequent resort to court-martial procedure in order to maintain discipline in the military establishment." It is also noted two persons were tried by military commision, seventy less than in the preceding year. Commenting on this, the general says: "The large decrease in trials by military commission was due to the fact that peace existed during the year in the Philippine islands, except in certain portions inhabited by the Moro tribes."

Thirty commissioned officers were convicted by general court-martial, the sentence being disapproved in two cases, and four were acquited. Of the 3,897 men convicted, sentences were disapproved in 46 cases.

DISGRACED.

New York Club Man Shoots Himself. Had Filed Suits.

Frank DePeyster Hall, a member of several prominent clubs, shot and killed himself. A suit brought by him against two other club men alleging slander and demanding $100,000 damages, was to have come up in court that day.

The fact of the institution of the slander suits only became public during the past week, although the first suits were begun last March. These were against Alfred H. Bond, president of the Calumet Club, and George A. Cormack, secretary of the New York Yacht Club. Hall alleged that both men in conversation with others had accused him of disgraceful practices while he was a member of the Calumet Club. The answer filed was to the effect that the statements were true and the conversation privileged.

New Water Works.

Civil engineers and contractors are finding an abundance of work in Mississippi just now on account of the activity of the municipalities in establishing waterworks systems. A Jackson firm within the past week has arranged for the construction of waterworks systems at Tupelo and Newton which will cost in the aggregate about $40,000. On the second day of November the town of Aberdeen will place on the market a $70,000 issue of bonds to be used in building a waterworks plant and sewerage system. Lumberton has just sold to a Chicago syndicate a $20,000 issue of bonds to be used in establishing a waterworks plant. At a special election held in the town of Collins a few days since the citizens voted by an overwhelming majority to float a $14,000 bond issue for waterworks purposes.

Angell Minus Wings.

Mrs. John Angell, who created a sensation a few years ago by bringing suit against the heirs of Jay Gould, saying she was the widow of the multi-millionaire, and demanding a share of his property, is dead at Rouse's Point, N. Y. She was about 70 years old and had lived at Rouse's Point all her life. The suit was discontinued in 1897 and one woman who had participated in promoting the case was found guilty of attempted blackmail. Mrs. Angell admitted she had never seen Jay Gould.

Seven acres of ground have been set apart for the government on the island in Giuld's lake at the Lewis and Clarke centennial exposition grounds for four Filipino villages which will be peopled by 300 natives brought direct from the distant province.

Worlds Fair Awards.

Information from St. Louis is to the effect that Mississippi has been awarded the grand prize on her forestry exhibit, which means that this commonwealth stands first among the states of the union in her display of lumber and timber at the worlds' fair, as only one grand prize is awarded in one class.

This is the second grand prize Mississippi has taken at the fair, the first being for the largest, finest and best collection of cotton.

Mississippi also takes the bronze medal on its fish and game exhibit.

Child Better—Father Dead.

W. V. Forrest died in the telegraph office at Hodges, Tenn., the scene of the recent big wreck on the Southern railway, while awaiting response to a message sent asking the condition of his little and dying child.

The reply would have been good news to the anxious father, but when the operator called to him that his child was better, death had claimed him.

MISSISSIPPI RAILROADS.

Surveying and Construction Work in Various Localities.

Railroad promoters in Mississippi are trying to figure out the meaning of the movement of the Mobile and Ohio road which now has a party of surveyors running preliminary lines in the vicinity of Gulfport, Pascagoula and Biloxi, and a well grounded suspicion exists that plans are on foot by this system to secure another harbor on the gulf coast before the construction of the Panama canal is concluded. The survey was started at Shubuta several weeks ago, and the surveying party has been moving steadily southward, keeping their plans a profound secret.

Within the next week trains will be running on the new spur line of the Illinois Central from Brookhaven to within four or five miles of Monticello, Lawrence county, the terminus of the line. Construction work is being pushed with all possible rapidity and the company is already handling considerable cotton and lumber over the line.

Construction work has been commenced on the new branch line of the Southern railway from Elizabeth, on the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley road in Washington county, to Camellsville, a town just on the line between Sharkey and Yazoo counties. It is stated that the line will also be constructed into Bolivar county to a small town named Kuhns. The first ten miles of the line is to be completed, according to the terms of the contract, by the 1st of December.

The Yazoo and Mississippi Valley road is preparing to build a new line from Heim and also a branch from Wilczinski northward to tap the line from Rosedale to Boyle at Arnold. Material for the work has been placed on the ground.

Gas If Not Oil.

The New York-Alabama Oil company has placed an order for a new partable well drilling outfit and will within the next thirty days have two outfits at work at the same time in different sections of Madison county. The company has already spent $15,000 in drilling for oil and hasn't found it yet in paying quantities although large amounts of gas have been found. The company will drill several wells for oil and if it is not found in large quantities will pipe gas to Huntsville and engage in that business.

May Destroy Fleet.

It is reported here that the Japanese recently centered their fire from the land positions and from the fleet blockading Port Arthur on the west harbor with the object of destroying the Russian fleet and succeeded in sinking three vessels, names and character unknown.

The failure of the Port Arthur fleet to make a sortie is creating the impresion that the Russians intend to destroy their ships just before the fall of the fortress in preference to taking the risk of a sortie.

Medal for Carnegie.

On Andrew Carnegie is soon to be conferred one of the greatest honors in the industrial world, the Bessemer mdal, which is given only to those who are pre-eminent in the iron and steel industry.

Established by the great inventor in 1873, the medal has been conferred at stated meetings of the iron and steel institute on men whose inventions have been of a revolutionary character, or whose researches have been considered of the utmost importance.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY THE REV. W. S. RAINSFORD, D. D.

Subject: The Love of God—The Christian Church Is Placed in Trust by God With the Gospel—Let Us Try to Give It to the World.

BROOKLYN, N. Y. — The Rev. W. S. Rainsford, D. D., rector of St. George's P. E. Church, Manhattan, preached at St. Peter's Church, State and Bond streets, in this borough, at the evening service Sunday. His subject was "The Love of God," and he said:

People are saying to-day that the church does not occupy as important a place in the thoughts of men—that it has not as influential a place in our nation or in society as it used to have. I speak, of course, of the whole Christian church, and one thing is sure and that is that the church cannot hold her own by simply asserting, however loudly or persistently, the greatness of her deeds in the past. Whatever success or shortcomings there may have been in ancient times, one thing is certain, and that is that we live in an age when men almost violently are seeking the truth; when the keenest sort of light is turned in all directions in search of the truth. When those who have got anything to do can do it; when those who have got anything to say worth saying can say it, and when those who have got anything to be can be it, but there is no mercy for the sham. When, in the future, they come to criticise our time it will evidently be criticised as an age of truth, and its spirit will be spoken of as the spirit of truth; it will be criticised from all other ages as a time when men made great sacrifices for the truth and when great glory was gained in discovering and obeying the truth. There is no argument among thinkers whatsoever about this.

From this it follows that if we Christians have not got something real to give to the world, to society, to the United States, at this time we are really going to lose our hold and position; and the question that we want to ask ourselves, individually and collectively, is this. What have I got to give to the world? What is it the church has got to give to the world? I am inclined to think, if I were allowed to see you, one by one, and ask you to put down what it is on paper: What you as an individual and as a Christian have got to give to the world, and the church as a community? there might be a great deal of uncertainty. That this question is one that deserves a very clear answer there is no doubt, and everybody ought to know what that answer should be. There is no manner of doubt what the church has got to give to the world; what the individual Christian has got to give to the world. I want to talk about that to-night.

We, the Christian Church, are placed in trust by God with the gospel. That is what we have got to give to the world. If we are Christians we believe the world cannot get on without that gospel. We use the word gospel in a very slipshod way. If we are Christians we believe that not only can not the world do without the gospel, but that business and politics and the United States democracy in this Western Hemisphere cannot do without the gospel. A great many people believe that, but when we ask them to put it into practice, not only by going to church, not by putting a dime in the plate, not by repeating a creed or two, but to go back to their work and see if they cannot take the gospel with them there. They say, "Business is one thing, and religion is another." Men that talk that way have got to step aside; they are no help either to the church or the world. They are misleading; they are the people that tend to make the whole thing a sham, because the world won't tolerate, and rightly so, a religion that can confine itself to certain times and seasons and that can satisfy itself by obedience to certain consciences on Sunday, and perhaps once a week thrown in. We have got a definite charge for the world, and that is the gospel of Jesus Christ.

That being so, let me lead you to another question, and as I put it I shall seek to answer it: What is the gospel of Jesus Christ? Again I think you will agree with me, and perhaps more than before. If I were to be allowed to ask the question individually, What is the gospel? and ask for a definite reply, what a great variety of answers would be given; and many would hesitate. As Christians we certainly ought to be able to say what the thing is we stand for, or we stand for nothing; to say what we mean by the gospel, or the world won't believe at all. In a church, if we have one great thing in common which we all hold, not because we are various sects, but because we are Christians, we have got to find out what that Christian thing is.

One of the great difficulties—one chief difficulty—is this: That men, from the Lord's own day to the present, in the nature of things add their program to the gospel—tack on their programs. We are all so made that we must have a program—I mean our own thinkings about the gospel. It is right that every believing man should have his own thoughts and theory as to the why, and the how, and the when of the gospel. But my idea of why the gospel was given, my idea as to how the gospel is given and my idea as to when the gospel will be fulfilled is all right. I should have that right to think my own thoughts about these three things, but if I am trying to find light they will be unprofitable, and it would be impossible to stand in the daylight and not answer the questions how, why and when. But my how, why and when, even if I were the most learned and holy of men in the city of New York, would not necessarily be the gospel of Jesus. The point for us to agree upon is not the how and why and when, but what is the gospel? What is it we have distinctly in charge for men and have got to give men, and about which it is legitimate that we should say, how, why and when. As I say, the tendency is rather to tack on our program, and that is where the difficulties come in, for in the age in which we live people are rather given to finding out what is gospel and what is program. Episcopalians do not believe in the gospel without a bishop; the Presbyterians do not believe in the gospel without the Presbytery; the Baptists do not believe in the gospel without baptism, even in the middle of winter in frozen streets; the Methodists do not believe without Methodism, and so on. There is so much program that you can scarcely see the gospel. Men say: "I do not know which is gospel and which is program." It is absolutely essential that we are to give something to the world or we won't amount to anything and the world will push us aside. We must be men and women proclaiming and trying to live by the gospel.

What is the gospel? I am going to repeat a verse that seems to embody the spirit of Jesus: "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have everlasting life." The man who wrote the gospel of St. John (we do not know who he was) knew the very essence of the gospel, and I think everybody agrees with him—the Presbyterian, the Baptist, the Methodist, the Episcopalian—everybody believes that it is the very heart of the gospel of Jesus. That is the very essence of the dear Lord's love and life and teaching. It is what He began to preach, went on to preach, died to preach and rose again to preach.

That verse says three things. First, "God loved the world." Second, "I know it." No, you don't know it. It is a tremendous thing to know. You say: "I believe it." I hope so, but it is a very hard thing to believe. "God loved the world." That does not mean, God loves me; God loves the United States (we Americans act as if that was what we profoundly believe). "God loved the world" does not mean the other, "me and my wife, my son John and his wife, us four, no more." Not the people we like, but the heathen Chinee. It does not mean simply that God made this world—that is wonderful—but the gospel says the world is not simply a fine world, but it is a love world. If any man says it is easy to believe, he does not know much about it. If you lose one whom you love better than yourself it is not easy to believe it is a love world. When some bitter trouble comes, when pain racks your body, when the one thing you lived for is taken away, in the hour of trouble and toil and pain it is not easy to get up and say: "I will be a man after the heart of Jesus Christ, for I believe that God loves the world; it is a love world."

I do not believe there is one mother or father that has had experience, who does not know it is not easy to believe at times that God loves the world. But it is the gospel, the great gospel of Jesus Christ.

The second thing is this: "God so loved the world that He gave"—what is the message of Jesus Christ about God giving? It simply means that God does not superintend the world at a distance, like the old Greek idea of gods set up there in Olympus, where the waters are cool and the air sweet, and there is shade from the burning sun and all that the world needs to gratify the senses. That is the Grecian idea of God. It is not my idea of God at all. We still think of God on His throne, not dwelling down here. As Tennyson says: "A god into whose nostrils the steam of life hardly comes." God is not away above the world; not superintending the world somewhere outside the world, but the idea is, God is right there where His children are. Where they suffer, God is; where they rejoice, God is; where life is sweet, God is; where love is, God is. "God so loved the world that He gave." Nothing costs like giving. A mother gives her babe to pain, the result of hours of toil; we love and are glad to give because we love them. I say: "What will you give for your son?" You say: "I am not talking about those things; it is sacrilege; I will give all for my son." There is not a mother in this church who would not give her life for her daughter. There is not a decent man in this church who would not give his last dollar to save his boy's life or honor—he would give his hand, his life, to make the boy what he ought to be. "God so loved the world that He gave"— How did God give? I do not know. How could God feel pain? I do not know. How could He endure? I do not know. But it is the gospel of Jesus Christ: "God so loved—He gave." Then I can go out into the world, and it is not so hard to give. I do not want to suck the world like an orange. I know every now and then temptation says: "Get that sweet thing. But life is giving, not taking." That means pain, toil, disappointment—it may be, death. "God so loved—that He gave." Then I begin to understand. If the God and Father of Jesus Christ is giving, cannot I give? Cannot that boy, who is thinking only of a good time, begin to give? I remember, long ago, in the old study at home making up my mind what my life was going to be. I longed to be a soldier and follow in the footsteps of my forbears, but it flashed upon me that I only wanted just to have a good time, and I prayed God for grace to lead a useful life. We have got to make choice between giving life and getting life—one is the worldly life and the other is the Christian life. The whole purpose of God comes out in giving. God Himself is a giver. "God so loved the world that He gave."

The third thought: First, the world is a love world; second, love is not simply something looking down, but something indwelling here with us, giving His only begotten Son. What is third? Love victorious. The love of God is not simply a beautiful, patient pain, a universal thing, but an almighty thing. Back of the love of God is all mighty, all wisdom, all resource. God that made the world is the God that says, "Shall not perish." He says whosoever believeth shall not perish. Not the hero, the great, the wise, the strong, but the whole world of men. If there is anything in me that is worth living, God will keep my life; if nothing, I do not want to be kept alive. I can go on working, trying to love, trying to be patient and true, and at last I can go to sleep, for "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Universal life. Now, that you have got. It is the church's heritage for the world. Let us try to give it, for the world wants it to-day just as badly as it did nineteen hundred years ago.

Good Home Mission Story.

A good story was told at the Bible Christian missionary meeting held in London. A Salvation Army lass was beating a drum in the market place of a certain village. The vicar came out and protested.

"Are you obliged to beat that drum? It makes such a horrid noise, and I do so dislike it!"

"Are you obliged to ring your church bell on Sundays?" asked the girl. "It makes such a noise, and I don't like it."

"Oh, but," he rejoined, "that's very different; the bell seems to say to the people: 'Come! Come!' that's why I like it."

"Well, sir," the Salvation lass rejoined, "I like my drum, because it seems to be saying about the people: 'Fetch 'em, fetch 'em!'"

Home missions, said the speaker, mean fetching the people who might never come.

God's Work Goes On.

In the most disastrous periods of the church there have always been some (a seven thousand, perhaps), who have not bowed the knee to Baal. Ministers may have become corrupt; churches may have been infected with unholy leaven; the rich and the learned may have been unanimous in their rejection of everything except the mere superficialities of religion; and yet it will be found that God, who values the blood of His beloved Son too highly to let it remain inoperative, has raised His altar in individual hearts. In the dwellings of the poor, in solitary places, in the recesses of valleys and mountains, he has written His name upon regenerated minds; and the incense of their adoration, remote from public notice, has gone silently up to heaven.—T. C. Upham.

Secret of Her Power.

What was the secret of such a one's power? What had she done? Absolutely nothing, says Ram's Horn, but radiant smiles, beaming good humor, the tact of divining what every one felt and every one wanted, told that she had got out of self and learned to think of others, so that at one time it showed itself by sweet words, at another by smoothing an invalid's pillow, at another by soothing a sobbing child. None but she saw these things. None but a loving heart could see them. That was the secret of her heavenly power.

Level Best an Unworthy Aim.

Only by getting above our usual level can we make the progress we ought. The man who merely maintains the level to which his life has hitherto risen is, at the best, standing still—and that means falling behind, says the Sunday-School Times. "I did my level best," is not high enough. Our average ought to be considerably higher, and an average is never raised by being merely equalled. Only by beating our average can we raise our average. "Better than my best" is a worthier standard than "my level best."

True Happiness.

Happiness increases on the path of life if it is always advancing toward the perfect bliss.—Arkansas Methodist.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR OCTOBER 16.

Subject: Elisha and the Shunammite Woman. II Kings, iv, 18-37—Golden Text, Rom. vi, 23—Memory Verses, 34-36—Commentary on the Day's Lessons.

I. Elisha requested (vs. 18-21). Elisha in his work as a prophet and religious leader of the people traveled from place to place, on foot, with Gehazi, his attendant. There seems to have been public religious services on the Sabbath and festival days of the month (v. 23). Shunem frequently passed by the village of Shunem, and was invited to the house of one of the leading families for refreshment and food. The lady of the house seems to have been much more interested and religious than her husband, who was wise enough to know it and to trust his wife who showed due deference to him. This woman was childless, which was a great sorrow in her life, and as a reward for her kindness Elisha promised that within a year she should "embrace a son."

II. Death in the home (vs. 18-20). In due time a son was born into the house. He grew up to be four or five years old. He could not have been much older if this part of the story took place during Jehoram's reign. But the story may have begun then, but run on to a later period. One morning the boy went out into the fields where his father was gathering in the harvest. In this valley which is to-day one of the richest wheat lands on the whole globe, he was taken suddenly sick. Considering the symptoms and the season of the year there is little doubt that a sunstroke was followed by inflammation of the brain. The boy was sent home to his mother, who held him till noon, when he died. She took him up to the little chamber by the roof and laid him on the prophet's bed. It was a strange affliction that God should take away the child He had given as a reward for her kindness to the prophet, while her kindness had been continued and increasing year by year.

III. Meeting the prophet (vs. 23-28). 25. "She went." The mother immediately hastened across the plain to Mount Carmel, sixteen or seventeen miles distant, in search of Elisha. "Man of God." That is, God's representative. So called, 1. Because of the integrity of his character. 2. Because he instructed the people in divine things. Ten times in this chapter is Elisha called by this title. "Saw her." From the hilltop looking down into the valley.

26. "Run now." This was a mark of courtesy, showing his great esteem. "Is it well?" "Is it peace?" "It is well." In the Hebrew only the word "peace" is used. She gives this answer to Gehazi's question that she may avoid more words; she has no thought of deception.

27. "Caught him by the feet." The attitude of humblest supplication. She humbly reasoned with him concerning her present affliction; she threw herself at his feet as one troubled and in grief, which she never showed until she came to Elisha, the one whom she believed could help her. "Thrust her away." In his officious zeal, angry at the slight toward him, or deeming her touch defilement, or her importunity excessive, or such liberties beneath his master's dignity. "Let her alone." A noble mind does not pass sentence before hearing the case. Elisha's gentleness was an evidence of his greatness. "Soul is vexed." Sympathy is penetrative. Cultivate earnestly the Christ-like talent of discerning the sorrows of others. "Lord hath hid." In reference to this point he had not the discernment of spirits. This and the gift of prophecy were influences God gave and suspended as in His infinite wisdom and love He was good.

28. "Did I desire a son?" She reminded him that she had not asked for the child, but that he had come to her as a free gift from God. Why should God, she argued, give her the child of His own will, only to take him away? Had she not besought the prophet not to mock her with a false hope? Thus did she reason.

IV. The servant's failure (vs. 29-31). 29. "Gird up thy loins." By tightening the girdle and tucking the mantle under so as to leave the legs free. "Staff." The badge of the prophetical gift which he had received from God; of might and strength. "Salute him not." In the East salutations are full of form and consume much time. The command showed the urgency of the mission and the necessity for the exercise of faith and prayer. 30. "Will not leave thee." After the heartless attempt of Gehazi to thrust her away she has no confidence in his ministry, even though he carry the staff of Elisha. Sacred vestments and a holy commission will not command the confidence of earnest souls unless they be associated with a true and tender heart.

31. "Neither voice, nor hearing." Why was Elisha's mission fruitless? Everything goes to show that at first Elisha did not intend to go to Shunem, but when he saw the persistency of the mother he changed his purpose. It was probably in consequence of this change of plan that no response was made to the first claim of faith by means of the staff. That appeal was in fact superseded the moment he resolved to go in person, the Lord thus reserving for the personal intercession of His prophet the honor of this marvelous deed.

V. A great miracle (vs. 32-37). 32. "Child was dead." This statement clearly forbids the supposition that the child had merely fainted or fallen into a trance. He was really, not apparently, dead. 33. "Shut the door." He prayed in secret and his Father rewarded him openly. "Prayed." The only remedy in such a case as this. The best things in life come through prayer. 34. "Lay upon the child." He used what means were in his power, though the means alone could never have brought the child to life. So James tells the elders to pray with the sick and to anoint them with oil (James 5: 14, 15.) "Put his mouth," etc. Elisha followed the example of Elijah as nearly as possible (I Kings 17: 19-21). "Waxed warm." Returning life is slowly given, but the first signs of restoration must have strengthened his zeal and given fervor to his prayers.

35. "Returned." Left the bed. "Walked to and fro." His own animal heat might have become much reduced by absorption into the cold body of the child. Possibly, too, there was a struggle of faith in the mind of the prophet. "Sneezed seven times." When the nervous influence began to act on the muscular system sneezing would be a natural consequence, as obstructions must have taken place in the head, the cause of the disorder of which the child died. 37. "Take up thy son." Joyfully the child was returned alive to his mother. See the power of prayer; as it has the key of the clouds, so it has the key of death. See the power of faith. That fixed law of nature, death, shall be dispensed with rather than this believing Shunamite be disappointed. 37. "Fell at his feet." In overwhelming gratitude. When God has done great things for us we should bow humbly and say, "Lord, I am not worthy." 2 Sam. Cor. 12: 11.

Says British Trade is in Danger.

Mr. Chamberlain, in a speech at Luton, Bedfordshire, Eng., said that trade in Great Britain was in a precarious condition, and that unless the mother country and the colonies worked together the empire's disintegration was in sight.

THREE weeks from next Tuesday is election day, and that three weeks shall be used by the Democrats of Chilton to secure all the support possible for the Democratic ticket. The campaign has been a very quiet one, much to the relief of the people, who appreciate the fact that nothing is to be gained by abuse and calumny. Reason and moderation in politics are the most effective means of appealing to an intelligent people. The question that most concerns the people of Chilton at this particular time is not so much which set of candidates they should vote for, but the issues involved.

In electing men to office for a term of years, it is not only the fitness, ability and character of the candidates that should be considered, but also their relative worth in other respects. Another most important matter is what influences are they subject to, and it is in this connection where party ties tell. A man in local office may possibly do his duty in a perfunctory manner, and at the same time, at the call of his associates, use the influence he has gained by election to that office in a manner objectionable to his constituents and detrimental to their interests.

The political conditions in Alabama are such that it is only through the Democratic party that reforms of any kind can be accomplished. With an overwhelming Democratic majority in the State, any opposing party must of necessity confine its operations to its own upbuilding; it can do nothing for its supporters, and such men of the opposition as may be elected to office are more likely to seek their own advancement than to look after the welfare of the people.

The Democrats of Chilton have affairs in their own hands and will elect every one of their nominees, but it is the duty of every member of the party to exert himself and not only vote himself but also see that his neighbor votes straight. The welfare of the county demands that the Democratic ticket be elected in its entirety, and every voter should take pride in swelling the majority.

AT the request of the lawyers of the circuit, Judge T. Scott Sayre has decided not to hold the regular terms of the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, but to await the decision of the Supreme Court as to the constitutionality of the act creating the circuit. The November term of the circuit court of Chilton county is therefore indefinitely postponed, but the grand jury will meet November 7, notice of which appears in another column.

There are many reasons why no white man in this county should vote for Theodore Roosevelt at the coming election. To say nothing of the fact that he is a candidate of a party whose policies have always been detrimental to the best interests of this section; to forget that he has forced upon us objectionable men and measures; to shut our eyes upon the scene of his dinner with Booker Washington, we find in his own utterances and writings the indexes of his personal beliefs, which are quite sufficient to turn our voters away from his support. We give below some of these.

In his Life of Benton he declares that "through the Southern character ran a strain of coarse and brutal barbarism."

In a speech in Washington, after he became President, he proclaimed to the world that "the Confederate soldier was an anarchist."

After attributing to the cowboys of the West a moral depravity of which no cowboy has been guilty in half a century, after declaring that they were "brutally dissipated," that when "drunk on villainous whiskey they cut mad antics, ride horses in saloons, firing their pistols right and left," in his Ranch Life and Hunting Trail he adds: "They are much better fellows and pleasanter companions than small farmers or agricultural laborers; nor are the mechanics and workmen of a great city to be mentioned in the same breath."

In a speech made by him in New York in October, 1896, at a sound money meeting, he said: "Mr. Bryan and his adherents have appealed to the basest set in the land, the farmers."

In his American Ideals he says: "The men who object to what they style government by injunction are, as regards the essential principles of government, in hearty sympathy with their remote skin-clad ancestors who lived in caves, fought one another with stone-headed axes, and ate the mammoth and wooly rhinocerous. They are interesting as representing a geological survival, but they are dangerous whenever there is the least chance of their making the principles of this ages-buried past living factors in our present life. They are not in sympathy with men of good minds and sound civic morality."

In the same book, speaking of the Populists, he says: "Refinement and comfort they are apt to consider quite as objectionable as immorality. A taste for learning and cultivated friends and a tendency to bathe frequently cause them the deepest suspicion. Though they often make war on vice, they prefer making war on prosperity and refinement."

And again, in his pamphlet on the campaign of 1896, he says: "Thrift, industry, and business energy are qualities which are quite incompatible with true Populistic feeling. Payment of debts, like the suppresion of riots, is abhorrent to the Populistic mind. Such conduct strikes the Populist as immoral."

He has expressed his contempt for Southern people; he has expressed contempt for the farmer; he has expressed contempt for the laborer; he has expressed contempt for the Confederate soldier; he has expressed contempt for the Populists.

He has turned down a consistent white Republican in Shelby county, who has spent his time and money in trying to keep the party alive, and instead has given the federal patronage in Alabama over to the dictation of Booker Washington.

The above are ample reasons why Theodore Roosevelt should not receive a single vote in this county.

The Republican candidates for county offices are supporting this man openly by their allegiance to his party and the Populist candidates are doing so indirectly by being on the same ticket in party fusion.

FARMING AND STOCK RAISING

TREATMENT OF HOG CHOLERA.

Editor Banner—While I have been in the mercantile business for past 25 years, prior to Jan. 1, 1903, as most of your readers know, yet I have at all times felt a great interest in farming and stock raising. Have raised and handled quite a lot of stock, and of all I consider, in fact I know, the well bred hog the most profitable of the farm. Many farmers and others are deterred from raising this meat for several reasons, namely: 1st. Laziness. 2d. Imagined financial inability, and 3d and last, fear of cholera among the hogs.

For past twenty years I have raised and killed two to eight thousand pounds of extra fine pork each year, and for last ten years I have lost only 2 head and that by actual neglect on my part. Both were in a manner dead before I knew of their being sick. I at once removed the dead hogs from a pen full of fine fat porkers. Gave balance my usual remedy, disenfected the pen and hogs and lost no more.

SYMPTONS OF EXISTING DISEASE.

Bowels too loose, disposition to secret themselves from others When found you will notice they have feet doubled up under them and nearly always have fresh place rooted out in which they are crouched down, indisposition to stir or eat. In some cases of excession from the bowels greatly constipated (clogged) tongue and inside lining of mouth has white coating, head stopped up and breath very offensive.

TREATMENT.

As soon as discovered among your hogs remove the sick from the well ones, give as a preventative to the well hogs, say to 1 gallon black engine oil or cold tar, ½ gallon coal oil, and 2 tablespoonsful carbolic acid, pour all in old bucket; may add ½ lb. sulphur, stir all together and while warm, with a stumpy straw broom sprinkle all your hogs thoroughly. This can be done while eating and with little or no trouble. This is intended as a disinfectant for the outer hog. To prevent spread of the disease, put sick hogs in dry warm pen or stall where they cannot eat nor drink except what you give them; then disinfect them all over as directed for well ones. If they will eat give them small quantity each day of cooked food, but no water except with the following drench: For each hog give daily piece of alum half as large as man's thumb, powdered finely in pint warm water or boiled sweet milk, the latter is best. In drenching be careful to never turn hog over on his back, but allow him to stand on his hind feet; take him by ears, step astride him, raise up his front parts between your knees, back up against a house, fence or tree, so you can control him, have someone in front of hog with a stick in one hand and thick pint bottle with alum drench in the other, prize mouth open with stick, insert neck of bottle and pour in the contents slowly, giving hog chance to swallow. Repeat each day until hog appears fully well, which will depend on stage of disease when treatment is begun.

It is not out of place, in fact is a good idea, to give each hog a four grain capsule full of calomel at night, followed the following morning by ½ pint linseed oil or castor oil. Remember, do not give any raw feed nor water, and be certain to keep sick hog warm and dry, and pens well disinfected and clean.

The man who follows the foregoing strictly with his own hands, and does not depend on a lazy negro to do it, will have his own meat if he will have the hogs and make the corn. I got this remedy out of a Butler county alliance paper twelve years ago and have only lost two hogs since as before stated. Let someone also give their experience for twelve years along this line. I think the county boys should give this subject more thought and leave off reading circulars advertising fakes. There are many good farm and stock journals which are very instructive as well as interesting, and which can be had for just a little money. Let us hear from someone else next week. F. A. GULLEDGE.

Verbena, Oct. 10, 1904.

Better than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Citation on Application to Sell Lands.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Probate Court.

To John O. Donovan and Claud B. Donovan:

Whereas, Beula Matthews, one of the heirs at law of the estate of Jerre Donovan, deceased, has filed her application in said Court for a sale of the lands described in said application, belonging to the estate of said decedent, upon the ground that said land cannot be equitably divided, and the 31st day of October, 1904, has been appointed for the hearing of said application.

You are, therefore, hereby commanded to appear before said Court on said 31st day of October, 1904, to contest said application if you think proper.

Witness my hand this 27th day of September, 1904. E. B. DEASON, Judge of Probate.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Chancery Court. Seventh District, Northeastern Division. In Vacation.

Jeff Wailes, Complainant, vs. Lula Wailes, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of J. C. Dennis, as Attorney for Complainant, that the Defendant, Lula Wailes, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that she resides in Mexico, but her post-office address is unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, Lula Wailes, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be run out in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, Chilton County, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Lula Wailes, to answer, plead or demur to the bill or complaint in the above cause on or before the 24th day of October, 1904, and failing so to do within thirty days after the service of this summons a decree pro confesso may be taken against her in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 21st day of September, 1904. S. A. STEWART, Register in Chancery.

J. C. DENNIS, Solicitor for Complainant.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlains Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opion or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetantus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of Lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thursday.

RUSSIANS ADVANCE

Determined Assaults Capture Japanese Positions near Mukden.

THE OFFENSIVE ASSUMED.

Japanese Front Fifty-two Miles in Length—Other War Items.

General Kuropatkin's order announcing his determination to take the offensive is supplemented by the news that an offensive movement has already been begun, and that the Japanese line has been broken in Bentsiaputze. The Japanese occupied a front of about fifty-two miles, stretching from Bentsiaputze on the east through Tonlai, and across the railway to the banks of the Hun river on the west. The Russian force has been moving south in close touch with the Japanese advance since October 4th.

The Japanese outposts were driven back in a series of skirmishes and on October 6th the Russians reoccupied the station of Shakhe, fifteen miles south of Mukden, the railway battalion restoring the bridge across the Shakhe river the next day in order to facilitate the advance.

Meanwhile General Mistchenko's Cossacks moved southward as far as the Yental mines, defeating the Japanese in a series of warm skirmishes. The most important action, however, occurred on the Japanese right at Bentsiaputze. Here the Japanese held a strong and important position, but it seems they made the inexplicable omission to fortify a commanding hill, which was the key to the whole situation. A portion of General Kuropatkin's force made an attack on Bentsiaputze, and taking a leaf out of the Japanese book, occupied the hill from the east and flanked the Japanese out of the town, causing a serious loss in a rear-guard fight.

The Russian casualties are reported to have been inconsiderable.

While these operations are progressing south of Mukden, it is reported that two Japanese divisions under General Fushim are marching west up the Liao river, and are now 22 miles south of Sinmintin.

HARRELL CONVICTED

And Given Twenty Years for Burning Preston, Ga.

The trial of Sidney Harrell upon the charge of incendiarism was concluded in Webster county, Georgia, the jury returning a verdict of guilty. Judge Littlejohn sentenced Harrell to the penitentiary for twenty years.

Harrell and his nephew, Henry Morgan, were well known citizens of Webster county and prominently connected. They were accused of burning the county affe, Preston, in April, involving a loss of $30,000. Henry Morgan was convicted and is now serving a sentence of twenty years. The trial excited great interest owing to the prominence of Harrell.

First Railroad Journey.

Russia's imperial household proceeded Saturday from Peterhof to the palace at Tsarskoe-Selo. From the latter place a special train carried the emperor, the empress and the heir apparent to Reval, where Sunday and Monday were spent in an inspection of the fleet.

This is the first journey of the empress and the heir to the throne from Peterhof. The train was heated to exactly 64 degrees and the household physicians and relays of nurses were in attendance.

Transformed to Japanese.

Russians returned from Korea say the Koreans, especially in southern provinces are greatly incensed at the high-handed actions of the Japanese, who seize the young men, cut their hair, place them in Japanese uniforms and compel them to enter the ranks. The population, it is stated, is now favorable to the Russians.

THREE KILLED

And Six Wounded in an Automobile Accident.

Driven at the rate of twenty-five miles an hour, a three-seated touring car, containing nine persons, four men and five women, dashed over an embankment at New York city landing on the track of the New York Central and Hudson River railroad. Just at that moment a train, running fast to make up time, rounded a curve and struck the automobile. Three persons were killed, two instantly, two were seriously injured and the other four, although badly bruised, were able to go home.

Bessemer.

The report of Postmaster Johnson of Bessemer, for the year ending June 30, shows that the receipts of the Bessemer postoffice have gained over a hundred per cent in the last ten years. For the year just passed they were $11,142.17. In the year 1893, ending June 30, the receipts were $5,418.48.

In addition to the city business this postoffice has seven rural free delivery routes.

MRS. JEFFERSON DAVIS

Elected Honorary President General of Daughters of Confederacy.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy concluded their annual convention at St. Louis Saturday, the feature of which was the creation of the office of honorary president general, to which Mrs. Jefferson Davis was elected. In the creation of the office a question arose over the proposition that it would establish a precedent and supersede the office of first honorary president occupied by Mrs. M. C. Goodlett, of Nashville, the founder of the organization. Mrs. Goodlett herself settled the question by arising and acceding to the plan in saying:

"I am only one of the daughters, while Mrs. Davis is the wife of our first president."

She was accorded tremendous applause, and the convention then took formal action in ratifying the proposition.

Another proposition that caused discussion was that Colonel W. K. Knauss, of Columbus, Ohio, be elected an honorary member in recognition of the fact that he had looked after the graves of confederate soldiers buried at Camp Chase, Ohio, and causing marking stones, designating the graves, to be placed.

The discussion ensued by reason of his having been a federal soldier and it was asserted that his election to associate membership would be an act unprecedented in the annals of the organization. However, in view of the services rendered by him to the graves of the soldiers it was decided to elect him as honorary associate member. The election of officers resulted:

Honorary president general, Mrs. Jefferson Davis.

President, Mrs. A. T. Smyth, of Charleston.

First vice president, Mrs. Basil W. Duke, Louisville.

Second vice president, Mrs. G. D. Beale, Montgomery, Ala.

Recording secretary, Mrs. John P. Hickman, Nashville.

Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Virginia McSperry, Martinsburg, West Virginia.

Treasurer, Mrs. J. W. Leigh, Norfolk, Va.

Custodian, Mrs. S. E. Gabbette, Atlanta.

San Francisco was chosen as the meeting place for the next convention.

AT MILWAUKEE

Postmaster General Payne's Body Lay in State.

The special train bearing the remains of Postmaster General Payne arrived in Milwaukee Saturday several hours ahead of schedule time as originally planned. For this reason there was not a large crowd at the depot. A platoon of police and a regiment of letter carriers stood with bared heads as the train rolled in.

The remains were removed from the funeral car and under an escort of a platoon of police, two hundred letter carriers and various delegations were taken to the rotunda of the city hall, where they lay in state until noon Sunday. The chief emblem of the mourning used in the decorations is a large mail pouch outlined in black and white on which appear "Rest in peace" in electric lights.

FORTY YEARS

Is the Sentence Imposed on Tetherow.

Glenn Tetherow shot Alderman Hardy at Ensley on the night of March 5th, inflicting a wound from which White died a day or two afterwards. White made a dying statement in which he said the shooting was without provocation.

The trial ended Friday in conviction of murder in the second degree and a sentence of forty years.

New Gunboat.

The Paducah, one of the navy's fighters, is to be launched at the works of the Charles L. Seabury Gas and Engine and Power Co., Morris Heights, New York, on Oct. 11th.

The daughter of the mayor of Paducah, Ky., Miss Anna Mae Yeiser, will act as sponsor for the little runabout.

Failures.

Strictly commercial insolvencies during the first nine months of 1904 numbered 9,183, and involved $111,659,205 of defaulted indebtedness. In addition there were 76 suspensions of banks and other fiduciary institutions with liabilities of $20,810,454.

An increase of $7,300,000 in liabilities of failures in the southern states is largely explained by the fire insurance disasters in Maryland and a big real estate collapse in the District of Columbia. A notable decrease in the size of losses is found in reports from Virginia and Alabama, but Tennessee and West Virginia both suffered heavily.

Mississippi Soldiers' Home.

There are thirty old soldiers in the soldiers' home at Beauvoir and eight applicants. The home will erect a dormitory for women, with a capacity sufficient to accommodate twenty-five in the near future.

Wynne Acting Postmaster-General.

President Roosevelt has announced the appointment of Robert J. Wynne, acting postmaster general,

ETHEREDGE RELEASED

Former Sheriff of Lawrence County a Free Man. A Peculiar Case.

DECISION ON LUSK BILL DID IT.

A Long Legal Battle—Relatives Stood by Him—Circumstantial Evidence.

As a sequel to the now celebrated Lusk bill, Green Etheredge, once a republican sheriff of Alabama, was released from the county jail of Lawrence county and breathes free air for the first time since July. Etheredge's case is a peculiar one.

About twelve years ago he was nominated and elected sheriff. For four years he exercised the functions of his office.

His term of office expired in 1896 and having lived a life of indulgence and almost luxury during his term of office, he found himself in the end almost without means and totally without a profession. Generous to a fault and a high liver, he had accumulated nothing and was thrown upon his own resources with no occupation or profession and a large family to support. Then he began a varied career. Very soon it began to be whispered around that Etheredge was not confining himself to the straight and narrow path and the grand jury of the county gave more than color to the rumors by returning indictments against him for violating the revenue law by selling whiskey without the necessary sanction of the officers.

It was learned one morning that the court house had been burglarized during the prior night and all indictments contained in the clerk's office had been stolen. Clerk Crosthwait had been notified a few days before that it was the intention of Etheredge to do the job. He did not rely very strongly on this information, but as a precautionary measure he took all indictments against Etheredge from the files of the court, and these alone were saved. Etheredge was accused of the crime and arrested. Circumstantial evidence was strong against him. His friends, and they were many, believed that he was innocent of the crime, but the officers of the law thought otherwise. Link by link was riveted together until a chain of circumstantial evidence was welded which almost completely weighted down the defendant.

Etheredge asserted his innocence to the last. His many friends believed that he was a victim of circumstances and that time would disclose the real criminal. When the case was called for trial at the July term of court, it was found that the indictment against Etheredge for burglary, together with the record book of indictments, a book of more than 300 pages, was gone from the vault of the clerk's office. The grand jury was in session and another indictment was quickly returned. The defendant was placed on trial against his protest, his attorneys holding that the indictment and all action under it was void on account of the unconstitutionality of the Lusk bill.

The statute of limitations appears to be complete, and it is doubtful if the defendant will ever again be placed on trial for this offense.

On Two Charges.

Charles Douglas, white, was arrested and placed in jail at Gadsden on the charge of forging the name of Edivey on an order on the steel plant store for $10 and securing the goods. He was arrested by Deputy Sheriff Heath and after being placed in jail Mr. Ivey discovered that his pistol, a 38-caliber, was missing. It was found at a pawn shop where Douglass had pawned it for $3.60, giving the name of Charlie Henderson. He was also arrested on this charge.

BLED TO DEATH.

Accidental Gun Shot Tears Off an Arm.

Mr. R. C. Crum, while cutting hay on his farm near Vandorn, was killed by the accidental discharge of a gun which he was carrying resting under his arm. The gun slipped, striking the hammer, and the arm was almost severed from the body. He bled to death before medical aid could be had.

BOILER EXPLOSION

In Pensacola Ice Plant Does $25,000 Damage—One Thought Killed.

Five persons were injured and one probably killed by the explosion of an eighty horse-power boiler in the power plant of the Stratton ice works, Pensacola, Fla., two of them injured seriously, one man, the fireman, who was on duty when the explosion occurred, is missing and thought to be buried in the debris, and the property damage will aggregate approximately $25,000.

The explosion occurred at 7:35, and those who were eye-witnesses of it say that it seemed as though the whole ice eplant had suddenly been forced apart and hurled into space.

The shock of the explosion was felt in all parts of the city from Bayou Texar to Bayou Chico, and many residence lights were put out and the occupants shaken up generally.

Fire started immediately and spread with great rapidity for some time, the department being somewhat handicapped by the fact that the ammonia pipes had been broken, making it almost impossible to breathe on account of the fumes.

GADSDEN'S JURY.

Reports on Etowah County Affairs. Jail Poorly Kept.

Gadsden's city court grand jury, which has been in session for the past seventeen days, has adjourned, after examining 455 witnesses in 125 cases, returning 63 true bills. They report that the county roads are in excellent shape owing to the work of the convicts and recommend that they be kept on the roads. They also found that the county farm was a paying investment and that the paupers there were well cared for.

The jurymen made a report on the condition of the county jail. They found that owing to a disagreement between the sheriff on account of the useless waste of water that the water had been cut off by the water works people, and the jail was in a fearful condition. The bedding was dirty and full of vermin, the clothing on the prisoners was in an unclean condition while bath tubs seem to be an unknown thing.

King Peter Anointed.

The anointing of King Peter of Servia was performed with great ceremony amid the pealing of bells, the king in full coronation robes proceeded to the church, where the metropolitan innocent, attended by an array of bishops and clergy, celebrated high mass.

The king being then formally invited to anointment by the bishops, laid aside his crown, regalia and sword, and proceeded to the ikonostas, where he took up his position on a gold embroidered carpet, and there the metropolitan, taking an ampulla containing the holy chrism in one hand and the anointing rod in the other, touched his majesty with the rod on the forehead, nostrils, mouth, ears, chest and palms of the hands, making each time the sign of the cross, and saying: "The seal of the grace of the Holy Ghost."

Tennessee Very Low.

Considerable trouble is being experienced by the N., C. and St. Louis road in transferring their passengers at Hobbs island. The Tennessee river is considerably lower than ever known before and the boats drag bottom nearly all the way. The river continues to fall, and the road is now transferring the passengers for four miles by hacks.

100,000 Peach Trees.

If the plans of A. W. Newsom, a well-known nurseryman, and his associates are carried out as announced, Madison county will in the next few years become one of the richest fruit-growing sections of the south. Mr. Newsom plans to establish orchards aggregating 100,000 peach trees in various portions of Madison county where the soil is specially adapted for growing peaches.

Land owners on whose lands the trees will be planted will own a half interest in the orchards, but Mr. Newsom will have charge of marketing the entire crop. The enterprise is backed by considerable capital.

Reward Offered.

For the arrest of the unknown miscreant who placed an infernal machine on the veranda of the home of J. C. Mahen, president of the Gulf Sheffield Steel and Iron company, on September 21st, Acting Governor Cunningham has offered a reward of $250. The reward was offered at the request of Solicitor H. P. Heflin. The reward is conditional upon the arrest and conviction of the guilty parties.

THE FIREFLIES' WEDDING

(A Short Story.)

By CATULLE MENDES.

Copyrighted for the Commercial Advertiser by Walter T. Stephenson.

ONE evening as I was returning from the village fete I noticed in the light of a moonbeam a child sleeping against a tree in the roadway, alongside of a miniature cathedral in plaster. I have often ... who buys these hideous products of ecclesiastical architecture, ... such square, ungraceful outlines, ... by a tall steeple and ... with a candle end placed on ... A sensation of pity seized ... I gazed upon the poor little ... who must have spent the ... evening trying to sell his church, ... no purchaser, had fallen ... to dream, perhaps, of the beat... awaited him at home. ... dusty and tanned, he was as ... as he was dirty. I awakened the lad, gave him some money, ... the semblance of almsgiving ... the plaster cathedral. ... me a good deal as I carried it off under my arm. I walked ... anxious to relieve myself ... burden, which I intended to ... a corner of the garden where ... serve as a scarecrow for the ... which were already beginning ... my cherries. ... have looked like one of those ... you see in religious paintings ... the resemblance in mind ... the chapel which they have ... to Saint Timoleon or Saint ... expiation of their sins. ... sounded; I was still awake ... with eyes half closed. But ... an insomnia without fever, ... and delicious, refreshed by the ... light entering through the ... window close by, which also ... the winding paths of the garden, the beds of flowers and the ... grass in the pale enchantment ... happy in my semi-conscious ... without the sensation of existence, yet enraptured with the joy of ... I was rather a thing ecstatic ... than man. And the vast silence, the ... calm, so suggestive of solitary ... drowsy nooks, of leaves unstirred by any breeze, were deepened ... almost arrested throbbings of ... by the dispersion in a dream ... peace of all my dead desires. ... a slight noise startled me. ... might have called it the contact ... sensible of some delicate object ... a feebly resisting surface. ... was rhythmical, too, at ... intervals, suggesting the idea of ... infinitely distant among the ... noise continued hardly audible, ... to gently importune me. ... looked out of the window. ... my surprise! ... cathedral which on entering I ... placed near the door in a narrow ... like a church at the end of an ... the cathedral whose candle ... had long been extinguished ... radiated illumination through ... red windows, and as I ... forward to examine more closely ... perceived that the inclination of ... woodbine caused the ... to be cropped by an oscillating ... in which a bee performed ... of clapper or ringer. What ... on then in my garden be... the mystic light of the moon? ... stepped over the window sill ... in the shade of an acacia, ... wall of the little church, just be... the choir, was a crevice, through ... I now peeped. More than a ... fireflies attached either to the ... of the columns or perched before ... altar in lieu of candles filled the ... with light, and in the top of ... steeple the industrious bee tolled ... in the woodbine, as if calling ... devout to some important cere... ... constantly increasing and innumerable throng of insects was entering ... portals. Crickets and grasshoppers ... the fields jostled each other eager ... the van; a lady-bug, to avoid ... pushed in the crowd, was posed ... wing of a dragon fly; tiny ... vested in black and white, ... the clergy, followed a gor... cochineal in purple. The whole ... a strange confusion of mur... from countless creeping things ... color. ... at length, the entire company ... their places in proper or... large fly flew up to the organ ... presently a humming sort of ... joyous yet religious, fairly filled ... the little basilica, so brightly illuminated by the fireflies.

A ceremony, indeed, of some sort was on the point of commencing.

When I beheld two minute creatures proceed toward the choir, the one with confident air beating its wings victoriously, the other hesitating and timid, I supposed there was a wedding afoot.

And of this I was sure when I saw at the high altar a magnificent beetle with green and gold chasuble, assisted by two lesser bugs as acolytes, approach the bridal party with gesture seemingly of benediction.

My eyes glued the crevice. I lost not a single detail of the august ceremony. With eager curiosity I watch the crowd as it gradually dispersed, while the fireflies extinguished their lights one by one. Then noiselessly I turned to trace on the moonlit path the course of the newly wedded couple after extricating themselves from the tumultuous throng.

Where would they go? Would they fly away for their honeymoon toward some distant nuptial flower, under a warmer azure, beneath more ardent stars? Or would they content themselves with the first convenient corolla invitingly open under the discreet curtain of a leaf?

"Whereve fancy leads you, oh, gentle bride and bridegroom, may the God of insects ephemeral, and flowers quickly fading, to you be kind! May you have much happiness in the few hours of your brief springtime!

"Never may the sabot of a peasant or the slipper of a woman who perchance seeks repose under a tree cause you fear as you wing your flight so close one to the other, over moss-clad bank, from bush to bush! May the dew-drops that you sip together be ever perfumed to your taste! May the chalice preferred never refuse an odorous lodging! And if you should fall into the clutches of some cruel child, may it be the same little hand that seizes you both, so that you may suffer and die together!"

While I was breathing these heartfelt wishes for their happiness the two insects had not flown away; they had climbed up the length of a Bengal rose bush, the topmost rose of which surmounted the ledge of my window, and I saw them disappear inside the flower, whose petals, half gone, closed softly over the tender pair.

Not for one instant would I have thought of returning to my room by the window, as I had left—a rustling of the leaves would have disturbed the rapt lovers in their first intimacy. I started, therefore, toward the door, where I happened to observe on the stone ledge another bug, which I had not perceived before and who without doubt had followed the others.

What was its business here? Why had it come? Was it a relative of the bride, or—who knows?—a rival of the bridegroom?

Many a man has suffered under the windows of a nuptial chamber; and among insects perhaps as with us, it is the misfortune of some that becomes the happiness of others.

The poor little creature remained motionless, close by the rose bush. I touched it with the end of my finger, very gently. It stirred not. Alas! I knew then that it was dead.

Curious Coincidences.

Curious coincidences mark the lives of two women who married Dr. A. T. Knox, of Bowen, Powell County, Ky. One is dead, the other living with her husband. Both women were named Alice, both removed to Kentucky when eight years of age, and each bore him three children. The father of each wife is dead, the mother of each is living and each is named Ann. The parents of each wife had nine children—four boys and five girls. Each wife has three brothers whose names are exactly alike, and each has two sisters whose names are alike. One wife was born in North Carolina and the other in Virginia. One was the eldest of nine children and the other the youngest of nine children. Three children of Dr. Knox are living and three are dead. The wives were intimate friends.—Kansas City Journal.

Couldn't Think of the Closing Word.

A relative of the late Mr. Walter B. Brooks tells of a dinner on one occasion at that gentleman's house, when a clerical guest was requested to make a blessing.

The reverend gentleman complied, but once started on his flow of invocation there seemed no indication that he ever intended to stop. On and on swept the stream of eloquence, while the soup turned stone cold and the hostess looked appealingly at her husband.

Suddenly Mr. Brooks broke into the blessing with a fervent "Amen."

The clergyman stopped, and with beaming eyes ejaculated, "Oh, thank you, thank you. I could not think of the word amen to save my life."—Baltimore Sun.

Purest City Water.

Colorado Springs, Col., has the purest water of any city in the United States. The supply is derived from reservoirs and lakes on the side of Pike's Peak which are fed by springs and melting snow. Chemical analyses of the water have repeatedly shown it to be purer than that of any other city in the country, due to the fact that the supply is derived at such an altitude as to make contamination impossible.

SNAKESTONE A MYTH.

Supposed Medicinal Value as a Poison Antidote is False.

South Africans, as a rule, trouble themselves but little about snakes, although it is well known that a few varieties are particularly deadly. Among the natives the properties of the "snakestone" have for many generations formed a centre of half superstitious credulity, and, even by people who might be expected to know better, have been supposed to effect the most surprising cures of snake bite. An investigation of its properties by the government bacteriologists of Natal, who submitted an Indian snakestone to the test of applying it to animals infected with snake venom, has shown conclusively that its properties are quite mythical and that it does nothing that is claimed for it. According to tradition the snakestone, which has absorbent qualities, and which there is some reason to believe is frequently artificially prepared, is placed on the wound inflicted by a snake bite. There it is believed to suck out the poison, and it has been said that if afterward placed in a bowl of milk the venom will exude and the milk turn blue. In certain experiments narrated in the British Medical Journal all these directions were followed. To the two rabbits injected respectively with the venom of a black mamba, a very deadly South African colubrine, and with puff adder venom, the snakestone was at once applied. The stone, by virtue of its absorbent nature, adhered to the wound, but here its adherence to tradition ended. Both rabbits died, and what was more disappointing, two other rabbits, used as a "control experiment," which were injected with the same amount of venom, recovered. Nor when the stone was placed in milk did the milk change color, though a small quantity of it was absorbed. The amount of absorption that the stone could possibly effect would be no more in hours than ordinary suction by the lips could achieve in a few minutes; and its only possible usefulness might be that of improving the physical condition of the patient by impressing him with the belief that a valuable remedy was being applied.—South Africa.

A new method of cutting trees was experimented recently in France. A platinum wire charged with a heavy current of electricity to a white heat is used like a saw. The process takes about one-eighth the time of the ordinary saw, no sawdust is produced and the carbonization acts as a slight preservative to the end of the timber.

Korea has its own "seven wonders." First, a hot mineral spring, claimed to have miraculous healing properties. Second, two springs, far distant from each other, but connected by a subterranean passage. When one spring is full the other is empty. All the water seems to flow from one spring to the other, yet one is bitter and the other sweet. Third, the cold wind cave, in which there is always a breeze strong enough to take a strong man off his feet. Fourth a pine forest in which trees are continually sprouting, no matter how the roots are mutilated. Fifth, the floating stone. It is a large, irregular cube which seems to be resting on the ground, yet a rope may be passed under the stone without touching it. Sixth, the "hot stone," which for ages has been almost at white heat. Seventh, "a drop of the sweat of Buddha." This is kept in a temple and for thirty paces around it no grass, flower or tree will grow or animal will go near.

In ten years Maryland has jumped from fifth to third place in the willow-ware industry in the United States, now ranking next to New York and Pennsylvania. Baltimore is one of the three willow-ware centres which only have shown any actual growth in the business. In Maryland the centre of the willow district lies in Howard County. In the neighborhood of Elkridge alone the output of willow exceeds $30000 per annum, while Anne Arundel County contributes $2500.

Jap Advertising.

The Japanese advance in advertising as in all else. Here is an illustration: "Our wrapping paper is as strong as the hide of an elephant. Goods forwarded with the speed of a cannon ball. There is uncertainty as to when the portable watch, as we understand it today, came into use. It was probably at the close of the sixteenth century. Queen Elizabeth owned a large number of watches. Mary Queen of Scots was the possessor of a skull-shaped watch. In fact, the "death's head" pattern was at that time much in vogue.

Divorces in Japan, which can be obtained on the most trivial pretension, have somewhat diminished in number in recent years, but they still occur at the rate of one to every three marriages. In 1902 there were 349,489 marriages and 113,498 divorces.

RIPANS TABULES are the best dyspepsia medicine ever made. A hundred millions of them have been sold in a single year. Constipation, heartburn, sick headache, dizziness, bad breath, sore throat and every illness arising from a disordered stomach are relieved or cured by Ripans Tabules. One will generally give relief within twenty minutes. The five cent package is enough for an ordinary occasion. All druggists sell them.

Mrs. L. C. Glover, Vice-President Milwaukee, Wis., Business Woman's Association, is another one of the million women who have been restored to health by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was married for several years and no children blessed my home. The doctor said I had a complication of female troubles and I could not have any children unless I could be cured. He tried to cure me, but after experimenting for several months, my husband became disgusted, and one night when we noticed the testimonial of a woman who had been cured of similar trouble through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, he went out and bought a bottle for me. I used your medicine for three and one half months, improving steadily in health, and in twenty two months a child came. I cannot fully express the joy and thankfulness that is in my heart. Our home is a different place now, as we have something to live for, and all the credit is due to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Yours very sincerely, MRS. L. C. GLOVER, 614 Grove St., Milwaukee, Wis." W. L. DOUGLAS

UNION MADE. $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN.

W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world. The reason W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world is because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. If I could show you the difference between the shoes made in my factory and those of other makes and the high-grade leathers used, you would understand why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day, and why the sales for the year ending July 1, 1904, were $6,263,040.00.

W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it—take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere. Fast Color Eyelets used. Exclusively.

Superior in Fit, Comfort and Wear.

"I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the last twelve years with absolute satisfaction. I find them superior in fit, comfort and wear to others costing from $5.00 to $6.00."

Indigestion Causes Catarrh of the Stomach.

For many years it has been supposed that Catarrh of the Stomach caused indigestion and dyspepsia, but the truth is exactly the opposite. Indigestion causes catarrh. Repeated attacks of Indigestion inflames the mucous membranes lining the stomach and exposes the nerves of the stomach, thus causing the glands to secrete mucin instead of the juices of natural digestion. This is called Catarrh of the Stomach.

Kodol Dyspepsia Cure

relieves all inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the stomach, protects the nerves, and cures bad breath, sour risings, a sense of fullness after eating, indigestion, dyspepsia and all stomach troubles.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were submerged and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has plotted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wholly, fiercely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Throw the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-hunting tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to [illegible] with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for [illegible] trary ruler, to restore economy and integrity in [illegible] combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to [illegible] climatization of the American flag in any country [illegible] pendence is a seditious document. J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Cheneyman, Tex., says: "I could not eat because of a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran down in weight. Outshone in Harness.

There are several instances on record where in South Africa the white master or black servant has trained one or more ostriches to harness and has driven them regularly in a light trap or even ridden them like a horse. It need hardly be said that ostriches are extremely swift when used in such a way and can cover a tremendous number of miles a day if not given too heavy a load. They have even been known to show real signs of enjoyment and pleasure at being in harness, and certainly they go to work with a will when thoroughly tamed in this manner.

Saves Two From Death.

"Our little daughter had an almost fatal attack of whooping cough and bronchitis," writes Mrs. W. K. Haviland, of Armonk, N. Y., "but, when all other remedies failed, we saved her life with Dr. King's New Discovery. Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK & POULTRY MEDICINE

This great stock medicine is a money saver for stock raisers. It is a medicine, not a cheap food or condition powder. Though put up in coarser form than Thedford's Black-Draught, renowned for the cure of the digestion troubles of persons, it has the same qualities of invigorating digestion, stirring up the torpid liver and loosening the constipated bowels for all stock and poultry. It is carefully prepared and its action is so healthful that stock grow and thrive with an occasional dose in their food. It cures hog cholera and makes hogs grow fat. It cures chicken cholera and roup and makes hens lay. It cures constipation, distemper and colds in horses, murrain in cattle, and makes a draught animal do more work for the food consumed. It gives animals and fowls of all kinds new life. Every farmer and raiser should certainly give it a trial.

It costs 25c. a can and saves ten times its price in profit.

Pittsboro, Miss., March 25, 1904.
I have been using your Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine on my stock for some time. I have used all kinds of stock feed but I have found that yours is the best for my purpose.

VOL. XIII CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1904 NO. 1

MAN ON THE CORNER

Of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Theory, the office seeking the man is very pretty, but in practice it can hardly be said to work well. The office is a public trust, and laudable ambition on the part of a man to want to fill a public office. It is right and proper for a man to let his fellow citizens know that he aspires to become their servant and to ask them for their vote and support—with them rests the question as to whether he is worthy or not. In a small community where every man knows his neighbor it is well enough for an aspirant to public office to remain quietly at home attending to his own affairs and leave the election of an officer entirely to the community.

In the election of county officers, however, the conditions are not the same in a small community. The contest for a county office who is well and favorably known in his own neighborhood can depend upon the support of his neighbors. But in the remainder of the county the voters have not the privilege of his personal acquaintance but must depend upon outsiders for information upon which to form an opinion of the fitness of the candidate. He may bear an excellent reputation, and be well known by reputation to a great many citizens, but a visit to a voter will secure support, when otherwise it would go to the opposition.

The present campaign is remarkable for the fact that the Democratic nominees have remained secluded home, apparently leaving the election entirely to the voters. We have all men of splendid reputation, and no doubt each in his community will be heartily supported by his neighbors, but some one of them should get out over the county and make himself known to every voter he can reach. The Lord helps those who help themselves, and the candidate who gets out and hustles for votes is more likely to reach the goal of his ambition than he who stays at home. Get out and hustle, boys; not for your own election only, but for the good of the Democratic party, the hope of the country.

Congressman Bowie has made a number of appointments for public speaking (which will be found in another column on this page) in different parts of the county. There is not the slightest doubt but that Mr. Bowie will be re-elected to Congress, and so far as he is personally concerned he could well afford to remain quietly at home after election, but he gets out among the people and explains the principles he advocates, and this is for the good of the Democratic party. All other nominees should do likewise.

Clanton, Ala. Oct. 17, 1904

Editor Banner: I wish to announce through your valuable paper that the Aldridge district school will open Oct. 24th., under the managment of the scribe, and I earnestly request every patron to be present at the opening.

Patrons, I want to thank you for rallying to me when I asked that the school building be put in good condition, and now I ask your hearty coopperation in my school work. With your cooperation we can have a most successful term and without your cooperation, a most unsuccessful term. So let us labor together and build up one of the best district schools in the county.

I am also glad to announce that on the evening of the 28th inst., at 7:30 o'clock, at the school house, an educational address will be given by Prof. Rasco, followed by Prof. Strock and others. Everybody is invited to attend these lectures, and especially the patrons. Let all the ladies attend. Yours for educational success,

J. N. Goss.

Clanton, Oct. 17, 1904

Editor Banner: Again I must ask for a little space in the Banner.

To my assailant, the "Voter," I wish to say, that in my past articles I have tried not to stoop to low assertions or slang, but have only tried to express my views in a gentlemanly manner. Not for the sake of argument, but because of my interest in the waging campaign, and in Democratic principles. Every man has the right, and I believe it is his duty to speak openly in defense of the principles which he upholds and honestly believes to be to the best interests of his county or country, but I believe that slang and low personalities should never be resorted to.

I am sincere in my assertions and make them for the sake of principle only, and can give my signature to any of them. Now my dear "Voter," I do not remember any canvess made by Deason in 1896, but during his canvass of '98 I was only 19 years of age, was not interested in politics whatever, never had a word to say for or against him, had never seen him, and was in school and not present at all at the speaking to which you refer, but have been a Deason man ever since I have known him or taken any interest in politics. I am staying with him now and am aware of his illness from reading "them lines and thinking of his reception."

It seems to burn some people because men reared behind the plow handles, the place from whence comes the best men of our country, should ever aspire to a higher position in life. They seem to want men who are satisfied with little things, with narrow minds, and who are content to spend their days (unless by chance) in "eating sorghum syrup and corn bread," Excuse me for these quotations for it behooves me to make them.

Now so far as the effect of the administration upon the price of cotton, which of course is the farmer's staple product is concerned, as I see it, it does'nt materially affect it, but supply and demand is the controlling principle. When the supply is great and the demand limited, cotton is a low price. But when the supply is limited and the demand great, it invarably advances in price.

And now, as to the educational question referred to some time ago, I would like to add that every advance along the line of education in the State of Alabama has been under Democratic rule, and Alabama stands third in educational ranks and in a state of rapid advancement. So now I submit this article for publication, not in a spirit of abuse, or for low motives, but under honest convictions, and as I see things.

Yours very truly,

J. N. Goss.

Shoults.

Dear Editor: After quite an absence from your columns, I take the liberty of exposing a few facts from this community.

Everything is rocking along nicely at present, but O my, how dry it is and how everyone would appreciate a good rain.

Everything looks as if there was a light frost last night; think a good frost would help out, as there is some fever in this community.

Cotton crops are about all open in this section and almost picked out. Corn crops are good and everybody has made plenty to do them.

N. W. Latham, the well known piling contractor, has gone out of the timber business and has sold his teams, which was quite an expense, and has, of course, given him great relief, guess the people of Maplesville will miss him.

Mcafee, the champion teamster of the South, is now at home with his family enjoying quite a vacation.

G. F. Latham has returned to Selma, where he is working with the Southern Railroad Company.

O. A. Latham and wife will leave for Charleston, Miss., in about two weeks, where he will accept a position with a contractor of that place. Their many friends of this section wish them well and regret very much to see them leave us.

Rev. P. G. Maness has returned from Providence, where he has been attending the convention. He reports a good meeting.

J. J. Hicks & Son have gone into the timber business; we wish them success. Best wishes to the Banner.

Good Luck.

Huntsville Fires.

A report made by Chief Wise, of the Huntsville fire department, shows that the damage by fire in that city from the first of October, 1903, to the first of October, 1904, was the smallest in ten years. There were only forty five fires and only two of them were in brick buildings. In June and July there was not a fire and the department made no run.

Plenty of Money.

The banks of the Mississippi are filled to overflowing with money, and offers are being made to loan farmers who want to hold back their cotton in liberal sums on reasonable terms. One bank at West Point has $250,000 to offer the farmers.

Will Increase Capacity.

The Huntsville Ice and Coal company has purchased a lot adjoining the ice factory and will increase the capacity of the plant by the addition of the machinery of the Spring City ice company, recently absorbed by the Huntsville company.

Curzon May Resign.

A story is printed to the effect that Lord Curzon, the viceroy of India, will not return to his post on account of his wife's illness, and that Lord Milner, who recently resigned the high commissionership of Africa, is likely to be appointed his successor.

Back Taxes.

Mississippi's Revenue Agent Adams filed a back tax assessment on solvent credits of the Delta Land company, aggregating one million two hundred thousand dollars, from 1886 to date. Taxes amount to nearly fifty thousand dollars.

Monument Dedicated.

Thousands of people assembled at Orchard Knob to witness the dedication of the monument erected by the state of Connecticut to the Fifth and Twentieth Connecticut volunteer regiments by Governor Chamberlain and a distinguished party from Connecticut.

The monument was presented to the governor by Captain Sanford E. Chaffee of Derby, Conn., who was one of the commission which erected the monument. Governor Chamberlain received the monument and presented it to General H. V. Boynton, president of the Chickamauga National Park commission.

Iron Furnaces.

Nine stacks were blown in in September, bringing the total number in blast up to 191, possessing a weekly capacity of 309,946 tons. At the opening of the present year the stacks of this country were turning out each week but 185,000 tons. About ten additional stacks will be put in blast this month, and the production will be increased about 16,000 tons a week.

Monte Sano Leased.

W. E. Byers, of Blount Springs, has taken an option on Hotel Monte Sano and may lease it and open the hotel to guests next summer. If next season proves successful an electric railway may be built there from Huntsville.

Killed by Tree.

Walter Harris, a young man of 28 years, formerly of Etowah county, was killed in Texas October 3d, as he was riding home from Dangerfield. He had been to the town and was on his way home when he rode under a tree which was locked in another tree on the opposite side of the road. As Mr. Harris rode under the tree it fell and knocked him from the saddle. He was crushed to death.

A number of privileged persons, writes a correspondent of a Paris paper quoted in La Nature, were present on St. Sylvester's night in Strasburg cathedral to observe the mechanism of the famous clock. "The spectacle was of special interest, since, for the first time since its construction in 1842, the machinery was called upon to indicate the first leap-year of a century, after an eight-year interval. At astronomical midnight the machinery worked with wonderful regularity. The levers and trains of wheels began to move, the movable feasts of the year took their respective places and the admirable mechanism, calculated to indicate in perpetuity all the changes of the calender, continued its regular movement," says a translation made for The Literary Digest.

Young Old People.

To retain the spirit of youth while age weakens the body is a splendid thing. There are those of whom we say, "He never grows old." Their hair may be whitened, their faces wrinkled and their shoulders bent, but in heart they are young. If "their strength is labor and sorrow," their lively interest in the things that concern those of younger generations gives no indication of it. Their tenderest and inmost thoughts may be of the past but they live in the present.—Springfield Union.

RUSSIANS RETREAT

Kuropatkin Concedes Defeat By the Japanese Under Oyama.

JAPANESE ARE REINFORCED.

They Capture a Number of Russian Guns—An Artillery Battle. Guns Captured.

Czar Nicholas received the following dispatch, dated Thursday, from General Kuropatkin:

"Two regiments of the Russian right on October 12th, sustained heavy losses. The commander of one was killed and the brigade commander was wounded. Both regiments were compelled to withdraw, abandoning their artillery, but subsequently under Colonel Vannovsky, who temporarily assumed command of the brigade, they after a desperate assault regained possession of the guns, with the exception of sixteen which remained in the hands of the Japanese.

"The final issue of the battle of Wednesday on this flank was unsuccessful for us. On account of a night attack of the Japanese, who executed a turning movement, our troops were forced not only to abandon their position, but again lost the guns previously recovered from the Japanese. Our forces retired to the position previously prepared on the Shakhi river."

The number of guns lost is not specifically stated. Each division is composed of two brigades with a brigade of artillery of forty-eight guns. It seems that the Russians lost twenty-four guns, which would correspond with the Tokio report.

Advices received at the Japanese legation say that the report of Marquis Oyama giving details of the operations below Mukden seems to make the total of Russian guns captured thirty-eight, and ammunition wagons twenty-four. General Oku's army was credited with having taken twenty-three guns.

A dispatch from Harbin says that the hospitals there are preparing for the reception of 37 officers and 1,200 men, wounded during the recent fighting before Yental.

The latest word directly from the field of battle is a Mukden dispatch in which it is stated that 15,000 Russians had been wounded.

Crushed By a Car.

B. B. Glazier, a young man employed as "car knocker" in the Ensley steel plant yards was struck by a car and almost instantly killed. Mr. Glazier was working underneath an empty car when an engine bumped into it, running the wheels of the car over him before he could escape. Both his arms were broken and his breast was badly crushed.

County Claims City Property.

Theodore McKnight, representing the board of supervisors of Warren county, Miss., has filed a claim in the government land office for certain lands within the corporation limits of Vicksburg, valued at nearly a million dollars. The claim is that the lands were sold to Newit Vick by the government and reverted to Warren county as school lands.

Live Wire.

Adrian Gregg came near meeting with a serious accident at Tuscaloosa. While working on an arc light circuit during the day time, the current was turned on by mistake. It is not known how many volts entered his body, but he was rendered unconscious for some while and his hands were severely burned.

Sunday School Institute.

Miss Minnie Kennedy, superintendent of the primary department of the state Sunday school association, is making a tour of northern Alabama counties instructing Sunday school teachers in their work. Miss Kennedy is in Huntsville at present conducting a series of institutes.

Confederate Pensions.

Owing to the great amount of work in transferring the names of those who draw Confederate pensions from one book to another, the auditor will not be able to get the pension warrants out until about two weeks after the usual time. It may be about four weeks before the warrants will be gotten to the counties. This year all the warrants will be sent out at one time, not alphabetically, as they were in 1903.

Lost a Hand.

J. E. Barnes, gin and mill man near Guin, had his hand so badly mutilated as to require amputation.

Huntsville United States Jury.

At Huntsville the United States Grand Jury has taken up the investigation of the Horace Maples lynching and several of the witnesses who appeared before the state court grand jury during the lynching investigations, including members of the late military company, have been examined. Many others have been subpoenaed. Developments are anxiously awaited.

RAILROAD WRECKS.

Three of Them Saturday—Fifteen Killed in One of Them.

Fifteen persons were injured, two probably fatally, in a collision between the eastbound California limited passenger train and a westbound freight on the Denver and Rio Grande railroad, near Portland, Colo.

The accident was due to the failure of the freight train, which was late, to take the siding at Portland, and allow the passenger train, which was running on time, and had the right of way, to pass. Both locomotives were completely wrecked. The baggage and express cars were telescoped and the forward end of the day coach was smashed.

The Pullman sleeper attached to the rear of a northbound overland train broke loose, left the rails and plunged over a 15-foot embankment into Cow Creek, Colo. None of the occupants of the car were killed, although many were seriously wounded.

Governor Chamberlain of Connecticut and party narrowly escaped a very serious wreck. The chief executive and two companies of the governor's guard have been to St. Louis. Just after pulling out of the union station the first special was stopped by a block signal and the second crashed into it. About a dozen members of the guard were bruised more or less, but none were injured seriously. The governor was in the third section and consequently was not in the wreck.

BUILDING OPERATIONS.

Large Increase Noted Over the Year Just Past—Pittsburg Leads.

Building operations in twenty-seven of the pricipal cities of the country during September show an increase over the corresponding month a year ago of 84 per cent. This is the most remarkable increase probably that has been recorded in a single month for years past. Permits were taken out for the construction of 9,614 buildings, aggregating $37,014,194 in cost, against 7,108 buildings involving an estimated cost of $20,074,211 for the corresponding month a year ago. The most notable increase was in Pittsburg, 386 per cent. In New York city there was an increase of 102 per cent.

SLOCUM SURVIVORS

Organize Society for Prevention of Similar Disasters.

Articles of incorporation of the General Slocum survivors' organization are approved.

The incorpators of the organization, all of which are survivors of the disaster of June 15, say the object of the organization is annually to commemorate the disaster by suitable services; promote the welfare of and assist those who suffered and to use all proper means and methods for the prevention of any like disaster.

Car Report.

The report of the Alabama Car Service association for the month of September shows an increase of more than a thousand cars handled by the railroads belonging to the association during the month of August. There is a decrease, however, in the number of cars handled last month as compared to the number handled in September, 1903, but this is accounted for in the difference caused by the coal miners' strike and curtailment of the pig iron production in the Birmingham district.

During the month of August, 1904, there were 53,026 cars handled while the number in September, 1903, was 61,093.

Failures.

Failures last week were 208 in the United States, against 208 last year, and in Canada 24, against 28 a year ago.

Gone Into Blast.

The Tennessee company has fired No. 4 furnace at Robertstown. This furnace was banked immediately after the miners' strike in July when two others closed. Last week No. 3 furnace was put in blast and it is thought that the "Little Belle" will be fired up in a very short while.

Destroyed By a Hurricane.

The town of San Blas, on the Pacific coast, fifteen miles south of the port of Mazatlan, has suffered severe damage as the result of a hurricane. Word from Topic, a town south of San Blas, stated that 250 huts occupied by the poorer classes were totally demolished.

Off Vladivostok.

Five Japanese cruisers are reported off Vladivostock. It is added that the commander-in-chief of the Russian fortress has summoned the inhabitants to surrender firearms of all descriptions within a week.

Old Records Found.

Chief of Police Walters of Selma has unearthed a number of old records of the city, among them the minutes of the first meeting of the town council in 1830. Two important books of the city council of 1875-76, which had been missing and for which several litigants in various cases a few years back would have given considerable sums to find.

A RUSSIAN CHARGE

Breaks Through Japanese Center and Eleven Guns Are Captured. Japanese Retire.

NINTH DAY OF THE BATTLE.

Losses Were Heavy on Both Sides. Papers Praise General Kuropatkin for His Retreat.

Sunday night the Russian forces penetrated the Japanese center, and it is reported captured eleven or thirteen guns and fifteen prisoners east of the railway. At another point during the day the Siberian regiments took twenty-four guns.

The Japs, after a stubborn resistance, were compelled to retire along their whole line, losing heavily. All the trenches carried by the Russians were filled with the Japanese dead, in one not very large trench there were counted 600 corpses of Japanese. In spite of their losses the Japanese were undaunted. They have brought up siege guns and have left no stone unturned to retain the mastery of the situation. Every step the Russians pushed forward was in the face of resistance that has cost them dearly. The Japs seem to be willing to fight until they are annihilated.

The greatest admiration is expressed by the London newspapers for the tenacity displayed by General Kuropatkin in protecting his retreat. The Japanese appear to be fully prepared for a winter campaign.

The question of intervention is hardly discussed at all, because it is believed that the Russian government is not in any mood to accept it.

General Kuropatkin has slightly advanced his center, reoccupying Shahe. Directly behind him at a distance of nine miles lies the Hun river, and across the bridges spanning this stream the Russians must retire in case they retreat from Mukden. General Kuropatkin must continue to hold his center and right flank in order to prevent the Japanese getting possession of the Hun river bridges.

General Grippenberg, who has arrived at St. Petersburg, will go to the front in ten days to assume command of the second Manchurian army.

It is expected that the Japanese will move forward, and force a decisive engagement as soon as possible.

New Mexico Day.

Governor Magull A. Otero, of New Mexico, and several of his territorial officials were present and participated in New Mexico day exercises at the World's Fair Monday. Hardly less distinguished among the participants than Governor Otero himself, whose father was one of the Spanish pioneers, who traded along the old Santa Fe trail, was Mrs. Weston Radcombe, the daughter of Brig.-Gen. Kearney, whose original proclamation in Spanish, proclaiming that New Mexico had been annexed by the United States, and calling on the inhabitants to lay down their arms, is one of the historical exhibits in the New Mexico building.

BIG ARMY

To Be Mobilized to Continue the Fighting for Russia.

A correspondent wires that after consultation with the czar, General Grippenberg has decided to mobilize 600,000 additional troops for the war. Manchuria, the paper asserts, will be abandoned for the present. A Russian note will probably be issued to the powers announcing the czar's firm intention of continuing the war.

Electric Car Accident.

Four people were seriously and possibly fatally injured in a street car accident in Washington. A car filled with suburbanites refused to take a sharp curve, left the track and overturned. Three men and a woman were crushed beneath the car and sixteen others were bruised or cut.

Minstrel Buys Circus.

The Forepaugh & Sells circus has been purchased by Al. G. Field, the well-known minstrel man. The delivery of the show is to be made at Columbus, O., on November 23. Mr. Field, before he went upon the stage about twenty years ago, was manager of a circus for many seasons. He was an intimate friend of the late Peter Sells.

New City Hall.

Mayor Campbell, of Gadsden, has succeeded in selling the city bonds to the amount of $35,000 for the purpose of building a city hall.

Coal Shipments.

Coastwise shipments of coal during August from Atlantic seaboard piers furnished a combined tonnage of 2,811,294 tons, of which 1,122,811 tons were anthracite and 1,657,483 bituminous. For the eight months ending with August the total shipments were 21,926,974 tons, of which 9,888,410 tons were anthracite and 12,038,564 tons bituminous. Last year August shipments amounted to 2,508,745 tons.

ELECTRIC LINES

Proposed for Several Localities in Mississippi.

Three miles of electric railroad is to be built at Greenwood at once, the preliminary survey being now in progress. German capitalists have become interested in the matter, and it is stated that they will join with local capitalists in constructing a line from Greenwood to Black Hawk and to Itta Bena.

A line is proposed to connect the cities of Jackson and Vicksburg with Cooper's Well, the greatest health resort in the state. The line will be some fifty miles long and will run through several important smaller towns.

Another route that is being discussed and for which the preliminaries have been taken is a road connecting Woodville, one of the oldest towns in the state, with the Mississippi river. The distance is only about twenty miles.

Still another proposition is to connect the towns of McComb, Hazlehurst, Crystal Springs and others to the south of Jackson by an electric line and that will come on up to Jackson in course of time. The towns along the gulf coast are already connected by electric roads, and still others are talking about building.

COTTON EXPORT.

September Exceeded Any September in History.

Cotton exports in the month of September, 1904, exceeded both in quantity and value those of any September in any earlier year. The figures presented by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its bureau of statistics show the total quantity of cotton exported during the single month of September, 1904, as 410,940,894 pounds, valued at $43,742,325. These figures exceed those of any earlier September both as to the quantity and value of cotton exported. The next largest September exportation of cotton in earlier years was that of September, 1902, when the total was 347,596,100 pounds, valued at $29,930,815.

The average export price per pound of the cotton exported in September, 1904, was 10.6 cents.

FOUR SHOT.

Man Opens Fire on Family, Wounds Three and is Killed.

A tragedy is reported from Caloogs, Webster county, Miss., in which Mrs. Dixie Beard was instantly killed, her husband and baby shot by Jim Stallings, and Stallings himself killed by Beard.

Stallings was armed with a shotgun, and when Beard and his little family passed his home en route to the home of Mrs. Beard's father, where they intended to spend the night, Stallings opened fire with the result above stated. Beard rented land from Stallings and they had quarreled a few days previous, but it was thought the matter was settled.

Railway a Failure.

That the newly completed Circumbaikal railway, on the completion of which the Russian military officials counted so much for expediting the forwarding of reinforcements and provisions to the front, is in a bad state. The poorest kind of material was used in its construction and the first train took over three days to make the journey and was derailed ten times. It will be necessary during the winter to use horses instead of engines to pull the trains.

Double Track.

The Southern railway has put in operation the double track recently completed from Washington to Orange, Va., a distance of eighty-five miles.

New Lumber Company.

The Yellow Pine Lumber company, a concern composed of Georgia and Florida capitalists, was incorporated with a capital of $50,000. The company proposes to do a general lumber business, paying special attention to dressed timber and turpentine products. The offices will be located in Birmingham.

Not This Year.

Thomas Lipton having failed to find a designer for a new challenger for America's cup has abandoned the idea of challenging this year. He will now encourage yacht racing in home waters.

Mississippi Medals.

Mississippi has been awarded gold medals on hay, alfalfa and grasses, another on canned goods, and a third on her educational exhibit. Silver medals were awarded the state on sauces, honey, syrups and wagons.

$100,000 for College.

B. M. Nice, president of Talladega college, received a telegram from the executor of the estate of James Callahan, of Des Moines, Iowa, stating that in Mr. Callahan's will $100,000 was given to the college. The provisions of the bequest are not known. Talladega college is a school for negroes, supported by the American Missionary society of New York, and has an enrollment of seven or eight hundred.

On the left flank, which was [illegible] of the most important in the [illegible] battle, nothing was heard [illegible] leaves the inference that it was not at all in a position [illegible] with the rest of the army.

All of the wounded are being [illegible] ried to Harbin, farther north it is understood that the [illegible] also have been ordered to [illegible] which indicates the retreat will go even step at Tie Pass. All hope of advance to Port Arthur have been abandoned. The weather conditions are even worse than during the retreat from Liao Yang. Streams are bank high and fords are impassable.

Another serious fact that results undetermined is the ammunition supply. Seven days of furious fighting must have greatly depleted the supply of both armies. Officials express confidence that General Kuropatkin is better off in this respect, but all reports the Japanese were husbanding as if they were sure of an inexhaustible supply.

Invited to Huntsville.

Huntsville's chamber of commerce appointed a committee to cable the Federation of Master Cotton Spinners' Association of Manchester, England, an invitation to visit this city during a tour of the south to be made by representatives of that association in investigations of suitable localities for the establishment of cotton manufactories.

Now State Property.

The state department of archives and history has received the personal diary of Captain Charles L. Lundeen, who commanded the famous Lundeen's battery in the civil war. The battalion was raised at Tuscaloosa and began with 125 men.

SUNRISE AND SUNSET.

Sing a song of sunrise:
First a feeble glow
Dawning bright and brighter,
Spreading wide and low,
Upward and to westward,
Blazing stars look dim,
Beaming through and robin
Tunes his matin hymn.

Clouds now flush with crimson,
Crimson turns to gold,
Till a forest of splendor,
All the air is filled,
Hangs in the glory,
Chasing fogs away,
Turning dew to diamonds,
Turning night to day.

Sing a song of sunset:
Long the shadows lie,
Stretching out to eastward,
While the western sky
Dons a golden radiance
Deepening into red,
As the sun, low sinking,
Slowly seeks his bed.

Hushed are nature's voices,
Jarring notes are stilled;
With half-murmurings only
All the air is filled.
Fades the sunset glimmer,
Stars are shining bright,
Earth is wrapped in darkness,
Day engulfed in night.

"ROBBING THE PILLARS."

A Peril of the Coal Mines.

By WALTER FENTON.

When a coal mine is being worked [illegible] coal or pillars are left as to support the roof, [illegible] mine is "worked out"
[illegible] minded away. The op[illegible] ing them is technically [illegible] "robbing the pillars," and it is the most dangerous work known to the miner, for the roof caves in as the supporting columns are removed, not infrequently burying the miner forever beneath a mountain of rock and earth. With this brief explanation of the process will proceed to narrate an incident of a thrilling nature that occurred not long ago in a Pennsylvania coal mine.

The night is bitterly cold, and the gaining north wind howls and whistles about a miner's hut in the Pennsylvania coal regions. Ever and anon a violent gust drives the drifting snow beneath the door, and through the many crevices of the rudely constructed hut and each wild blast seems to shriek in the ears of those within that mode of poverty the dread words,
"Famine! famine! famine!"

A man and woman are crouching before a smoldering fire, and in a cradle between them an infant is sleeping.
Hunger and want have stamped their woeful signs upon them. Their faces are thin and pale, their eyes are hollow and the wolfish glare of starvation lurks in their glance. The man's head has sunk upon his breast, and his attitude is that of sullen despair;
his long, slender fingers, which he extends over the [illegible] fire, work nervously and a dark frown rests upon his brow.

The woman rocks the cradle, and in a low, plaintive voice chants a nursery hymn, while, with a look of agony and yearning such as only the devoted-est mother can bestow, she gazes upon the skeleton face of her starving child.

The infant awakes from its troubled sleep, and its cry of hunger breaks upon that poor mother's ears, and wrings her heart with anguish, for she has no food to give it. Mechanically she takes the baby to her breast, and strives to give it the nourishment for want of which it is perishing, but the fount is dry, and the little one looks up into its mother's face with piteous, wondering eyes. Then that mother's fortitude gives way, and she sobs aloud in a despairing burst of awful grief while to her breaking heart she clasps the famishing babe.

In silence the man has looked upon the heartrending scene, but all the sacred emotions of the husband and of the father are stirred within his breast.
Can he calmly look upon the awful grief of the woman? No, he springs to his feet and standing erect, he clenches his clinched hand, upon his breast and fiercely cries:

"By Heavens, I will have food for you to-night! The good God never made it right to starve in this land of plenty. If there is willing to work. Wife
I am going forth to seek food, and I'll get it, too. I'll get it, and if in no other way, then I will steal it! I am desperate. I am a wolf now and I would tear the throat of him who dares to come between me and the food I seek for my starving family!"

As he spoke he drew his thin and tattered clothing more closely about his emaciated form, and strode toward the door.

"John, John!" cried the woman, following him. "Where are you going? What are you about to do?
Stay! Do not go forth into the storm.
Wait until morning comes."

"I tell you Mary, the babe is starving. No, no, I must go now.
But John help may come tomorrow. I have written to my father.
I have told him that I that I and my babe are starving and he will not surely refuse to help us now."

"Ah Mary when you became my wife he drove you from his home, disowned you because I was poor. He wished you to become the bride of a wealthy man, he is a hard, cruel father, and your hopes will prove groundless. Mary I would 'work until I fell dead at my task rather than accept his charity. But there is no work for me here and day after day I have sought in vain for some labor by which I could earn bread for us. If my father does not help us God help us! the must my babe must we starve must we die!"

"No, no! By the God that made me
I will live! I will earn food for us or [illegible]" answered the man, and there was desperate energy in his words that told he was terribly earnest.

He pressed a hurried kiss upon the brow of her who for love had given him a comfortable home to share his humble lot, and then he went forth into the night, into the driving storm.
The wife pressed her face against the pane, and strove to pierce the gloom in which he vanished, while he struggled onward onward through the snow toward a light that glimmered like a beacon in the distance.

The way was rugged and huge drifts obstructed the pathway, but he bravely breasted them, and at last, panting and exhausted, he reached a large brick dwelling, that by contrast with the miserable miners' huts around it seemed a mansion. This was the residence of Hugh Ashton, the proprietor of the colliery, and he was the man upon whose employment all the miners of that little hamlet depended for a livelihood.

John Fayne, such was the starving miner's name, rang the doorbell, and was admitted to the presence of the king.

"Mr. Ashton," said he, as he confronted the wealthy operator, "my wife and child are starving; will you give me some food for them tonight? I have worked for you in the mines until compelled by sickness to give up, and although I am now able to work again, the mines are idle, and I can find no employment. I am willing to work, if I only had a chance. I would brave the dangers of any honest toil, endure any hardships to earn food for my family."

Mr. Ashton was at heart a kindly man, but he had never experienced the awful meaning of the word starvation.
He regarded John Fayne closely for a moment, and then called to a servant.

"Put up a basket of provisions for this man at once."

"Thank you! thank you!" said John Fayne, and the tears started from his eyes; for this was the first kindly act that had gladdened his heart for many a day. When the food was produced he was about to hasten home with it, when Mr. Ashton said:

"Stay. You say you are willing to work, and although the mines are idle,
I think I can give you work if you dare undertake it. You know the old North Mountain mine that has not been worked for several years?"

John Fayne answered affirmatively.

"Very well," continued Mr. Ashton,
"I will give you the job of robbing the pillars from it."

"What!" cried Payne, in surprise.
"Would you send me there? The North Mountain mine was deserted be-because the roof was unsafe, and there were so many lives lost by the fall of 'top coal' that no one would longer work in it. And to rob the pillars, too,
Mr. Ashton, if I went there to work, ther are 10 chances to 1 that I would come forth only as a crushed and mangled corpse. No, I cannot do it."

"Very well," answered Mr. Ashton.
"The pay would enable you to support your family in comfort, and I thought I would mention it to you. You positively refuse my offer, then?"

John Fayne hesitated. He thought of his loved ones and the brave, noble-hearted man determined to take the fearful risk for their sakes. He was placed in a terrible situation, and could any true man have done otherwise? On the one hand was starvation for his wife and child, on the other an awful danger for himself. He chose the last.

"I will accept your offer, and tomorrow I will begin the work of robbing the pillars from the old North Mountain mine," he said.

* * * * * * *

It is early morning, but John Fayne has already entered the gloomy caverns of the deserted mine. He had taken the food to his house last night, and told his wife of the work he had obtained. She had tried to persuade him to abandon the dangerous project, but in vain.

The gloomy subterranean place is silent and deserted. Overhead the black, chasm-seamed rocks extend, and seem ready to descend upon him at any moment; the water drips from numerous crevices, and falling upon the hard floor gives forth a weird, unnatural sound. It seems to the lone miner that those strange noises are made by the nails being driven into a coffin, and he shudders. Slime oozes from the sides of the old "gangway," and the iron mine rails are rusted and de-cayed by the action of sulphur water.
Deeper, and yet deeper he makes his way into the mine, and the cold, damp air strikes upon him like a chill breath from the grave.

The mine lamp upon his hat sheds a dim light upon the uncanny place, and the miner sees that here and there the wooden props that were to sustain the roof from where there were no
"pillars" have fallen from their places.

He has now reached the point at which his work is to be commenced, and he sets about the task of drilling a hole into a huge pillar of coal. He labors diligently, and when the "drill measure" tells him that the required depth is reached he puts the powder into the hole, and prepares to fire the "shot" that is to blast away the coal.

A fuse that is to ignite the powder, and then hastens away to a safe distance to await the expected explosion.

One, two, three moments pass, and the explosion does not take place.
The miner thinks the fuse must have gone out ere it reached the powder, but he waits a moment longer. He is no quite sure that the fuse has failed, and he returns to examine it. He is but few feet from it when there is a blinding flash, followed by a terrific explosion that seems to shake the earth to its foundation, and the same instant a mountainous mass of coal, rock and earth descends upon him.
He is crushed to earth, but not killed outright, for a fallen prop that chanced to lie near where he fell supports the mass somewhat. He struggles desperately to free himself, but the effort is useless, for he is held down by a weight that no one could move. Air comes through the cracks about him, and he thanks God for that, for with the blind infatuation that prompts the drowning man to catch at a straw, he yet hopes to be saved.
There seems little grounds for hope, and as the time drags on, and no rescuer comes to his aid a terrible despair takes possession of his heart.

"Oh, God!" he cries, "spare me, spare me for the sake of my helpless family."

But no one comes, and he thinks that he is doomed to die alone in the darkness of that living grave.

* * * * * *

The clock strikes six, and Mary,
John Fayne's wife looks anxiously forth from the window of their cot, hoping to see the welcome form of her husband returning from the mine, but sight of him does not gladden her eyes. A half hour passes, and the waiting wife begins to fear that some danger has come to the absent one.
Another half hour is gone, and now the expected one is an hour late.
For the last few moments the terrible fear that had arisen in the mind of the miner's wife has become almost a certainty.

At last she can wait no longer and throwing a shawl over her head she hastens to the neighboring hamlet and rouses a party of miners to go to the old North Mountain mine, to search for the missing one.

"Oh, hasten! hasten!" she cries, as she flies over the ground at the head of the rescue party. Love seemed to give her new strength, and speed.
The mine was soon reached, and the very pillar beneath which John Fayne had been buried was found. They saw that he had been at work here and they also saw that an extensive "cave in" had occurred. These men were experienced miners, and they shook their heads gravely when the almost frantic wife asked them if there was any hope.

"No, there is no hope for poor John Fayne! It would take days to remove that mass of coal and rock, and he would then be dead, as he no doubt now is, for I think he must have been instantly crushed," said an aged miner to a companion.

The work of removing the "fall" was commenced, and after a time the bereaved wife was induced to return to her babe. She had not gone far when a boy gave her a letter which had arrived but an hour before. She opened it, and found that it was from her father, and it contained a sum of money that seemed almost like wealth to her; but what was better, her father asked her forgiveness for his cruel conduct, and implored her to come with her husband, and cheer his declining years by making his home her own.

"Too late! too late! Oh, if John were only alive to share my joy! Oh, God! he is lost to me, and life is but sorrow now; no wealth can bring me happiness!" she exclaimed.

She had now reached her own cot, and had opened the door, when suddenly she reeled back and uttered the name:

"John!"

No pen can describe the thrilling joy, the heart and soul of gladness that she threw into that cry. The next moment she would have fallen fainting to the ground, but the strong arms of John Fayne, alive and in the flesh, caught her to his breast. In a moment she recovered, kissed back to consciousness by the husband she mourned as dead.

How did he escape? How came he here? He had, as we have said, given up all hope of escape, when he felt the floor upon which he rested giving way, and in another moment he fell with a portion of the floor into a chamber of a lower avenue of the mine. He was somewhat bruised by the fall, but not seriously injured, and as there was a ready way of egress from the lower avenue, he soon made his way to the surface of the earth once more, and hastened to his home.
At this precise time the rescue party were entering the upper level, and consequently they failed to meet.

Thus was the peril escaped and comfort and happiness came to the miner and his family, who was no longer compelled by a necessity to go "Down in the coal mine, underneath the ground,
Where no ray of sunshine ever can be found."

What He'd Get.

Big Sister (angrily): Do you know what you will get if you break that vase?"

Little Sister (interested in playhouses): The pieces.—Life.

Moodish Bar Pins.

Bar pins, solidly set with rhine-stones, are much favored, and vary in price from a dollar up according to size. The effect of the stones is very brilliant and as no deception is either intended or effected they may be worn without scruple by the most fastidious woman.

The Double Veil.

Dotted Tuxedo and plain chiffon veils now come to match, and are worn in combination. On a plain white sailor a Tuxedo veil with green dots is worn next the face, while draped over the hat is a plain green chif-fon veil from a yard and a half to and a half yards long, which can be wound around and tied under the chin for driving or automobiling.

Choose Right Silk.

Now that silks are so cheap, there is no extravagance in including at least one such gown in the summer wardrobe (and it can do duty for the winter evenings also). The plain taffetas are for the moment considered the smartest, and there are many fine colors and qualities to be had among the inexpensive ones that are good investments. There are many, too, that are most foolish purchases, on account of their having what is known as too much dressing in their construction, and being, in consequence, too stiff and hard and, therefore, apt to crack.—Harper's Bazar.

Megaphone for Her.

One woman who intends to get the greatest good for herself and her children from their summer in the country has added a megaphone to her baggage, says an exchange.

She believes in letting the children have as wide a range as possible to fun in. If they get beyond ordinary earshot she can use the megaphone to call any one of them or to summon the whole bunch at mealtime.

She declares that the magaphone is better than the bell or old-fashioned dinner horn, because some times long distance argument is more effective in bringing a youngster to time than mere ringing or blowing.

Care of Children's Hair.

Mothers should teach their girls to care for their hair as early as possible. If a girl is coaxed into the habit of giving her locks a hundred strokes with a clean brush every morning and evening, and braiding them loosely for bed, the foundation for a future beautiful head of hair will be laid. Too many children are allowed to go to bed with their hair in a tousled condition, only to have it jerked and tangled hastily when school-time comes round. Such a practice is disastrous to the nerves of a sensitive child and ruinous to the hair. Never allow one child to use the other's hair-brush. Diseases of the scalp are most contagious, and the brush is the surest germ agent.—American Queen.

Japanese Knots.

Like the arranging of flowers, the tying of knots has been carried to the point of a complex art by the Japanese. There is one way—one right way, that is—to knot the cord that confines a birthday or New Year's present. There is one way to tie the brocade bag of the tea jar when the latter is empty and another when it is full. Not only general ignorance of social customs but deadly insults may be communicated by the way a knot is tied, foreigners often making dreadful mistakes either through not knowing or from ignoring the niceties of knot etiquette.

Hooks and eyes, buttons and buckles are unknown so far as Japanese dress is concerned. They do not have much to fasten, but what they do have they fasten with cord. That is why they have carried the tying of cords so far.
The Japanese have hundreds of crea-mental knots, some of them so old that they antedate written history.

Japanese children are taught to make knots just as they are taught to write and draw. All sorts of flower and animal forms are copied. There is the chrysanthemum knot, the iris knot, plum blossom, pine tree and cherry blossom knots. There is a stork knot, a turtle knot, a knot named for the sacred mountain Fujiyama.
An easy knot is called the "old men's knot." There is also an "old woman's knot."

What to Wear on Fishing Trips.

A fishing dress ordered by a well-known demoiselle in the high walks of life is of gray and black water-proof.
The coat sleeves of the close waist display a conservative smallness, for any degree of picturesqueness at this point is not considered good taste with sporting wear. A green leather belt and a green silk crown band for the white felt alpine are prescribed fishing toucans.

But to come to the main point with outing clothes in general, and sensible mountain ones in particular, pliable woods that stand wear and tear while assuring both warmth and lightness are the best materials. The coat and skirt gowns are more useful than the shirt waist ones, for many persons consider a warm flannel all that is necessary for chilly occasions, and there should be light wool corset covers to put on as the weather requires, says the Washington Star.

Different sorts of footgear are also necessary for a comfortable summer.
One pair of stout boots with legging tops should be provided; several pairs of low shoes, some of leather and some of canvas with rubber soles, and at least one pair of bare foot sandals.
The comfort of the sandals should not be abused, or else the feet will spread beyond recall for the intention of the sandal is to give the foot absolute freedom. For this reason they should only be worn when the feet are in need of entire rest after a hard day of fishing or climbing.

Duty of Grown Up Daughters.

No matter whether her people are rich in this world's goods, or otherwise, the daughter of the house is taught to take her part in domestic councils while still young, and various little duties are allotted to her as she grows to be a young lady, which teach her to practice the usages of polite society, and also enable her to help her mother, and relieve her of many little burdens.

For instance she welcomes and looks after guests, a task peculiarly fitted for the exercise of her gracious power enabling her to be at ease when she goes among strangers. She helps her mother in reducing the burden of notes, letters, applications for help and money that every day's mail brings pouring in to the breakfast table.

She writes and answers invitations, gives hints as to the disposition of the daily menu for meals, remembers the dishes papa and the boys have called for and receives claimants on her mother's time and attention.

When she is acting in her mother's stead her youth and buoyancy throw off a hundred trifling annoyances of the household that through years of reiteration have begun to wear heavily on the older housekeeper.

With the younger children she establishes the lovely ties of vice queen, carrying out the mandates of the maternal sovereign and making herself a delightful comrade of nursery and school room.

To her father and grown brothers the rightly-trained girl becomes a veritable blessing.

To her they carry confidence and worries which it does not seem expedient to convey to the generally overburdened mistress of the house.

Her sympathy and comraderie create a green spot in their workday lives.

She finds a natural field of activity in the arrangement of flowers, the oversight of house plants, the disposition of furniture, books, pictures, bric-a-brac.

She understands the composition of different dishes and the theory of cooking, and, when the household is without domestics takes a responsible part as menagere.

She has her own allowance of pocket money and dress money and is taught the use of a bank account and a check book.

All this and much more does the athletic girl of culture today when she is the daughter of wise parents.

She does it because her parents, being wise, see in time that they render her happier in training her to be unselfish.

Fashion's Whims.

Berthas and bretelles still enjoy high favor.

Fichus, stoles and all kinds of collars are on the increase.

There is no diminution in the popularity of tucks and chirring.

Festooned flounces adorn most of the dinner dresses and evening gowns.

Silk mulls in Dolly Varden patterns are even more desirable than the lovely printed nets.

Spots are the smartest wear, and even a plain surface is best trimmed with circles of discs.

Taffeta is most practical for the shore where it is difficult to keep thin materials in good condition.

Reversible bodice fronts over fitted waist coats seem to be the prominent feature of autumn gowns.

Gowns of white English embroidery are generally made with a triple skirt, show as much edge as possible.

White Brussels net is a favorite with the best-gowned women, as it is durable, dainty and cleans charmingly.

A new method of trimming is an apron of lace set in the front and sometimes also in the back of the skirt.

KITCHEN HELPS.

After sweeping the carpet, rub it over with a cloth wrung out in vinegar and water, and if possible do not let it be walked upon until it is dry.
The quantity of vinegar is a teaspoonful to a pail of warm water, and this treatment often has a wonderfully good effect in reviving the faded color of an old carpet.

Do not allow white gloves to become too much soiled before having them cleaned. They have to be rubbed so hard to remove the soil

TO BE COMFORTABLE AT HOME.

The great secret of being comfortable at home, and making the other members of the family at ease is cleanliness. Keep the rooms free from dust, exclude strong sunlight, and you will have a delightfully cool house during the hot days; while in the winter air your rooms as much as possible, and always have the sun in your room at least for one hour.
Never allow any food to remain uncovered in dining room or pantry any length of time after meals and you will never have flies in the house.
Never leave remnants of food exposed that you intend for cat or dog.
Feed at once or cover their food up.
Keep your dining room and pantry open a few inches most of the time.
Darken your rooms and pantry when not in use. If there should be any flies they will go to the window when the room is darkened, where they are easily caught, killed or brushed out.

As soon as the lamp is lighted in the evening set it in a shallow milk pan in about four inches of water, and if there should be any millers in the room they will drop into the water.

Try to make your house as clean and airy as possible. And no matter how many people call they will also leave with a sense of having been refreshed. The housewife should always wear light garments in the summer and dark dresses in the winter, which look neat and appropriate.

CULTIVATING DISHRAGS.

A novel enterprise that of raising dishrags, is being exploited by a number of Southern California horticulturists, who received the inspiration for the scheme from Charles Richardson, whose gardens in Pasadena are becoming famous for their remarkable productions. Mr. Richardson has successfully raised many growth new to American soil, and this year is exceeding all his previous triumphs by raising thousands of dishrags.

Last year Mr. Richardson's string beans, which measured forty-three inches in length, crowded a stir, but dishrag vines, twine about orange trees, palms, evergreens and peach trees, and peek in at the two-story windows, bid fair to win the championship from the beans.

These dishrags, or vegetable sponges, as they are sometimes called, are indigenous to Africa, but now it has been demonstrated that they will thrive in this country they are bound to become a popular production.

The graceful, well foliaged vines are not only ornamental, but they bear in profusion a fibrous sponge that is eminently useful for bathing as well as for scouring pans and kettles. Imagine picking dishrags in one's garden just as one would pick blackberries or imagine having vines all laden with dishrags clambering over one's kitchen windows, so that all one needs to do is to stretch out an arm and pull one in. Such an arrangement would be much easier than going to the raging or buying dish-rags of stores.

These curious vegetables assume the form and appearance of cucumbers, and hang on the vines until their green coats become brown and dry like parchment. At this stage they are ready to harvest. After they are picked the brown coat is removed, and an extremely strong and compact fibrous sponge is revealed.

RECIPES.

Quince Jelly.—Wash the fruit, save all the nice parings and seeds, cook for an hour or more in more water than will cover them, then run them through the colander and let them sit until next day, or until the fruit substance has settled; now throw off the clear juice through a thin muslin bag and set on the fire, when boiling well add one pint of sugar to one pint of juice and boil until it rolls off the spoon; fill the jelly cups and let them set by the stove or any warm place a couple of days, without covers, so as to evaporate any water if the jelly is not stiff enough.

Sweet Toast.—Cut four slices of bread from a stale loaf and trim off crusts. Lay them in a deep dish, pour over a teacupful of milk with two lumps of sugar dissolved. Leave five minutes, then drain; fry a golden brown in butter. Place on a very hot dish, put a spoonful of jam on each slice and serve very hot. This is a nice change from ordinary puddings and very easily prepared.

can be a good husband who does not eat a good breakfast.

THE Clanton Bank has been organized with a capital stock of $50,000, all of which has been subscribed by local capitalists. The bank will do a general banking business, and will open up in the premises now occupied by The Banner, being ready for business as soon as the necessary alterations are made, probably about the middle of November.

Two weeks from next Tuesday is election day, and we would urge upon all the Democratic nominees that they devote the two weeks in getting out all over the county and make the claims of the Democratic party known to the voters. The campaign has been a remarkably quiet one, and it behooves the Democratic nominees to bestir themselves during these last two weeks. Victory is within our grasp but no exertion should be spared in making the victory a decisive one. Get out and work.

WITH this issue The Banner commences its thirteenth volume, and we desire to express our heartfelt thanks to the people of Chilton county for the liberal support given to the paper. As year after year has passed away our efforts to give the people a good county paper have been appreciated by a largely increasing subscription list, until we now number over 1250 subscribers, a number we believe far in excess of any other newspaper published in this section. The long sickness of the Editor this summer has demonstrated one fact of which we are particularly proud—if we have done no other good in the county, we have at least trained two Chilton county boys to where they are fully competent to conduct a newspaper and job printing office in a manner highly creditable to themselves and to the entire satisfaction of our patrons.

The increasing business of the paper and of the job printing department necessitates larger premises than those we now occupy, and we shall at once move into the brick building, No. 1 Sixth Street, opposite the court house, next to Smith & Middleton's law office, where we shall have room to enlarge the plant and make some considerable improvements in the paper.

With grateful thanks for past favors we start the new volume, promising to do all in our power to merit a continuance of your favor.

THE President knows, and we do not, whether he considered, earnestly, disinterestedly, and with care, the rights and wrongs of his Southern politics, or whether there is some ground for suspecting him of sharing Clarkson's view of the Southern vote. We do not wish to be held responsible for a rumor, in quoting the report that Clarkson spoke essentially thus in private: "It is not for the benefit of the Republican party to break the solid South. A solid South means a solid North. All we expect of a Southern Republican is that he shall obey orders." Whether General Clarkson ever put such sentiments into words or not, they harmonize with the principles on which his conduct has been based; and of the many unfortunate acts which Roosevelt's ambition has caused, none is more deplorable than his selection of Clarkson for a Federal office in order to keep him as general manager of his Southern politics, with Senator Lodge as philosopher and guide in the same large field. The use of Federal patronage to smash the Lily White faction in the South, by distributing it rather to men who control delegations to national conventions than to men who were locally acceptable, fits it well with the mere game theory of politics, which is the only side felt or understood by such men as Clarkson. Not until the President understands that the best view of Southern problems is the view of the best Southerners, will he be anything but a dire misfortune for that region—Collier's Weekly, October 8th.

Better than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Recreations of Cabinet Ministers.

It is probable that the recreations of of the cabinet ministers of the present time when on vacation are, however frivolous, slightly dissimilar from those of their eighteenth century predecessors. Fox, for instance, spent a morning in Bond street counting cats against the Prince of Wales, and as he chose the sunny side of the street he saw thirteen to the Prince's one and won the game. Lord Oxford, too, riding in his coach with Swift, used to count poultry with him all the way up to town, and whoever counted thirty-one first or saw a cat or an old woman was the winner. Lord Bolingbroke, joining them one day for the purpose of discussing European affairs, was at once interrupted by Oxford's saying, "Swift, I'm up; there's a cat!" and left them in disgust. As Swift wrote, "Such tattle often entertains my lord and me as far as Staines."—London Chronicle.

Dressmakers on the Street.

An odd fact about dressmakers is that nearly all of them have the same fault—on the street they cut their friends. A noted dressmaker said in explanation of this fact: "The street is to us dressmakers what a picture gallery is to artists—a grand storehouse of ideas. On the street we are always on the lookout for new fashions, and from the neck down we study every person that passes, for from one we may get a new skirt pattern, from another a new sleeve, from a third a new collar, and so on. We are never busier than when on the street; our eyes are never more alert, but they don't reach up to the face level; they can't spare the time from their study of dresses to go any higher than the neck. And hence on the street we cut impartially our mothers, our sisters, our best friends."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Good for Children.

The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives instant relief in all cases of Cough, Croup and LaGrippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. It draws out the inflamation, heals and soothes and cures permanently by enabling the lungs to contribute pure, life-giving and life-sustaining oxygen to the blood and tissues. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

BONE FOOD

Soft and crooked bones mean bad feeding. Call the disease rickets if you want to. The growing child must eat the right food for growth. Bones must have bone food, blood must have blood food and so on through the list.

Scott's Emulsion is the right treatment for soft bones in children. Little doses every day give the stiffness and shape that healthy bones should have.

Bow legs become straighter, loose joints grow stronger and firmness comes to the soft heads.

Wrong food caused the trouble. Right food will cure it.

In thousands of cases Scott's Emulsion has proven to be the right food for soft bones in childhood.

FARMING AND STOCK RAISING
THE CABBAGE SNAKE.

There has been so much superstition and foolish alarm over what has come to be called the "cabbage snake" that the trade in cabbage is paralyzed. Intelligent people should not be alarmed over these stories, for enough has been demonstrated to show that there is absolutely no danger arising from the use of cabbage because of the discovery of what is nothing more nor less than a new, harmless worm, as harmless as a chestnut worm, but less frequent.

But the press here submits the following, and asks its readers to pass this official statement around to neighbors so that the facts may be known and thus put a stop to all this foolishness:

State of Tennessee,
Department of Agriculture,
Nashville, Sept. 21, 1904

Owing to the recent alarm caused by rumors of poison from eating "cabbage snake," and realizing the great loss to the gardeners and dealers by the sudden and complete suspension of this industry, and in order to ascertain whether or not there was any foundation in fact for the rumors and reports which were being circulated about the phenomena, at the request of this department, Dr. LeRoy, Sate bacteriologist, made a thorough investigation and examination of the snake in all its aspects, a report of which is herewith submitted.

W. W. OGILVIE,
Commissioner.

DR. LEROY'S REPORT.

Nashville, Tenn., Sept. 1, 1904
"Hon. W. W. Ogilvie, State Commissioner of Agriculture, Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Sir—I have the honor herewith to submit my report upon investigations which I have undertaken under your direction, concerning the so called "cabbage snakes" which have recently attracted attention in this State. I have obtained a large number of specimens from nearly all parts of the State and find them to be identical. A few specimens of other forms of life have been sent to me in this connection, but these have been well known forms of insects. The "cabbage snake" has, within the past year or so, been reported from neighboring states—especially Georgia, South Carolina and Louisiana—and a large number of articles bearing upon the subject have appeared in the public press.

"The so called cabbage snake belongs to one of the lower orders of the family of Gordiidae, and the individual itself is known scientifically as 'Mermis Albicans.' This animal is neither snake nor insect, but one of the forms of worms. In its adult state it lives upon the cabbage leaf, but does not subsist upon it; so that the cabbage is in no wise injured by its presence. It lays its eggs in large numbers, which eggs are eaten by carterpillars; and in the body of the carterpillar they hatch, forming the embryo worm. These embryos grow at the expense of the carterpillar until they reach sexual maturity, when the body of the cartipillar is ruptured and the worms are set free to again live their external adult life. In this way they become quite a factor in the distruction of the carterpillar, and are to that extent beneficial to the cabbage crop.

POISON STORIES UNTRUE.

"I have entered into correspondence with localities from which cases of alleged poisoning from the eating of cabbage containing these worms have been reported, and find in every case that the reports are without foundation and that no authentic case can be cited. In order to determine whether or not the worm itself has any poisonous qualities I have carried on an extensive series of experiments upon rabbits, guinea pigs and the domestic animals, and find that they can all eat the worms raw or cooked with impunity. I have also made extracts from the worms with all the various solvents, which extracts were found to be entirely innocous, both internally and when injected hypodermically. Believing that possibly these worms might cause decomposition or fermentation in cabbage—with the production of poisonous substances, the result of decomposition—I allowed a sample of cabbage, raw and cooked, to decompose in the presence of the worms, and then tested these decomposed substances for poisonous properties as before, and found that in no case was any injurious substance produced. LOUIS LEROY.

His Mistake.

She—They say that a little learning is a dangerous thing. He—Yes, I guess it is. I found it so once. I stopped investigating when I found out how much property my first wife's father was supposed to own without going ahead and making inquiries as to his debts. But I'll never get taken in that way again.

Citation on Application to Sell Lands.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Probate Court.

To John O. Donovan and Claud B. Donovan:

Whereas, Beula Matthews, one of the heirs at law of the estate of Jerre Donovan, deceased, has filed her application in said Court for a sale of the lands described in said application, belonging to the estate of said decedent, upon the ground that said land cannot be equitably divided, and the 31st day of October, 1904, has been appointed for the hearing of said application.

You are, therefore, hereby commanded to appear before said Court on said 31st day of October, 1904, to contest said application if you think proper.

Witness my hand this 27th day of September, 1904. E. B. DEASON, Judge of Probate.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlains Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opion or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetanus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of Lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thursday.

SLOCUM COMMISSION

Appointed by Government Makes Report Placing Blame For Terrible Disaster

THREE HELD RESPONSIBLE

And President Takes Immediate Action—Fire Fighting Equipment Was Poor and Insufficient.

The report of the United States commission of investigation upon the disaster to the steamer General Slocum, appointed June 23d last and consisting of Lawrence O. Murray, assistant secretary of commerce and labor; Herbert K. Smith, deputy commissioner of corporations; George Uhler, supervising inspector general of the steamboat inspection service, General John Wilson, U. S. A. (retired), and Commander Cameron McR. Winslow, U. S. N., was made public Saturday.

In connection with the findings of the commission presented in the report, President Roosevelt, to whom the report was submitted, has written a letter to Secretary Victor H. Metcalf, of the department of commerce and labor, briefly summarizing the report and directing him to carry into effect the recommendations of the commission. He also directs that Robert S. Rodie, supervising inspector of the second district steamboat inspection service, and James F. Dumont and Thomas H. Barrett, local inspectors in charge of the port of New York, be discharged from the service, the commission holding them directly responsible for the laxity of the steamboat inspection to which the Slocum disaster was directly attributable.

Commissioner Uhler dissents to that portion of the report which places responsibility on the supervising inspector of the second district, Robert S. Rodie, otherwise he concurs with the commission. Appended to the report is a report from the department of justice on the criminal proceedings connected with the disaster and the life-preserver cases.

The report states that the Slocum was last inspected May 5, 1904, and that the current certificate of inspection at the time of the disaster was issued May 6th by James A. Dumont, inspector of hulls, and Thomas H. Barrett, inspector of boilers, the board of local inspectors at the port of New York. In describing the Slocum, the report says it was constructed entirely of wood, that the upper works were in a highly inflammable condition, and there were no fireproof hatches or bulkheads. The commission states that there are many similar vessels doing service in the United States, the construction of which is quite as dangerous.

Regarding the origin of the fire, the report states that the cabin where the blaze was discovered was filled with inflammable matter, including a large amount of oil.

"The condition of this cabin, with the purposes for which it was used," the report recites, "constitutes one of the essential facts of negligence contributing to the disaster."

Speaking of the fire-fighting apparatus the report says:

"The forward valve and standpipe were supplied with a 100-foot length of cheap unlined linen hose, costing probably less than 90 cents a foot, age unknown, but probably several years old."

The rest of the fire apparatus on the main deck is said to have consisted of the after valve of the said standpipe, two hand fire pumps and some twenty buckets.

Larceny the Charge.

Hon. Matt W. Gross, member of the legislature from McDuffie county, Georgia, was arrested at the request of his bondsmen. Some weeks ago Mr. Gross was arrested for larceny after trust. A party who had intrusted him with several hundred dollars while county school commissioner, to be loaned school teachers at interest, on which [illegible] school scrip, charged that he had appropriated the money to his own use. The warrant was sworn out when he failed to return the money. His bond was fixed at $600.

Shot in Church.

Clay Grubb, a prominent distiller, shot and instantly killed O. L. Davis, his brother-in-law and former business partner, at Piney church, Davidson county, S. C., Sunday afternoon.

Davis was attending service at church when Grubb walked up behind him and emptied three chambers of his revolver into his body. Grubb immediately surrendered to the authorities. There had been bad blood between the two for some time. Davis leaves a family and was a man of wealth.

Eight Houses Burned.

Fire in the quarters of the Adams cotton factory destroyed eight houses Sunday afternoon at Montgomery with a loss of $4,500.

At World's Fair.

The statement of the attendance at the world's fair shows the total attendance for last week to have been 939,774 and the total attendance since the opening of the fair 14,316,240.

FOUR SUFFOCATED

And Some of the Injured May Lose Their Lives.

Four persons were suffocated and others were overcome by smoke in a fire which gutted a three-story brick double tenement house at Williamsburg, N. Y. Two of the injured, a boy and a girl, probably will die.

Incendiarism is suspected.

The fire originated in the basement and ran up a dumb waiter shaft, causing the crowded flats to fill rapidly with smoke. The flames spread through the flats on the fourth and fifth floors and most of the persons living up there were cut off.

RIFLE PRACTICE.

Board Meeting to be Held This Month—Some of the Plans.

What will probably be the most important meeting of the national board for the promotion of rifle practice since that body was organized under act of congress several years ago will be held at the war department on the 22d of this month. The national board is composed of twenty-one members including five members from the regular army and navy establishment, eight trustees of the National Rifle association and eight members from the country at large. It was authorized by congress, which appropriated funds for the purchase of a national trophy to be shot for annually under regulations prepared by the board and fitted up a range at Fort Riley, Kans., where the shoot took place this year. The meeting of the national board is held at this time to pass upon the awards made at that contest. The board was also instructed to formulate a plan for a national marksman's reserve, which plan has been agreed upon and approved by the secretary of war.

At the coming meeting it is expected that steps will be taken for the preparation of a bill to be submitted to congress early in December, embodying, to some extent, at least, the plans of the board.

The board recommends the establishment of shooting galleries and field ranges; the distribution of arms and ammunition; supervision and instruction; inducement for practice, such as trophies, badges, etc., and the publication and distribution of literature bearing on this subject.

As an initial step in this direction the board recommends an annual appropriation of $1,000,000 for five years, to be expended in the purchase and equipment of ranges under the direction of the secretary of war. It is also very desirous that the standard military rifle in use by this government should be made available for civilian practice and it is probable some provision to this end will be made in the bill which the board will recommend.

GORED TO DEATH.

Boy Attempts to Ride a Young Bull and is Killed.

While attempting a daring ride, George Hughley, a bright young boy of 14 years, was gored to death by a maddened young bull, near his home at Graves mines, while his playmates looked on unable to lend assistance to their unfortunate companion.

Young Hughley and several of his playmates had caught a young bull and had tied a rope around the horns of the animal. In a spirit of fun George Hughley, who was the leader of the crowd, had the boys to tie him on the bull in order that he might "break" him to ride.

Astride of his new mount, everything went well for the first few yards of the ride, when the bull suddenly stopped and started off in a mad chase through the woods. By some means the rope slipped, throwing the rider, and the bull, instead of butting, appeared to be more ferocious. When the boy fell the bull, after dragging him for some distance, turned on the unhappy youth and began plunging his horns into the youth's body. The animal was shot, but the boy was dead when the rescuing party reached him.

Automobile Accident.

W. H. Yeatman, president and general manager of the Yeatman Printing company, was badly injured by an automobile accident near Jacksonville. He and his wife were out driving when the machine got from under his control and both were thrown from the vehicle. Mrs. Yeatman was uninjured, further than a shaking up, while Mr. Yeatman received a fracture of the skull and his back is sprained, besides other injuries. He may recover.

After Gamblers.

The outlook for the safety of the gambling promoters and sellers of whiskey on Sunday in Montgomery is not bright just now.

It is an open secret that the grand jury is moving every influence possible to bring about indictments against certain saloon men and one or two alleged hotels.

Sold Cotton.

The state of Mississippi has sold 1,400 bales of cotton, the product of the state farms, for $83,000. The total revenue from this source will be about $140,000.

Burned to Death.

Augusta, Ga., had a fire which cost the life of little Edward Griner, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Griner. A lamp exploded, catching a bed on which the child was resting.

NATIONAL FINANCES

Statement Shows Balance on Hand October 1, 1904. $151,414,162.

UNITED STATES TREASURER

Submits Annual Report to the Department—Expenditures Have Increased.

Ellis H. Roberts, treasurer of the United States, has submitted to Secretary Shaw his annual report on the transactions of the treasury during the fiscal year ended June 30, 1904.

The net ordinary revenues are shown to have been $540,631,749, a decrease of $19,764,945 as compared with 1903, and the net ordinary expenditures $582,402,321, an increase of $76,203,214. In the receipts the principal falling off was $23,205,017 in customs, while in the disbursements the important increases were $11,423,440 in commerce and labor, $607,888,560 in treasury proper, and $20,338,087 for the navy. Unusual expenditures were $50,000,000 on account of the Panama canal and $4,600,000 lent to the Louisiana Purchase Exposition company, which has now been nearly all repaid. But for these, the recorded deficiency of $41,770,571 would have been changed to a surplus of $12,829,428.

The redemptions of United States notes in gold amounted to $11,081,068 for the year and those of treasury notes to $474,126.

In consequence of the deficiency in the revenues, the cash in the offices of the treasury and mint declined during the year from $179,020,562 to $137,520,264 and by October 1 to $126,964,888. The available balance, including deposits in national banks and other credits, was $151,414,162 on October 1.

The actual gold coin in circulation October 1 is placed at $641,844,863 in coin and $486,512,139 in certificates.

Since July 1, 1900, there has been a growth of $463,091,852 in the money circulation. On October 1 the circulation reached a maximum of $31.16 for each person, and the proportion of gold to the whole was $44.03.

Under the Wheels.

John Wilson, a bridge carpenter, was run over and killed by a switch engine at Montgomery. The foreman of the bridge crew, D. McDermott, had a narrow escape from death. The bridge crew was at work on one of the tracks near the depot, when a train came along.

The men stepped out of the way of the train on to another track, on which the switch engine and cars were passing. Wilson was knocked down and McDermott knocked from the track. The whole train passed over Wilson and he was crushed to death. The dead man leaves a wife an eight children practically without support.

Did Not Explode.

Efforts to blow up the gin of Massey & Chitwood two miles from Oxford, failed of success. The gin was burned several weeks ago and had been rebuilt and new machinery installed. In order to test this machinery a fire was started in the boilers. In a short time the explosion followed, but no one was injured. In clearing away the debris an unexploded dynamite bomb is claimed to have been found under the boiler.

Bank Consolidation.

The comptroller of currency has approved the conversion of the People's Bank of Sylacauga into the Merchants and Planters' National Bank of Sylacauga, with $50,000 capital.

Record Broken.

Rear Admiral C. F. Goodrich's flagship, New York, during her target practice last month in Magdalena bay, Mexico, broke the world's record for firing 8-inch guns, making the greatest scores, based on time and accuracy, ever made with guns of this calibre either in our own or any other navy.

Fatal Fall.

Charles Tinder, the 10-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Tinder, who live on Fountain Heights, fell from a persimmon tree. He struck on his head and the bone was badly crushed and broken.

Educational Fund.

The state auditor has certified to the superintendent of education the exact amount that will be available for educational purposes in the state for the scholastic year beginning October 1. The total is $1,041,560.97.

New County Pike Road.

Madison county has constructed a new pike east of Gurley to the Jackson county line and the Jackson county officials will extend their system a mile and a half to that point, forming the connecting link of the public road systems of the two counties and making a line of pike continuous from Bridgeport to Madison, which is believed to be the longest stretch of pike in Alabama.

SOLDIERS KILLED.

Premature Explosion of a Mortar at Target Practice.

Three United States soldiers were killed and eight were injured, one fatally, by the premature explosion of powder as a ten-inch mortar was being loaded at Fort Banks, Winthrop, Mass.

The artillerymen were having the customary morning practice in the mortar battery, which overlooks the entrance to Boston harbor. One shot had been fired and the gun was being reloaded for a second trial. As the breech block was being closed there came a premature explosion in the powder chamber of the mortar. The breech was blown from the gun and every man of its crew became a victim of the accident.

MEDALS FOR ALABAMA.

State Secures Several Prizes at the World's Fair.

At St. Louis the jury of awards has announced the following awards for the Alabama exhibit: Commercial Club of Birmingham, gold medal; Vulcan, silver medal, on white marble; Alabama geological survey and clays, gold and silver medals; Alabama Portland Cement company, bronze medal; Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, silver medal; state of Alabama on collective exhibit, gold medal.

The last award is understood to have been made because the exhibit so well represents the mineral resources of the state.

Iron Going Up.

The iron maket is strong with an upward tendency. There is talk of $11 for No. 2 foundry and sales for quick delivery were made at that price.

Conservative manufacturers say they would like to see prices advance slowly but surely, rather than rapidly. But the demand for foundry iron is so strenuous just now that a much higher level of market value seems inevitable in spite of conservative views or expressions.

Not only will Alice be lighted, but the little Williamson, which only comes to life when iron is high, will be in blast if the pig market continues on its upward course.

Shooting at Selma.

R. L. Olive, superintendent of the International Ice company, Selma, was hailed by two men at a point opposite the old B. S. & N. O. depot.

Mr. Olive, who was on his wheel, stopped and dismounted and the two men declared that they had not called him, and the parties began to abuse him. A quarrel ensued and Mr. Olive was shot.

The ball entered below the right nipple entering the chest and piercing the lungs and liver. The physicians state that the wound is serious and may result fatally.

BIG LAND SALE.

Six Hundred Thousand Acres Transferred to Chicago Lumber Co.

What is doubtless the biggest land deal ever consummated in Mississippi was closed when 600,000 acres of pine lands located in Harrison and Pearl River counties, passed out of the hands of the Comstock Brothers and others into the possession of the Edward Hinds Lumber company, of Chicago. The price paid has not been made public, but it is understood that it was more than $2,000,000. The transaction has been pending several months.

Reduction Accepted.

The miners of District No. 19, Tennessee, decided by a vote of 35 to 25 to accept the 7 per cent reduction offered by the operators. There were 61 delegates present and about 96 miners on hand.

Confederate Horse Claims.

The quartermaster general's office has paid 1,393 claims under the Confederate horse bill, amounting to $160,826, of these three hundred were paid during September and October. The total appropriation is $225,000 and it will likely not be sufficient to meet all the claims.

Champion Lady Golf Player.

Miss Georgianna Bishop, of the Brooklawn Country club, Bridgeport, Conn., won the national woman's championship by defeating Mrs. Sanford, of the Essex Country club of Orange.

Quarantine Withdrawn.

Governor Blanchard, of Louisiana has today issued the usual proclamation withdrawing the quarantine restrictions of the state against the yellow fever and other epidemic-infested districts.

President's Uncle Ill.

Robert B. Roosevelt, uncle of the president, is dangerously ill at his country home near Saltville, L. I. Mr. Roosevelt is 80 years old. He was minister to the Netherlands during President Cleveland's first administration.

Attempted Suicide.

George B. Warner, [illegible] Pulaski Leeds, superintendent of machinery of the Louisville and Nashville road, cut his throat in the county jail. His condition is serious.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED "THE VALUE OF OBEDIENCE."

Preached by the Rev. Joseph Dana Burrell, of Brooklyn, N. Y.—The Way to Power Shown by Convincing Arguments—Christ Our Great Pattern.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—In the Clinton Avenue Presbyterian Church the pastor, the Rev. Joseph Dana Burrell, preached Sunday morning on "The Value of Obedience." The text was from Philippians ii, 8, 9: "He humbled Himself and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross. Wherefore God also hath highly exalted Him and given Him a name which is above every name." Mr. Burrell said:

From this passage we learn that through obedience our Lord Jesus Christ attained His surpassing glory. He won His exaltation not by expecting His own will but by submitting to the will of God.

On this point He is representative of humanity. For all men everywhere obedience is the way to rise. Whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant.

Obedience thus becomes a most essential part of education, whether in the home or the school. There is something deplorable about the household where the children do not mind or the lecture hall where the instructor has no control. It is a hard discipline for us to have to submit our will to another's. Such is the Roman conception of home training. Such was the method of Christ's bringing up.

Professor Huxley had great influence upon current ideas of education and, perhaps, the most eloquent words he ever wrote were those in which he set forth this idea, that the test of education is to learn how to obey. "That man," he says, "has had a liberal education, who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will, and does with ease and pleasure all the work that, as a mechanism, it is capable of, whose intellect is a clear, cold, logic engine, with all its parts of equal strength, and in smooth working order, ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work, and upon the gossamers, as well as forge the anchors of the mind, whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundamental truths of nature and of the laws of her operations; one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to heel by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience, who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art, to hate all vileness, and to respect others as himself. Such an one and no other, I conceive, has had a liberal education, for he is, as completely as a man can be, in harmony with nature. He will make the best of her, and she of him. They will get on together nicely, she as his ever beneficent mother, he as her mouthpiece, her conscious self, her minister and interpreter."

But it is not enough to learn obedience theoretically in one period of education. We must perpetuate it as a habit all through our years, for it is the only way to success in life. Obedience is not for its own sake, but in order that through it we may come to be our best selves. We accept law as the predetermined condition of life, surrender ourselves to it, and by yielding win true liberty.

Agesilaus of Sparta knew how to govern because he had first learned how to obey, according to the old saying. The present Emperor of Germany and King of Italy, brilliant examples of successful monarchs, were trained with a severity that some of our boys would think cruel. There was once a hard worked employe of the New York street car system. He is now its head. There was once a private soldier who had to submit to all the narrow restrictions of the most subordinate rank in the army; he is now our commander in the Philippines.

We take away harmful things from our children that later on they may know enough to deprive themselves of them. They are made to take care of their bodies that they may keep the laws of health when they need it for life's work. They are given good books to read that they may prefer such when they are free to read what they will. They are shielded from bad associations and thrown into the company of clean, true, honorable boys and girls so that when they are out in the world fighting their own battles they may choose the friendship of the good and shun that of the base.

Some parents are afraid to have their children arrive at the age of self control. Yet, what is the good of education? "The aim of your discipline," said Herbert Spencer, "should be to produce a self-governing being; not to produce a being to be governed by others." It is a joy to have obedient children, but it ought to be a greater joy when they are become true-hearted men and women, and are out in the world carrying on the business of life. Then the object of education is secured and the condition of success is satisfied.

On the other hand, moral failure is due to not having learned how to obey, and so not knowing how to rule.

When a girl says to herself: "When I have a home of my own you will see how differently I shall do things," When a boy thinks, "Just wait until I am twenty-one and I will be free for myself," you may know that the seed of the Dead Sea fruit is already sown.

A woman whose family were in want was given $25 by a friend. Instead of purchasing necessities with this providential present she used it in having the photographs of the entire household taken. There was an example of one who did not deserve to be grown up. She did not know how to control her own life. She had never learned that the only way to live worthily is to obey the great principles of duty. She merely followed her whims.

I heard this summer of a young man who a year ago was flying around Long Island in his automobile, dazzling the natives with his reckless expenditure of a newly acquired fortune. Today he is said to be clerking in a store. He did not know how to be rich, he had not learned self-control. Quite rightly he has been set back again in his proper place.

Oscar Wilde was a young scholar of extraordinary brilliance. His essay on "The Decay of Lying," for example, was marvelously suggestive. But he never learned to obey. He omitted himself, to love the right, on the contrary by following his own will and seeking pleasure without regard to duty he made of himself a social outcast and died a beggar's death in Paris.

It makes no difference what ability, position or opportunity one has, if he does not know how to obey he is on the road to ruin.

Moreover, this condition of obedience is the permanent law of life. Neither in this nor any other world is it abolished. The mother warns her baby not to touch the stove. The little one disobeys and is burned. He grows to be a man. He emerges from his mother's control. No one advises him now to keep away from the stove. He can put his finger on it if he will. But if he does he will be burned again.

So it is in the moral life. As children we were restricted by others from wrongdoing, and if we persisted in seeking to accomplish it we suffered. Now we are grown and no one hinders us. We can sin if we choose. But if we do we shall have to bear the consequences just the same.

The issue is not as to whether we shall be under God's law or not, but only whether we shall obey them or not, in either case receiving the results of our deeds. [illegible] that shall he also reap.

The man who abandons himself to the indulgence of appetite, violating the laws of nature, destroys his life. His indulgence defeats itself. While he obeys God's laws finds them his servants, ministers of health, prosperity and usefulness.

Now is the time of those [illegible] fulfilled. Those [illegible] shall serve Him." Those [illegible] is gradually fulfilled. Those [illegible] heart sang forever [illegible] heaven.

NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Philadelphian who complained on the thirteenth of the month that another man had used thirteen ways to alienate his wife's affections probably attaches some importance to the thirteen superstitions, says the New York World.

Another illustration of the effect of late hours is shown by the automobile out at St. Louis that undertook to climb a tree at 2 a. m. An automobile will always do its best to show its owner that it is not above enjoying a lark with him, declares the New York Tribune.

An Indian chief in British Columbia bought a coffin and a keg of powder and then proceeded to blow himself to pieces. His relatives are now wondering what he wanted with the coffin.

Artlessness is held to be the prerogative of childhood. But why should so valuable a jewel be denied older people? Is there any virtue that is really unbecoming an adult? asks the Burlington Hawkeye.

The man who says "Oh, fudge," when he feels profane may be a better example to the children, but somehow it doesn't seem that he would be as much of a protection against burglars in the night, declares the New Haven Union.

A Smithsonian Institution authority has predicted that within a few centuries the blonde type will have disappeared entirely, and the Boston Transcript adds that New York business men are helping along the fulfillment of the prediction by giving employment only to brunette stenographers.

The interesting announcement was made at the congress of geographers in this city that there are depressions in the floor of the Pacific Ocean more than 29,000 feet deep, says the New York Tribune. Into one of them, then, the tallest mountain in the world could be plunged and be entirely submerged—with room for a deep-draught vessel to sail overhead without danger of grounding.

What has King Alfonso been doing that he prepares such a big sop for his conscience as the enforcement of bluer laws than we in Boston have had for the keeping of Sunday? He certainly must have been cutting up "some thing awful" to undertake such a penance as this, says the Boston Transcript.

Oil is accomplishing wonders for the comfort of railway travellers and of those who live along the steel highways. It lays the dust on the roadbed and annihilates the mosquitoes of its neighborhood at the same time.

It is announced that the menacing third rail is to be covered from one end of the subway to the other, so that no possibility can it become a source of accidents. On every railroad line, surface elevated or depressed, the formidable current ought to be shut in so that it can cause no fatalities, says the New York Tribune in commenting on the statement.

Managers of Western railways will arm engineers firemen and trainmen of the passenger trains, the New York World states. The success and frequency of hold-ups has called for some action and it is believed that arming the trainmen will insure some protection.

A little application of the old-fashioned maxim about the wisdom of going to bed early might do a good deal toward solving the problem of the city child's nervousness, opines the Chicago News.

Rear-Admiral Watson was retired, having reached the age of 62 years, but the Japanese field marshals, one of whom is 65 years old and the other 66, continue to do good work, as does General Nodzu, at 63, and other officers above the retiring age in the United States. Sixty-two years is too young, as a rule, for a man to retire from active service, the Philadelphia Press declares.

In California recently the National Guardsmen and regulars were in camp together for a week. The Guardsmen returned to their homes with painfully sore feet and doleful tales of overwork and abuse by martinets.

At the close of the Manassas maneuvers, one-half the troops participating were reported practically used up by the fatigues of the week's operations. They may think with interest of what might have happened to them had they been engaged in the Hao Yang maneuvers instead of those at now peaceful Bull Run, says the Buffalo Courier.

If only this discovery of a trafficking in foreign titles had come sooner, perhaps we might have been spared some talk about international marriages for a coronet," the Boston Transcript declares. Why should a thrifty millionaire pay a good slice out of his fortune for the sake of getting a touch of crested notes-of-hand into the family, at the further sacrifice of his daughter's well being, possibly, when he can purchase a German baronetcy for $10,000 or a trifle more, but still very respectable degree of nobility for $20,000, to say nothing of Spanish and Portuguese mark-downs? Certainly here is a laudable enterprise being nipped in the bud.

CURE YOUR KIDNEYS.

When the Back Aches and Bladder Troubles Set In, Get at the Cause.

Don't make the mistake of believing back ache and bladder ills to be local ailments. Get at the cause and cure the kidneys. Use Doan's Kidney Pills which have cured thousands.

Captain S. D. Hunter, of Engine No 14, Pittsburg Paid Fire Department, and residing at 2729 Wylie avenue, says:

"It was three years ago that I used Doan's Kidney Pills for an attack of kidney trouble that was mostly back ache, and they fixed me up fine. There is no mistake about that, and if I should ever be troubled again I would get them first thing, as I know what they are."

The Alternative.

The Rev. Geo. C. Wright, who for eighteen years has been a city missionary in Lowell, Mass., tells an interesting story of his efforts to prevent young mill operatives from marrying before their wages would support a home.

A young man who had not yet attained the voting age, and who frequently had attended the evening services at the ministry at large, called at his office one morning and told him that he had been keeping company with a girl for several weeks and wanted to marry her at once.

The clergyman found that his wages left him a margin of only $3 over his board, and advised him to wait for a year before taking the matrimonial step. The young man was reluctant to accept the advice, but finally agreed to think the matter over for six months.

Mr. Wright lost sight of him soon afterward, and did not come across him again in several months. Then the following conversation took place:

"Well, John, how are you getting along in the mill?"

"All right. I've got a steady job and am doing well."

"And how about the marriage?"

"Oh, I gave that up."

"What was the matter?" asked the clergyman, seeing, as he thought, the fruit of his advice.

"Well," replied the young man, seriously, "I bought a bicycle instead."—Galveston Tribune.

Queen Alexandra's Cat Fancy.

It is well known that Queen Alexandra, England's well-beloved Queen, is an expert dog fancier, but that she is also a cat fancier has not been at all well known until very recently. In fact, the special liking for cats that her Majesty has lately displayed threatens to supplant entirely her fancy for blue ribbon dogs.

She found that her dog breeding was so widely known and so generally copied that she decided to drop that and go in for raising tabbies. In pursuance of her policy of thoroughness, Queen Alexander at once secured a small army of the best breeds. These cats are much in evidence at Buckingham Palace, Windsor and Sandringham. To friends desirous of possessing a cat of exalted pedigree the Queen is most generous, giving freely of her host of felines.

Six cats are the favorites of the Queen, one, Sandy—so named because born at Sandringham—a valuable Persian, being the particular favorite and traveling as constantly with his mistress for the past several months as ever the King's celebrated Irish terrier Jack did. The feline proteges of Alexandra find no favor in the sight of Edward VII., for he cordially detests them all.—Illustrated Sporting News.

Goat Raising in France.

Among the French mountaineers the rearing of kids for the sake of their skins is a leading industry. Softness, delicacy of texture and freedom from blemish are the chief factors in the value of kidskins, and to secure these essentials great pains are taken. So soon as the kids are old enough to eat grass the skin begins to decline in quality as it grows coarser and harder in texture, and thus its chief merit disappears. The kid is therefore penned, not only to prevent it from eating grass, but also to protect the skin from accidental injury, through scratches and bruises, which would, of course, impair its value. At a certain age, when the skins are in the best condition for the use of the glover, the kids are killed and the hides sold to peddlers, through whose agency they reach the great centres of the tanning industry.

A Mariner's Charity.

Emile Robin, the aged vice-president of the French Society for Saving the Shipwrecked, has not only done a great deal for this association, but he also assists similar societies in other countries. At the recent meeting of the allied German society it was announced that M. Robin had again sent a handsome sum—$7000—the interest on which was to be divided among old mariners and widows and orphans.

Cholera germs and typhoid germs have been thrown into coffee and the aromatic drink has not once failed to kill the germs within an hour.

OCUS ANTIQUES.

Modern Methods of Deceiving a Gullible Public.

William Le Queux notes an amazing growth in Italy of the manufacture of counterfeit antiques.

He says he has stood in more than one sculptor's studio and seen "age" given to marble by a newly discovered process which in twelve hours will give to a statue 500 times its true value. The greater part of this output is said to be shipped to New York.

According to Mr. Le Queux the largest profit is, however, made on arms and pictures. The armory where the greater part of the "ancient" arms sold by dealers in Italy is forged is in a back street in Leghorn. Here in a couple of tumbledown old blacksmith shops every conceivable kind of armor is made, from the fourteenth century helmet or breastplate to "ancient" gauntlets, halberds, swords and daggers.

"I have watched these swords being stamped with the marks of monograms of the well-known Spanish armorers of the sixteenth century," writes Mr. Le Queux, "the coronet in a shield of Domingo, the crossed scissors of Sanchez, the half-moon of Julian Martin, or the star of Gil de Alman, together with good 'selling' Latin inscriptions, or owners' names with dates. I have stood by and seen how the steel is treated with acids, how the bronze hilts are painted with some solution to render them old, and how they are placed in troughs of damp earth to induce rust and patina before being sold to the dealers at so much a dozen assorted."

DR. EARL S. SLOAN 615 ALBANY ST. BOSTON MASS.

Mrs. Haskell, Worthy Vice Templar, Independent Order Good Templars, of Silver Lake, Mass., tells of her cure by the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: Four years ago I was nearly dead with inflammation and ulceration. I endured daily untold agony, and life was a burden to me. I had used medicines and washes internally and externally until I made up my mind that there was no relief for me. Calling at the home of a friend, I noticed a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My friend endorsed it highly and I decided to give it a trial to see if it would help me. It took patience and perseverance for I was in bad condition, and I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nearly five months before I was cured, but what a change, from despair to happiness, from misery to the delightful exhilarating feeling health always brings. I would not change back for a thousand dollars, and your Vegetable Compound is a grand medicine.

"I wish every sick woman would try it and be convinced."—MRS. IDA HASKELL, Silver Lake, Mass. Worthy Vice Templar, Independent Order of Good Templars.

When a medicine has been successful in more than a million cases, is it justice to yourself to say, without trying it, "I do not believe it would help me"?

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, and sick and discouraged, exhausted with each day's work. You have some derangement of the feminine organism, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as surely as it has others.

Mrs. Tillie Hart, of Larimore, N. D., says:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM: I might have been spared many months of suffering and pain if I had known of the efficacy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a few months sooner, for I tried many remedies without finding anything which helped me before I tried the Vegetable Compound. I dreaded the approach of the menstrual period every month as it meant much suffering and pain. Some months the flow was very scanty and others it was profuse, but after I had used the Compound for two months I became regular and natural, and so I continued until I felt perfectly well, and the parts were strengthened to perform the work without assistance and pain. I am like a different woman now, where before I did not care to live, and I am pleased to testify as to the good your Vegetable Compound has done for me." Sincerely yours, MRS. TILLIE HART, Larimore, N.D.

Be it, therefore, believed by all women who are ill that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they should take. It has stood the test of time and it has hundreds of thousands of cures to its credit. Women should consider it unwise to use any other medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham, whose address is Lynn, Mass, will answer cheerfully and without cost all letters addressed to her by sick women. Perhaps she has just the knowledge that will help your case—try her to-day—it costs nothing.

THE WORLD Elected Cleveland.

"It may be said without reservation that if the Democratic party in my first campaign had lacked the forceful and potent advocacy of Democratic principles at that time by the NEW YORK WORLD the result might have been reversed."—Grover Cleveland's Letter to The World, May 10, 1903.

Bryan on THE WORLD.

"THE WORLD never during the last twenty years considered itself a party paper. It promised to spread truly Democratic principles and truly Democratic ideas, and it has done so, and will do so, with entire independence of bosses, machines and platforms, following only the dictates of its conscience."—Quoted, with approval, by William J. BOTH SIDES OF THE GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE FULLY AND FAIRLY GIVEN.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were submerged and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has rioted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wisely, bravely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Turn the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-breeding tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to cut short the insane rivalry with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for the [illegible] arbitrary ruler, to restore economy and integrity in government, to [illegible] combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to discourage the [illegible] climatization of the American flag in any country in which [illegible] gundence is a seditious document. To the attainment of these ends [illegible] pledges all its energies.

To encourage the prompt formation of clubs for the campaign, a special commission of 50 per cent will be allowed to clubs of ten or more to one person forming clubs of ten or more to one address.

An active agent wanted in every county in the United States. Write for particulars.

The Blood of Man and Apes.

Between the blood of man and apes there are many points of similarity and evidences of a distinct relationship, but the blood of monkeys can readily be distinguished from that of men. The difference is more or less marked, according to the species, the greatest resemblance being seen in the case of the gorilla and the least with the lemurs, a small species about the size of a cat and having a face somewhat like a fox. A singular fact is that, judged by the blood, there is less evidence of relationship found in the American families of apes than in those of the old world.—Harper's Weekly.

Our niece, who had Consumption in an advanced stage, also used this wonderful medicine and today she is perfectly well." Desperate throat and lung diseases yield to Dr. King's New Discovery as to no other medicine on earth. CURES STOMACH TROUBLES

THE body gets its life from food properly digested. Healthy digestion means pure blood for the body, but stomach troubles arise from carelessness in eating and stomach disorders upset the entire system. Improperly masticated food sours on the stomach, causing distressing pains, belching and nausea. When over-eating is persisted in the stomach becomes weakened and worn out and dyspepsia claims the victim.

Thedford's Black-Draught cures dyspepsia. It frees the stomach and bowels of congested matter and gives the stomach new life. The stomach is quickly invigorated and the natural stimulation results in a good appetite, with the power to thoroughly digest food.

You can build up your stomach with this mild and natural remedy. Try Thedford's Black-Draught today. You can buy a package from your dealer for 25c. If he does not keep it, send the money to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and a package will be mailed you.

Estray Notice.

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
To all whom this may concern:

Take notice that on or about the 10th of September, 1904, a certain light bay mare mule, found estray, was taken up by C. L. Estray Notice.

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
To all whom this may concern:

Take notice that on or about the 10th of September, 1904, a certain light bay mare mule, found estray, was taken up by [illegible] value of which animal has been duly [illegible] according to law by two disinterested freeholders, summoned by E. F. Fuller, a Justice of the Peace for said county, and duly sworn to appraise and that said appraisers have duly appraised said Justice the value of said animal to be Two Hundred dollars, together with the following description: A light bay mare mule, about nine years old, fourteen hands high, weight about 800 pounds, with collar marks on breast and big [illegible] eastern and joint of left hind leg.

LET THE PEOPLE RULE.

VOL. XIII — CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1904 — NO. 2

A MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The last week of the campaign opens us and the people of Chilton will have an opportunity to hear some good speaking on live issues that will interest them. Congressman Bowie, whose speeches are always good and instructive, will make several appointments in different parts of the county; ex-Gov. Jelks, an old favorite, speaks at Clanton next Tuesday, and popular Tom Cunningham at Thorsby next Wednesday. What does the opposition offer? Absolutely nothing!

Clanton, Oct. 24th, 1904

Editor Banner: As the duties of office have and will prevent me from seeing the people of the county during this campaign as I wished to do; and in as much as some are very diligent in their misrepsentations of me, I take this method of addressing a few words to the citizens of Chilton county. I have hoped, until recently, that it would not be necessary for me to make the statements and explanations that will be found in this article. I know, and have known all the time, that some people oppose me politically—and I say politically because I am sure it cannot be other than political—but I was, and am willing for the people to judge or pass upon my political career when the same is openly, truthfully and honestly presented to them. I believe in honesty and fair dealing in politics as well as in any other business, and I believe in conducting a campaign upon high plains and not by appealing to predjudice, by continually asserting things that are untrue, and of that character of stuff which will arouse the prejudice side of man's nature. Some who oppose the Democratic ticket, are active in explaining to the people just how ungrateful I have been because I "quit the party that elected me to the Clerk's office" six years ago. This is untrue and those fellows know it. They, the leaders of the Populist party, wanted me to go into the Republican party, and because I did not do it, tney have had a cordial dislike for me ever since.

I have never been sorry or ashamed that I voted with the Populists and was elected to office by that party, but when some, who posed as leaders, began making speeches declaring that the Populists should align themselves with the Republican party; and had an election held to see whether or not the Populist should go into the Republican; and when it was ascertained by such election that the Populist should retain their organization, and then and there nominated a ticket, and that set of nominees, during the same day, and in the same hall, went into a Republican convention and were nominated as Republicans, then and there I stopped. After due and mature deliberations I decided it would be best for me, believing as I do and did in the principles of Democracy, as taught by those who were true Populist, to join the Democratic party, hence you see the heinous sin I committed, about which some of the opposition are having so much to say. I did not want to become a Republican, and I never thought a man who had once affiliated with the Populist party must become a Republican, or else forever be held before the people as one who had been disloyal to his friends and utterly incapable of appreciating a kindness bestowed upon him. When a man leaves the Populist party and goes to the Republican party, and serves that party in an official capacity, some would, he would, have you think that he had never belonged to any but the one party (Populist) and that he had performed the most righteous act of his life. Which goes farther from the true principles of Populism, the one who goes to the Democratic party or one who goes to the Republican party?

When I reached my majority and had the opportunity of exercising the highest privilege of a citizen as to the civil government of his country, that of casting his ballot for a public servant, I was advised by every voter of my neighborhood to vote the Populist ticket, which I did. But never did I hear them preaching Republicanism, no, not at all, but on the other hand, they were claiming to be the real Simon pure, Jeffersonian Democrats, and today they, but only a few of them I am glad to say, are doing everything they can against the Democratic party. That is alright if they have honest convictions that it is for the best interest of the country, but where, in the name of all reason, fairness and common honesty, is the justice in their continued cry that "Deason quit the party?" For it is a fact, as shown by the publication of the notice of the primary election held on the 26th day of July last, that the opposition to Democracy, quit the Populist party, or Peoples party, or both, and ran as Independants, subject to the Peoples primary. They did not want to name it any party, thereby hopeing to gain a few votes from any and all factions. They had nothing th hold to and presented nothing to the people but their desire for office, and wanted nothing but office, as the nominees have since shown by having themselves nominated under the name of every political faction, caucus, or assembly that they could get together, and some of the same individuals participated in making each of said nominations.

I am willing to deal fair with everyone and certainly accord to everyone the right to his opinion, and have the highest respect for him when he is conscientious in that opinion, and only ask him to extend to me the same privilege and respect.

I have always let the people know my politics and I am not going over the country claiming that I represent the Peoples party, the Republican party and the Populist party. I have not had myself nominated by three or four parties, factions, caucuses or assemblies and trying to represent the whole business. Neither have I called the Democratic party of Chilton county together, or any members of it, at Clanton, Thorsby or any other place, for the purpose of having myself nominated under different names in order to get on the ticket in more than one place. When I ran for Circuit Clerk, to which office I was elected by a handsome majority, which fact I appreciate to this day, I promised the people an honest and faithful performance of my duties. This promise I have kept and have the consciousness of knowing that I have wronged no one out of the value of anything, or paid him an unkindnes or discourtesy. I performed my duty faithfully and fearlessly, knowing no party or politics in my official capacity. This shall be my policy if elected in November.

Democratic tricks! After all the turns and twists made by the opposition it is to be hoped that the nominees for office, and others who are actively concerned, will have no more to say about Democratic tricks. However, we find some people are trying to make it appear that there is a hideous monster in some secret recess of the Democratic party that will spring forth from his silent musings just in time to defeat every act or effort of those who oppose the Democratic party. We know the opposition who are preaching such unwarranted and scarecrow doctrine do not believe their own statements. I say opposition, as I do not know which name they prefer, therefore will not mention either, as I want to be correct, and do not want to misrepresent them.

Believing in the wisdom, honesty and fairness of the citizens of my County, I am,

Most respectfully,
E. B. DEASON.

THE BANNER.

Published Weekly

CLANTON, ALA.

"Warships That I Have Met" is the title of an intensely interesting brochure by Admiral Skrydloff and dedicated to the late and famous McGinty, says the Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

The town of Wareham, Mass., has not only voted four hundred dollars for the suppression of crime, but has made the opposition contribute by deciding to pay the money from the fines received from the evil-doers.

The average monthly salary for school teachers, taking the United States as a whole, is said to be about $49 for men and $39 for women, and yet any one of them may be called upon to teach some brand-new subject when the schools reopen.

Andrew Kendall of Bluffton, Ind., bought an automobile. It cost him $600. He has now filed a petition in bankruptcy. Upon his $600 machine he has expended more than $2,000 in repairs. It is an old saying that a horse "will soon eat his head off," but the automobilist in many cases finds this to be far too weak a figure to apply to his own expenses roll, the Pathfinder remarks.

Pity the babies of a presidential year, declares the Baltimore American. Through life they will have to stagger under the burden of names other men have made famous, and they can neither live up to them nor live them down. It is like a brand of nonentity stamped upon those who otherwise might have lived peacefully, in respectable mediocrity among thousands of their unmarked fellows.

We are coming now to see not only that "sickness is felony," but that pestilences will soon be taken to be tokens of stupidity on the part of those who allow them to spread and foster among the habitations of men. Soon, also, an unhealthy region, which by the silent threats of invisible guardians challenges civilization, will be sought as a happy hunting ground for science and humanity.

It is a significant fact that America whose contributions to contemporary art are often deemed slight and inadequate, contains at least one musical composer of the first rank. Edward MacDowell's "unique" talents are analyzed by Lawrence Gilman, the musical critic of Harper's Weekly, in a recent issue of The North American Review, and his compositions are declared by this authority to possess "an inevitable felicity, a graphic neatness and beauty, an imaginative intensity and lyric fervor which exist nowhere in external tone-painting save in Mr. MacDowell's own work."

The possible revenue value of State forests is interestingly illustrated in Consul Monaghan's report on the earnings of the government forests of Saxony. These forest lands have been increased by purchase and reforestation from 373,121 acres in 1843 to 434,896 acres in 1903. The cost of the additional area has amounted to the comparatively large sum of $4,500,000, but the increase of net annual income from the sale of timber has been from $419,000 in 1846 to $2,128,500 in 1901. This very appreciable item of state revenue was obtained not only without the denudation of the forest lands but with an attendant increase of resources, the supply of standing timber rising from 34,400,000 yards in 1850 to 35,500,000 in 1900.

"The skin of toads and salamanders," says The Monthly Journal of Pharmacy, "has lately been submitted to microscopical examination by Mr. Schuls, who finds that there are two kinds of glands present in the skin of these animals, viz., mucous and poisonous glands. The former are present all over the body; the latter are confined to the back of the body and limbs and the ear region behind the eyes; and in the salamander are present at an angle of the jaw. The poison glands are larger than the mucous glands in the salamander, are oval, and have a dark granular appearance, due to strongly refractive drops of poison, a great reagent for which is copper haematoxylin. The poison is secreted by epithelial cells lining the glands, and when the animal is stimulated by electricity, it is exuded slowly in drops by the toad, but discharged in a fine jet, sometimes to the distance of a foot or more by the salamander. The anaesthetic action of the poison of the toad and the use to which it is put in medicine by the Chinese have frequently been pointed out."

THE WANDERING ALBATROSS.

Sometimes Measures Seventeen Feet From Tip to Tip.

Of all the strange creatures seen by travelers not the least interesting is the wandering albatross. This great, feathered wanderer sometimes measuring seventeen feet from tip to tip of his wings, will follow a ship for days at a time. Some travelers and sailors declare that they have seen a particular bird fly for weeks at a time without ever being seen to alight upon the waves.

It not merely follows the ship, but wheels in great circles around it and above it, high in the air, as if to show that it is not tired. Sometimes the bird will be seen to hang in the air with its wings apparently motionless and the sailors say that then it is asleep.

Not only in pleasant weather will the albatross follow a ship for days and weeks, but through the most terrific storms it will continue its untiring flight. In fact, to find an albatross otherwise than on the wing is like finding a weasel asleep.

Once a year the female albatross flies away a few thousand miles to the great lonely island rock of Tristan d'Acunba, which lifts its desolate head far in the South Atlantic, or to some equally remote place, and there lays one egg in the hollow of a rock.

The albatross has always been a bird of mystery, and in ancient times the people believed that these unwearying sea birds were the companions of the Greek warrior Diomedes, who were said to have been changed into birds at the death of their chief.

When America was discovered and ships began to sail abroad to the Pacific ocean, to double the Cape of Good Hope and to explore the "seven seas" generally, the old belief about the albatross had been forgotten by the sailors and explorers, but in their long and lonesome voyages over waters which were cut by no keel but their own, and upon whose vast expanse they saw no other sail but theirs, the presence of the albatross following the ship day after day became a great source of comfort and companionship. So it came to be a belief that ill-luck would follow any one who killed one of these birds; and that belief is common among seafaring men to this very day. Coeridge's famous "Rhyme of the Ancient Mariner" is based upon this belief.

Though the superstition about the killing of an albatross bringing bad luck is only a foolish one, it has served as a useful purpose for many years in preventing the slaughter of these beautiful and gallant birds—the sailors' friends and the landsmen's wonder.

Up in dreary Kamchatka, that outlying part of Siberia which cuts into the North Pacific, the natives, never having heard of the superstition about the albatross, catch him and eat him. But his flesh makes such poor food that, after all, the legend may be said to hold good; for he is indeed in bad luck who has to make a meal of it.—Washington Post.

WHAT IS THE MILKY WAY?

Australian Amateur's Solution of an Astronomical Puzzle.

A novel theory as to the Milky Way has been evolved by S. L. Adams, an amateur astronomer, of Sydney, N. S. W. This luminous phenomenon, it appears, is really a shadow.

"The Milky Way," says Mr. Adams, "is constantly being seen at many different angles and in many parts of the sky, but it always preserves the same luminous front arising from the telescopic stars in its background.

"Now, as this background is constantly changing, and the luminous effect is only seen wherever the foreground happens to be the Milky Way, it is evident that it is not the telescopic stars themselves which produce the effect, but something projected on the foreground of the sky. That something is the earth's shadow.

"The supposed Nebulae," continues Mr. Adams, "are all shadows, and this explains their contempt for the laws of gravitation and their refusal to conform to the globular shape assumed by celestial objects generally. They are spots of shadow representing mountains or mountain ranges on the earth."

Mr. Adams anticipates that his discovery will be received with smiles of incredulity, but he expresses his belief that his view will one day be accepted as correct. He is to read a paper on the subject before the local branch of the British Astronomical Association.—London Mail.

Cut Rates.

"Some people are mighty hard to suit," says a clerk in a local hotel, "and I had four possible customers tonight about whom my thoughts are not fit for publication. They came from away down south and they arrived here all dusty and hungry. The first thing that the head of the party did was to register and then to dicker for cut rates because there were four in the party. I scaled down the rates for him, but he was not satisfied and said he'd go to another place. He went and had trouble there, and finally wound up at a third hotel.

"We don't have many of that sort, but there are people from the rural regions who believe that there is no set price for anything anywhere and that it is throwing money away not to have a man make a special price. I've known men to make the rounds of all the Louisville hotels in an effort to make the clerks shave down rates."—Louisville Herald.

NOTE.—The following article has been widely published and is one of the most remarkable illustrations of the value of careful marshalling and analysis of facts in presenting a subject to the public.

LEVELERS.

The Minion of Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee.

The Creator made all things, we believe.

If so, He must have made these.

We know what He made food and water for, and air and sunshine, but why Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee?

They are here sure enough and each performing its work.

There must be some great plan behind it all; the thoughtful man seeks to understand something of that plan and thereby to judge these articles for their true worth.

Let us not say "bad" or "good" without taking testimony.

There are times and conditions when it certainly seems to the casual observer that these stimulant narcotics are real blessings.

Right there is the ambush that conceals a "killing" enemy.

One can slip into the habit of either whisky, tobacco or coffee easy enough, but to "untangle" is often a fearful struggle.

It seems plain that there are circumstances when the narcotic effect of these poisons is for the moment beneficial, but the fearful argument against them is that seldom ever does one find a steady user of either whisky, coffee or tobacco free from disease of some kind.

Certainly powerful elements in their effect on the human race.

It is a matter of daily history testified to by literally millions of people, that Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee are smiling, promising, beguiling friends on the start, but always false as hell itself in the end. Once they get firm hold enough to show their strength, they insist upon governing and drive the victim steadily towards ill health in some form; if permitted to continue to rule, they will not let up until physical and mental ruin sets in.

A man under that spell (and "under the spell" is correct), of any one of these drugs, frequently assures himself and his friends, "Why, I can leave off any time I want to. I did quit for a week just to show I could." It is a sure mark of the slave when one gets to that stage. He wiggled through a week fighting every day to break the spell, was finally whipped, and began his slavery all over again.

The slave (Coffee slave as well as Tobacco and Whisky) daily reviews his condition, sees perfectly plain the steady encroachments of disease, how the nerves get weaker day by day and demand the drug that seems to smile and offer relief for a few minutes and then leave the diseased condition plainer to view than ever and growing worse. Many times the Coffee slave realizes that he is between two fires. He feels bad if he leaves off, and a little worse if he drinks and allows the effect to wear off.

So it goes on from day to day. Every night the struggling victim promises himself that he will break the habit and next day when he feels a little bad (as he is quite sure to), breaks, not the habit, but his own resolution. It is nearly always a tough fight, with disaster ahead sure if the habit wins.

There have been hundreds of thousands of people driven to their graves through disease brought on by coffee drinking alone, and it is quite certain that more human misery is caused by coffee and tobacco than by whisky, for the two first are more widely used, and more hidden and insidious in the effect on nerves, heart and other vital organs, and are thus unsuspected until much of the dangerous work is done.

Now, Reader, what is your opinion as to the real use the Creator has for these things? Take a look at the question from this point of view.

There is a law of Nature and of Nature's God that things slowly evolve from lower planes to higher, a sturdy, steady and dignified advance toward more perfect things in both the Physical and Spiritual world. The ponderous tread of evolutionary development is fixed by the Infinite and will not be quickened out of natural law by any of man's methods.

Therefore we see many illustrations showing how nature checks too rapid advance. Illinois raises phenomenal crops of corn for two or three years. If she continued to do so every year her farmers would advance in wealth far beyond those of other sections or countries. So Nature interposes a bar every three or four years and brings on a "bad year."

Here we see the leveling influence at work.

A man is prosperous in his business for a number of years and grows rich. Then Nature sets the "leveling influence" at work on him. Some of his investments lose, he becomes luxurious and lazy. Perhaps it is whisky, tobacco, coffee, women, gambling, or some other form. The intent and purpose is to level him. Keep him from evolving too far ahead of the masses.

A nation becomes prosperous and great like ancient Rome. If no leveling influence set in she would dominate the world perhaps for all time. But Dame Nature sets her army of "levelers" at work. Luxury, over eating and drinking, licentiousness, waste and extravagance, indulgences of all kinds, then comes the wreck. Sure. Sure. Sure.

The law of the unit is the law of the mass. Man goes through the same process. Weakness in childhood, gradual growth of strength, energy, thrift, probity, prosperity, wealth, comfort, ease, relaxation, self-indulgence, luxury, idleness, waste, decadency, disease, and the wreck follows. The "levelers" are in the bolsheviki along the pathway of every successful man and woman and they beg the majority.

Only now and then can a man stand out against these "levelers" and hold his fortune, fame and health to the end.

So the Creator has use for Whisky, Tobacco and Coffee to level down the successful ones and those who show signs of being successful, and keep them back in the race, so that the great "field" (the masses) may not be left too far behind.

And yet we must admit that some all wise Creator has placed it in the power of man to stand upright, clothed in the armor of a clean cut, steady mind and say unto himself, "I decline to exchange my birthright for a mess of potage.

"I will not deaden my senses, weaken my grip on affairs and keep myself cheap, common and behind in fortune and fame by drugging with whisky, tobacco or coffee; life is too short. It is hard enough to win the good things, without any sort of handicap, so a man is certainly a 'fool trader' when he trades strength, health, money, and the good things that come with power, for the half asleep condition of the 'drugger' with the certainty of sickness and disease ahead."

It is a matter each individual must decide for himself. He can be a leader and semi-god, or be wise, or he can go along through life a drugged clown, a cheap "Lewer of wood or carrier of water."

Certain it is that while the Great Father of us all does not seem to "mind" if some of His children are foolish and stupid, He seems to select others (perhaps those He intends for some special work) and allows them to be threshed and castigated most fearfully by these "levelers."

If a man tries flirting with these levelers awhile, and gets a few slaps as a hint, he had better take the hint or a good solid blow will follow.

When a man tries to live upright, clean, thrifty, sober, and undrugged, manifesting as near as he knows what the Creator intends he should, happiness, health and peace seem to come to him. Does it pay?

This article was written to set people thinking, to rouse the "God within," for every highly organized man and woman has times when they feel a something calling from within for them to press to the front and "be about the Father's business," don't mistake it; the spark of the Infinite is there and it pays in every way, health, happiness, peace, and even worldly prosperity, to break off the habits and strip clean for the work cut out for us.

It has been the business of the writer to provide a practical and easy way for people to break away from the coffee habit and be assured of a return to health and all of the good things that brings, provided the abuse has not gone too far, and even then the cases where the body has been rebuilt on a basis of strength and health run into the thousands.

It is an easy and comfortable step to stop coffee instantly by having well-made Postum Food Coffee served rich and hot with good cream, for the color and flavor is there, but none of the caffeine or other nerve destroying elements of ordinary coffee.

On the contrary, the most powerful rebuilding elements furnished by Nature are in Postum and they quickly set about repairing the damage. Seldom is it more than two days after the change is made before the old stomach or bowel troubles or complaints of kidneys, heart, head or nerves show unmistakable evidence of getting better and ten days' time changes things wonderfully.

Literally millions of brain working Americans to-day use Postum, having found the value and common sense in the change.

Value of Oil as Steamship Fuel.

A trial of oil as fuel instead of coal has recently been made by the British steamer Enterprise with satisfactory results. She is a steel vessel, with a carrying capacity of 4000 tons. With coal as her fuel she has never exceeded an average of eight or nine knots an hour, but with oil she has finished a voyage from Hawaii to San Francisco and has succeeded in gaining a speed of ten knots an hour. It was demonstrated that in substituting oil for coal the ship made a saving of forty per cent. in the weight of the fuel, and of thirty-six per cent. in the space devoted to its storage. There was also a slight gain in the cost of fuel and operation of the ship.—New York Press.

Up-to-Date Fighting Wins for "Yankees of East

Telephones on the Field of Battle Are One of the Inventions Which Explain How the Mikado's Little Men Outclass the Czar's Giants.

WHEN the history of this war is written the affair at Motienling may have the proportions merely of an outpost engagement. But it brings into strong light the methods and the efficiency of the two armies and explains the unvarying success on land of the "Yankees of the East" against one of the great military powers of Europe.

Two days before this attack the Japanese knew through their remarkable intelligence service that it was planned. They foresaw largely how it would be executed, though probably they did not anticipate how stubbornly the Russians, fired with ambition to maintain the prestige of European troops and inspired by the name of Skobeleff linked with the memories of Schipka Pass, would storm the stronghold. It was Skobeleff's fighting and Skobeleff's men against the men and methods of a quarter century later.

On the morning of the 15th several correspondents camped at the Division General's headquarters, some miles from the pass, were awakened at daylight by the sound of distant volleys. A fog covered the hills so dense that tents could not be seen a hundred yards away. The ground was muddy and trees dripped as though there had been a heavy rain.

GOING INTO ACTION.

Several infantry battalions came up the road at a dog trot, the men's khaki tunics plastered to their backs with sweat, while they mopped their faces with towels presented by the patriotic societies of Japan before the pinks of the Mikado's soldiers started for possible blue precipices in the face of gigantic blue-bearded Russians.

Most of the men looked as eager for their work as a football team facing onto the field.

A hospital company marched past with the stretchers roped to the backs of horses, and some of the Red Cross men shouldered wooden crutches to help soldiers with leg wounds from the field.

Trains of the small black Japanese stallions passed bearing ammunition boxes and trenching spades, which are also utilized for burying the dead.

Ammunition caissons with lathering six-horse teams rumbled over the road, and two or three field batteries in reserve appeared and unharnessed on the square where the marks of Russian tents remained to await possible orders for the front.

A company of engineers, shouldering bamboo poles and coils of copper wire began to stretch a new telephone line, which extended across the fields, as fast as the coils could be unwound.

Probably no other army has as light and durable material for many uses as the Japanese find in their bamboo.

Occasionally an officer wearing the gold and white sash of the staff galloped in from the direction of the firing.

But there was no confusion, no disorder and seemingly little hurry. Every officer and man and every organization knew its business and proceeded about it without excitement or fuss. The whole machine operated with the same smoothness that it has exhibited from the day the mobilizing began in Tokio.

The sounds of battle were increasing at 7 o'clock and the expectant witnesses became impatient. The guns began booming about that time, and the explosion of a shell was heard every two or three minutes, while the unremitting rattle of rifle fire became louder, punctuated by frequent volleys, and every one knew that the volleys came from Russian rifles and that the Japanese were firing at will in accordance with their usual tactics.

The Chinese were getting frightened and parties of women and children went skurrying up the hill roads with bundles of valuables.

TELEPHONE IN THE FIELD.

About 9 the telephone bell in the staff office gave a sharp ring and an officer emerged to announce that all might start. Word had come that the Russians were running.

Correspondents and officers were off at full speed, the cavalcade with the various uniforms of different nationalities making an unusual group.

Just at the foot of the high hill where begins the steep ascent of the pass came a squad of wounded soldiers, going to the base hospital. Some had arms in slings, others were bandaged across their faces. Most were very pale from loss of blood and heat, but all smiled and saluted.

A long procession of wounded descended the hill. Part were carried on stretches with their guns and equipments beside them; for nothing is wasted or lost with the Japanese army, and when the soldiers go into a fight they leave no trail of discarded blankets and haversacks.

All the wounded were quiet and stoical as usual. One boy shot through both arms was walking, and as he could not salute he stopped and bowed low to each foreign officer.

Emerging from the pass and riding down a stretch of tortuous road under the shelter of a hillside, the party came abruptly upon the stage of action.

The advancing Japanese skirmish line was half a mile below the trenches, steadily pushing the Russians back.

The uproar of Japanese rifles was like the popping of hundreds of corks, while the Russian volleys crackled viciously and after each volley came a crashing of tree tops as though a gigantic axe had cut a swathe through them.

The Russians were yielding slowly with their firing line spread across the fields and hillsides in almost solid barrier.

RUSSIAN INFLICTION.

Behind the firing line and shielded by a clump of magnificent trees [illegible] must have concealed there from the Japanese advance a regiment stopping in solid formation on a road.

With the regiment was a battery which had fine opportunity for effective action, but was huddled together in a field where a single well-placed Japanese shell might have done great execution in its midst. Further down the road were troops [illegible] turning to their camping places [illegible] and with their many wagons of the [illegible] gage. The whole attitude of the [illegible] betokened indecision and lack of [illegible]

The Japanese utilized all the [illegible] as they advanced, while the Russians [illegible] of preserving close [illegible] formations sacrificed much of the [illegible] usual advantages of the ground.

That stiffness and precision of [illegible] German school, which some [illegible] officers acting in the home [illegible] had thought might handicap the [illegible] ause in the field, was abandoned.

CONTRAST IN FIRING.

Between the methods of shooting of the two armies there was no greater a contrast as in other essentials. [illegible] wan firing is almost all by volley with quite mechanical regularity. Even in the use of artillery they follow a plan of discharging one gun after another rapidly and with precision.

"To-day four Russian guns [illegible] the Japanese for an hour as a regiment of the latter was moving into action before the Russian front. The manner of it was 'one, two, three, four,' again.

Their infantry work is on the same order—three or four sharp volleys and then a rest.

Occasionally the Japanese use volleys, but most of the time they hold their will, giving the enemy less information of their position and gaining the advantages of individual marksmanship. They lie like a hunter in the [illegible] waiting for game, and when they fire it they blaze away.

No one who has seen this army questions Russian bravery. The superiority of the Japanese lies in the head work of officers and men.

The scene around the [illegible] the Pass when the correspondents arrived on the field bore witness frequently to the courage of the Russian Slav. Through four terrible hours the Thirty-fourth European Regiment held its ground under a fierce fire from the Japanese redoubts above them. The temple itself became a veritable slaughter house. All over the temple yard, over the road and the fields about it, shrapnel balls were strewn thickly and the ground was sowed with Russian bullets. They testified convincingly to the staying powers of the Russian soldiers.

Not since Hamatan has there been seen more men disabled on a given area. Along the line where the Russian wave broke it left a fringe of dead and wounded.

RUSSIAN INFLICTION.

The Russians go into battle with heavy marching equipment, which they put down by all their effects.

One soldier, mortally wounded, took his heavy coat in a roll over his shoulder, and an entrenching spade, a cooking pot, a canvas bag filled with bread, a canteen and a bandolier of cartridges were strapped to his body. I saw a Japanese stop to collect weights from his enemy and disappear into the shade of a bush, pull a blanket under his head and a handkerchief over his face.

Russian impediments were scattered all over the field. Most numerous were the heavy snuff-colored blankets which prove useful in Japanese hospitals, the crude wooden water bottles, the ponchos of coarse bread, and rifles dropped in retreat, and occasional three drums emblazoned with the double-headed eagle, to abandon them was almost like giving up the colors.

GENERALS TAKE IT EASY.

General Nishi observed the progress of the engagement from the summit of a hill close by the temple. He breakfasted at his usual hour, taking leisurely breakfast, keeping in touch with his command by a cobweb of telegraphs and telephones, and only when he learned that the Russians had begun to retreat and the battle of the day was practically decided did he start on an unhurried ride to the front.

His Brigade General, Okasaki, managed affairs on the spot, and the superior gave his subordinate a free hand.

General Kuroki, whose headquarters were two hours' ride away, arrived in the morning with his chief of staff, General Fujii, and Prince Kanin. Resting on the bank of a clear mountain brook placidly fishing for trout in the Motien Pass (Manchuria) [illegible] ence of the New York World.

WITH 40,000 WOUNDED SOLDIERS

Kuropatkin Is Still on the Offensive—Japanese Make Prisoners.

That Kuropatkin has 40,000 wounded men and is able to resume the offensive within a fortnight is considered a feat in military history. There was an impression that Kuropatkin was concentrating his forces on his right and center to avoid being driven off the line of the railroad, without having embarrassed the retirement of his left, but now he has had ample time to withdraw, and the situation shows more determination than ever to secure strong advanced positions across the Shakhe.

It is known that the left has pushed forward slightly and the idea that operations contemplate only rear-guard actions seems negatived.

The heavy concentration of both Russians and Japanese between the Mandarin road and the railroad, makes almost certain a collision at this point.

While the Japanese evidently are determined to pursue the policy followed by them since the beginning of the war of concealing the extent of their losses, the Russians believe that their casualties must be at least three-fourths as great as those of the Russians, probably in the neighborhood of 30,000.

The weather has again become clear, but is very cold, and the soldiers are reported to be suffering.

Although it is impossible to secure an authoritative statement regarding the report that Russia intends sending the Black Sea fleet to the far east, and with that object in view is bringing pressure to bear upon the porte to secure permission to permit the fleet to pass our through the Dardanelles, it is regarded as a canard in well-informed circles.

A dispatch received from Tokio says Marquis Oyama reports that the Shakhe river engagement resulted in the capture by the Japanese of 500 prisoners and 45 guns, while 10,550 Russian corpses were counted.

KILLED THE WOMAN

Who Had Tried to Injure the Name of Their Father

Mrs. Nellie Thomason is dead at Lacon, Ill., as the result of injuries received in a sensational encounter with Richard and Jennie Higgins, children of John G. Higgins, a supervisor of Peoria county, and prominent in politics.

The Higgins children intercepted a letter written to Higgins, Sr., by Mrs. Thomason, in which she asked him to meet her in the Rock Island railroad depot. Higgins was in St. Louis and his son opened the letter. The missive asked Higgins to be in the waiting room. Mrs. Thomason arrived and was confronted by young Higgins and his sister.

What took place is a mystery, as only the three and an uncle of Higgins were present. Some time later the woman asked the ticket agent to assist her to the train, and when she was gone discovered the floor of the waiting room covered with blood.

Young Higgins is under arrest on a state warrant charging him with murder.

Fire in Gin.

Fire broke out in the cotton gin of Emil B. Brothers, Bessemer, and for a while endangered the entire plant, but the quick response and rapid work of the fire department saved the plant from destruction. Several bales of cotton were damaged and one destroyed. Last week this plant caught fire, but little damage was done.

Government Upheld.

By a vote of 352 to 237 the French chamber of deputies approved the government in the rupture of diplomatic relations between France and the vatican by the recall of Ambassador Nisard.

The vote was taken after a boisterous session, in the course of which Deputy Baudry D'Asson called Prime Minister Combs a brigand, and was restrained with difficulty from personally assaulting the premier. Mr. Combs said rupture of relationship between the vatican and France showed the impossibility of continuing the present concordat between the church and state.

May Make Loan.

Mexico will send delegates to the national irrigation congress to be held at El Paso, Tex., next month. President Diaz is unable to attend, but will send representatives. It is said that a $10,000,000 loan exclusively for irrigation purposes will be issued.

The government for some time past has had engineering parties in the field securing plans for redeeming arid lands and perfecting existing systems of irrigation to avoid waste of water.

THE RUSSIAN FLEET

Fires on English Fishing Vessels in the North Sea.

VESSELS SUNK; MEN KILLED.

Reported That Same Ships Have Searched Merchantmen Off Isle of Wight.

Notice is given of an attack on the Hull, England, fishing fleet by the Russian Pacific fleet, commonly known as the Baltic squadron (commanded by Vice Admiral Rojestvensky).

The official information is that shortly after midnight Friday the Russian squadron fell in with the Hull fishing fleet in the North sea. The first portion of the fishing fleet passed safely. Then the Russian ships turned their searchlights on the British vessels for some time and a little later opened fire. The steam trawler Crane was sunk and the decapitated bodies of her skipper and mate have been brought to Hull. The other members of the crew who are understood to be seriously wounded are on board a mission ship. The only slightly injured member of the crew has arrived at Hull.

The steam trawlers Moulmein and Mino have arrived at Hull seriously damaged by shots, the latter having sixteen holes in her hull. It is feared that other damage was done to the trawlers and that at least one more was lost with all hands.

The news has created an intense sensation and indignation. The Moulmein arrived with her flag at half-mast. The skipper states that the trawlers were fishing about 220 miles east by north of Spurn Head at 1 o'clock Saturday morning, the weather being hazy, when the outlines of several vessels apparently warships sailing in a line were dimly seen. While the crew were watching the warships searchlights were flashed upon them, in the glare of which the Moulmein's crew observed what they took to be torpedo boats approaching the Moulmein. They steamed away, however, and soon the fishermen were horrified to find they were being fired upon.

First one and then another trawler was struck by flying shot. The bombardment lasted about twenty minutes. When it had ceased the fleet sailed southward and some of the trawlers sent up rockets. The Moulmein steered in the direction of the rockets. Soon cries were heard and the Crane was found sinking with another trawler taking off some of her crew.

From interviews with members of the crews of the fishing fleet it appears that the admiral of the fishing fleet burned green flares to show that they were harmless fishermen, but the signals were ignored.

The first reports of the affair received in London were regarded as almost incredible. When, however, cumulative evidence no longer left doubt of the general accuracy of the reports, astonishment became bewilderment, as the whole affair placed the Russians in such an extraordinary and embarrassing position, and what is forthcoming could only be surmised. This is the view taken editorially by all the papers.

The report is confirmed that vessels of the Baltic fleet stopped and searched merchantmen off the Isle of Wight.

Astonishment that the Russian commander should have committed such a blunder as to fire on inoffensive fishing vessels prevails in official circles at Washington.

At the same time these officials are prompt to express the opinion that the Russian government will promptly disavow the act and apologize when the facts are fully known. The tragedy, it is realized, adds to the complications which the Baltic fleet already has encountered ever since it was determined that the vessels shall go to the far east.

To Explode Forts.

Russian cruisers have been transformed into hospitals. Spies who have been working their way from the Japanese lines into confines of Port Arthur report that mines had been excavated under the forts preparatory to destroying them should they be in imminent danger of falling into the hands of the Japanese.

Y. M. C. A. Branch.

A railroad branch of the Y. M. C. A. has been organized at Wilton. It is the intention of the association to have a hall set apart for its exclusive use. A number of private subscriptions have been made for this purpose.

Found Lady's Pocket.

Burglars entered the home of L. W. Skinner, near Columbus, Ga., and secured from Mrs. Skinner's dress the keys of her trunk.

They entered an adjoining room where children were sleeping, and opened the trunk and took possession of nearly $400, which had been placed there by Mrs. Skinner. There is no trace as to the identity of the burglars.

OPPOSED TO UNITING.

Arizona's Governor Reports That the People Prefer Not to Join New Mexico.

The annual report of the governor of Arizona to the secretary of the interior says the territorial population has increased considerably and that the total population now is between 166,000 and 170,000.

It expresses a desire on the part of the people of Arizona for statehood, but says that finding themselves confronted with a plan to unite their territory with New Mexico, the people of Arizona have protested vigorously and will continue to do so until they have defeated this repugnant scheme. They would desire that their commonwealth remain a territory indefinitely rather than to be joined with New Mexico.

The governor adds his belief that the merger would not be acceptable to the mass of the people of either territory. The report says the floating indebtedness of Arizona has been wiped out and a balance of $2,939 remains in the general fund at the close of the last fiscal year. The taxable property in the territory has gained $1,981,505 during the year. The total taxable property of the various counties is $45,069,545. Substantial progress in other directions is reported.

Jail Burned.

Fire destroyed the calaboose and stables of the city of Avondale. Two negroes were badly injured by an explosion of dynamite which took place during the fire. A negro house adjoining the stables was also burned.

The negroes injured were a boy and a woman. The boy is in a very serious condition, and may die as a result of his wounds. Both negroes were running to see the fire, when the heat exploded the dynamite. The boy was very close to it, and the strength of the explosion tore open his breast almost to his heart.

In the fire one or two mules belonging to the city of Avondale were burned and several wagons and carts. The loss is hard to estimate, but it will probably be about $2,000. The negro house did not amount to much.

The dynamite is some that was left around by the hands who had been getting slag from the slag piles.

FOR FIRE PROTECTION

And the Supplying of Her Varied Industries.

A movement is on foot among a number of Ensley's business men to organize a stock company for the purpose of bringing water to the city from the Warrior river.

It is the intention of the company to procure a sufficient water supply for Ensley and all its industries, and other proposed plants. It is about twelve or thirteen miles from Ensley to the nearest point on the Warrior river. It is argued that the plan to bring water from that river to Ensley is practical, and that the supply will be ample, not only for Ensley's present industries, but will be the means of bringing several other manufactories to the city.

Fireman Wounded.

Jack Yeager, the driver in the Ensley fire department, was shot in the arm and perhaps seriously wounded by Von Thompson, an ex-member of the fire department. The shooting took place in the central fire station at the city hall. The trouble is said to have grown out of some old differences between the two men.

Thompson, who is said to have been drinking, entered the fire station and reclined upon Yeager's bed. Words followed between the men, when Thompson drew his revolver and opened fire. Three shots were fired at Yeager, one of them passing through his right arm just below the elbow and shattering the bone considerably.

Japanese Report of Russian Losses.

Japanese Manchurian headquarters, reporting by telegraph, say that the number of Russian dead found and interred makes a total of 10,550. Upon this total Russian casualties are estimated to exceed sixty thousand. The Japanese captured a total of 45 guns during the Shakhe operations.

Russian Movements.

A dispatch from the front says that a Russian regiment has made a detour to the west, arriving abreast of Liao Yang, but this is not confirmed. Great importance is attached to the report from Tokio that two hundred Russians have crossed the Taitse river east of Bensihu, and that 20,000 are concentrated at Kau Ta Pass, twenty miles northeast. This may indicate the direction of Kuropatkin's next blow, or possibly it is intended to disconcert the Japanese and compel them to weaken their force on the rear.

Crops of 1904.

The crops of 1904 were larger than those of the present year, but in no year has the value of the cereal crops of the country been of value so great as they are this year.

Hand Crushed.

Mr. James Pealy, a man of family, employed by the Cullman oil mill, had his hand terribly mashed in a peanut crusher, necessitating amputation just below the elbow.

OVER THE MOUNTAINS.

What shall I see if ever I go
Over the mountains high?
Now I can see but the peaks of snow,
Crowning the cliffs where the pine trees grow,
Waiting and longing to rise
Nearer the beckoning skies.

The eagle is rising far away
Over the mountains high;
Rowing along the radiant day,
With mighty strokes, to his distant prey;
Where he will, swooping downward;
Where he will, sailing onward.

Birds, with your chattering, why did ye come
Over the mountains high?
Beyond, in a summer land, ye could roam.
And nearer to heaven could build your home—
Why have ye come to bring
Longing without your wing?

Shall I, then, never, never flee
Over the mountains high?
Rocky walls will ye always be Prisons, until ye are tombs, for me—
Until I lie at your feet,
Wrapped in my winding sheet?

Away! I will away, far away,
Over the mountains high;
Here I am sinking lower each day,
Though my spirit has chosen the loftiest way;
Let her in freedom fly,
Not beat on the walls and die!

Once I know, I shall journey far,
Over the mountains high;
Lord, is Thy door already ajar?
Dear is the home where Thy saved ones are;
But bar it awhile from me,
And help me to long for Thee.
—Bjornsterne Bjornson.

The Killing of Storm.

Not a Tragedy After All, and No One Can Explain Why.

What a stormy night that was!—with wind in gusts and the rain in splashes! We had heard a mournful cry in a deserted causeway, and at the door found a woolly puppy, rolled up like a hedgehog, very wet and shivery. But at last the long black curls dried out, the big overgrown feet spread sleepily over the hearth rug, and the blue eyes closed in a puppy's glad dream.

The children fed him by hand on minced bread and milk, and soon his puppyhood waxed into doghood. In the daytime they coaxed him into the garden. One excursion up and down stairs tired him so that he was glad to sleep for hours, and so was out of mischief. The cat, who was taller, towering over the new comer by a head, abused him shamefully, and the children had to look sharp to keep her claws out of his eyes. For all of this the dog repaid her with interest, later on, when the tables of size were turned. When he came his neck could be spanned by a gold bracelet. At six months he had attained the dignity of a collar and tag, for he was now large enough to be attractive to the dog-catchers.

They called him Storm, because he came in one; and when he bit holes in the stockings and playfully tore the clothes from the line, or dug up the roses in his hours of ease, looking for a last week's bone at the root, and capped the climax of his mischief by chewing up the shawl a guest had hung before the fire to dry, his mistress thought him well named.

He was certainly a bouncing fellow. When the children were at school, he rode like a monarch on the seat of a coal wagon, barking ferociously at all dogs afoot. But however far he was from home, he never failed to meet the children at the gate at 3 o'clock. He had a regular engagement, and a marvelous sense of time.

As years went by Storm reached the limit of his infirmities. He was so crippled that he could scarcely walk. In his sleep he groaned dismally. One day a family council was called, and it was decided that it was cruel to let poor old Storm live longer. All the dog powders and remedies had been tried. There had been all sorts of dog cakes, and finally the family doctor had been called in.

The mistress declared that Storm's groans made her heart ache, but she hastened to add that she could not act as executioner. The boys made excuses to leave the room, and came back coughing ostentatiously. The neighbors were appealed to, and at last one with a sufficiently hard heart was found. This was the grown son of a farmer who lived too far away to have known Storm at all well.

He came down one morning armed with his father's double-barreled ducking gun. He marched up boldly enough to where Storm was lying, but, stranger as he was to the dog, he could not withstand the pathetic look of appeal that came from the soft eyes of the faithful old animal. He lowered his gun and valiantly faced those few of his friends who had followed him to the yard because they knew his nerve would fail him in the end.

It was finally decided that poor old Storm should die of prussic acid. This was chosen because it was quick and certain, and the girl messenger cried all the way to the drug store and back. The druggist said that a single drop on the tongue would be enough—so deadly and powerful was the poison.

Storm was taken into the back yard, and we all fancied we could see the reproachful look in his eyes. He was betrayed, and he knew it—we said.

A gulp, a swallow and it was all over! Storm fell over at the feet of his mistress, and the tears were flowing down the faces of those who loved him. They wished with all their hearts that they had not done it, but had let him live out his days with his ashes and pains. They left him lying there, and without looked the house to find the prettiest place in the garden in which to lay him. They chose a spot where as a puppy, Storm had loved to lie in the dappled shade. In half an hour the grave was dug, and they came back to bury Storm.

He was not there!

Instead of lying stiff and cold, he actually trotted toward them, briskly wagging his tail!

He pranced, he curvited, he pawed them. He frisked and leaped as if he were a young dog again.

And his family? They covered him with embraces, and all sat down and cried over the dog who had miraculously come back to life!

The neighbors are still trying to explain it. Most people think that the druggist made a mistake, or that he joked his little joke and didn't give us prussic acid at all. But if that is so, why should Storm have fallen over like a dead dog, and what became of his rheumatism? The druggist declares that it was prussic acid, and the family doctor declares that Storm took enough to kill a dozen horses. But certain it is that Storm did not know what was expected of him.—St. Nicholas.

GHOSTLY ARMIES IN THE SKY.

Phantom Legions, Which Tradition Says, Visit the Scene of Great Battles.

Everyone who has read Kipling's story of the "Lost Legion" knows how the ghosts of dead troopers of a revolted native regiment who were cut off by hillmen in the days of the great mutiny in India wander by night, we may believe the descendants of their murderers, about the cairns in a mountain valley which mark the testing place of their bones.

The story of phantom armies is an old one and has existed in some form in all ages and in all climes. There are many places besides the Afghan mountain valley where phantom warriors fight again their battles on the anniversary of the combat in which they fell.

Most famous of all ghostly battles is that which is fought every year high in the air above the plains of Chalons on the anniversary of that great battle in which Attila and his Huns were defeated 1453 years ago by the Romans and their Frankish and Saxon allies.

In that battle the loss of life was greater than in any other fight recorded in history. Some authorities place the number of the dead at 300,000, while other historians estimate it at 160,000.

Now, on the anniversary of the battle, the peasants living on the plains which surrounded Chalons declare that they see above them cloudy legions charging and countercharging—Attila and Aetius struggling once more for the dominion of the world.

In Rajputana, India, near the town of Ajmir, there is a plain on which opens a mountain defile. The natives declare that often on a misty night there will issue from the mountain pass a body of four or five hundred warriors, mounted on Arab steeds and clad in the sacred green which can be worn by the descendants of the prophet alone.

The troops ride with no sound of spur jinglings or sabre clashing. The feet of the horses make no sound, and though they ride hard as if charging in battle, there is stillness over the plain. Sometimes for hours at a time the spectral squadrons will wheel and charge about and then, spurring to the entrance of the mountain defile, will vanish.

The shadowy riders of the night are, say the Musulmans of the Rajputana, the ghosts of Hosein and his followers, who were slaughtered upon the plain of Kerbela, as the grandson of Mahomet was journeying to Bagdad in response to an invitation to be King of Persia.

Why Hosein and his warriors should make their ghostly charges over the plains of Rajputana, when their slaughter took place hundreds of miles away on the plain of Bagdad, it is difficult to explain; but ghosts are sometimes erratic.

Another place where phantom warriors fight in the moonlight, according to the tales of the peasantry, is the pass of Roncesvalles, in the Pyrenees, where the rear guard of the army of Charlemagne was overcome by the Moors in 778. It was there that Roland and Oliver fought and died with the peers of France.

Now, at night, the Paynim host and the Paladins and Peers fight again in the dark valley, and the mountaineer, turning in his bed, hears from the defile the winding of the horn of Olifant calling back King Charles.

In 1744 considerable stir was made in England by the appearance of a phantom army on the side o. Southfell mountain, between Penrith and Keswick. A number of people saw the apparition and made affidavit to it.

A small army of horsemen suddenly appeared moving along the mountain side, "where mortal horseman ne'er might ride." They were distinct but rather diaphanous beings, and made no sound as they galloped along till they disappeared over the crest of the mountain.

"The ghosts of warriors slain in some forgotten battle," said the peasants, and many more besides; but the scientific men said, "Only a mirage."—New York Sun.

A "Foreign" Opera.

London may soon see Maunday's New Zealander sitting on its bridges. It is to have a Maori comic opera by a New Zealand composer, with a libretto by an Australian journalist. The piece will be called "Tane," and 36 native Maori dancers will take part in it.

EDITOR Frank Crichton is improving.

Congressman Bowie's appointments will be found on the first page of this paper.

Governor Cunningham will speak at Thorsby on Wednesday night, November 2, at 7 o'clock.

Ex-Governor Joseph F. Johnston will address the people of Chilton county on the political issues of the day at Clanton on Tuesday, November 1, at 11 a.m.

AN interesting, but lengthy, account of the late meeting of the Farmers County Alliance, we are reluctantly compelled to omit on account of lack of time to set it.

Let every Democrat and every lover of good government make a special point of going to vote on Tuesday week. Remember, it was the stay-at-home Democrats that lost the last county election.

All parties interested in school affairs in district No. 26 will meet at Culp's school house, Tuesday night, Nov. 1. Business of importance demands your attendance. All come.

Rapt In His Art.

Musician—I tell you, ladies, we artists cannot succeed unless we give up our very souls to our art. Why, last week I was so rapt in a composition that I was playing that a thief stole the violin from under my chin, and I never noticed it.

Proved.

Professor—Which is the most delicate of the senses? Pupil—The touch. Professor—Prove it. Pupil—When you sit on a pin, you can't see it, you can't hear it, you can't taste it, but it's there.

Spiteful.

Miss Joyce—Yes, Jack and I are to become partners for life. Miss Moore—And you will be the senior partner. How nice!

Better than Pills.

The question has been asked—In what way are Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets superior to the ordinary cathartic and liver pills? Our answer is—They are easier and more pleasant to take and their effect is so gentle and so agreeable that one hardly realizes that it is produced by a medicine. Then they not only move the bowels but improve the appetite and aid the digestion. For sale at 25 cents per bottle by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

When Railways Were New.

It was in 1830 that the opening of the railway between Liverpool and Manchester was celebrated. The Duke of Wellington's ideas concerning the iron road are thus described by Chaplain Gleig: "The Duke of Wellington was invited in his capacity of prime minister to take part in the opening journey. He declined, saying that no great or permanent good could come of the invention, because stagecoaches already traveled at the rate of eight or ten miles in the hour and if any attempt were made to exceed that pace the respiration of the passengers would become painful, perhaps impossible. The duke would listen to no remonstrances. He thought, as others did, that the experiment was risky and derided the idea of accelerating the pace, as was promised, to twenty miles an hour. Even a twelve mile pace he regarded as excessive, because difficult, if not impossible, to control and agreed in the opinion that the iron way would never, for general traffic, supersede our macadamized roads, then brought to perfection."

St. Andrew Undershaft.

In Leadenhall street, London, there is a church bearing the strange name of St. Andrew Undershaft, a name that would not be intelligible to any one without a knowledge of the history of the locality. It seems that some 400 years ago every May day a high shaft or pole was set up opposite the south door of St. Andrew's and adorned with flowers. So tall was the pole it was actually higher than the church steeple, which was therefore literally under the shaft. Now, there being several churches dedicated to St. Andrew, this one was further described as Undershaft to prevent it from being mistaken for any of the others. The old May pole having been denounced as an idol by an overzealous curate in the reign of the boy king, the inhabitants of the district sawed it in pieces for firewood. Thus is it that in the name of a still existing church is preserved an interesting bit of bygone history which otherwise would probably have passed away forever.

Napoleon's Height.

How tall was Napoleon? Bourrienne, who, according to a writer, had ample opportunities for observation, says that he was five feet two inches. Captain Maitland, who measured him on the Bellerophon, found his distinguished passenger to be five feet seven inches. Constant says that Napoleon was five feet one and a half inches. Bunbury insists that he was not less than five feet six inches. Napoleon chose short men invariably for difficult enterprises. He was convinced that Caesar and Alexander were men of diminutive stature. Speaking of the achievements of his generals, Napoleon said that Kleber had "all the qualities and defects of a tall man."

Gibraltar.

Gibraltar, the strongest fortress in the world, has the record for the longest investment in modern times, the English holding it against the armies of France and Spain from July 16, 1779, until Feb. 5, 1783. Military experts say now that no one can carry Gibraltar, and those who have seen the English guns on the rocky hills and the English battleships in the quiet harbor will agree with the experts. The only way in which Gibraltar can be taken is by starvation, and England has the fortress provisioned for several years now.

Workhouse Museums.

Several of the great London workhouses have remarkable museums attached to them. In a south London union museum can be found a clergyman's letters of ordination (the owner died in the house) and a peculiar belt made of human teeth and brought from the west coast of Africa. But perhaps the most significant of all the things shown is a small pocket dice box. Upon the box is neatly cut, "This box and other wagering cost me £30,000 and brought me to the workhouse."—London Telegraph.

Be Cheerful.

Tribulation is a habit. Be brave and utter a cheerful word in place of the complaining one. Keeping silent in an atmosphere of discord attracts to you peace and serenity instead of pain and sorrow. "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." No greater truth was ever uttered. As soon as a person stops thinking trouble and goes to thinking joy, then joy will materialize.—Detroit Free Press.

A Soft Answer.

Actress (angrily)—Did you write that criticism which said my impersonation of "The Abandoned Wife" was a miserable failure? Critic—Ye-y-e-s. You see, you looked so irresistibly beautiful that it was impossible to fancy that any man could abandon you.

Unusual.

She (reading)—She folded her arms and looked the picture of scorn. He—How unusual! She—Why, pray? He—Scorn is always represented as pointing her finger at something or somebody.—Columbus Dispatch.

True Enough.

"Now, then, children," said the teacher, "what is it we want most in this world to make us perfectly happy?"

"De things we ain't got," shouted the bright boy in the back seat.—Catholic Standard and Times.

Lucky.

"Well, Pat, I heard your brother was sent to prison for life."

"Tis, but he's so delicate he'll never live to complete the sintince."—Chicago Journal.

FARMING AND STOCK RAISING.

Editor Banner: It appears your readers are not disposed to advance any ideas on farming and stock raising. I don't wish to be conspicuous as a writer, but I do feel that more interest should be felt and shown along this line. Can't you stir up the inteligent people of Chilton and let us have variety in reading matter and not so much about "cousin Sallie's going to see aunt Polly last Sabbath, Mr. John Brown has returned home from a pleasant visit to Mr. Smith's, Miss Janie Skeets has returned home to the regret of her many admiring friends." All this reminds me of the many references to "Gray Gables," "Wolfort's Roost," "Buzzard Bay," "Oyster Bay," and the like, all trying to the commonality of readers. Well our county is in a general stir. The fall in price of cotton does not set well with the farmers, but I think one and all, even at nine cents, will pay out and have cash left, this is good. The all absorbing topic now should be for each head of a family, both white and colored, while times are good, to secure him a home. Men and corporations, with few exceptions, who own large tracts of land, desire to sell them. It is always desirable for a man either white or colored to own a home, around which he can gather his earnings. It makes him a better man and citizen, makes him have self respect, and thereby cause others to respect him. The State of Kansas fifteen years ago had a population who was the worst in debt of any in the United States. Today they are among the most independent; least in debt. This is said to be brought about by stock raising and the disposition of each man to own his home. Only about one man in seven in the whole state who does not own his home. What do you suppose the per cent. is in Alabama? Can the Banner tell its readers? The prosperous farmer should pull no fodder as it is a great injury to his corn, but sow thick in drills for cultivation amber sorghum to cut for hay, or if he chooses he may sow and reap peavine hay, or if he will set aside a rich piece of branch land of one acre for each mule or horse, he can save from it sufficient Johnson grass hay each year, lessen his labor, give him a better food, protect his land from the drastic effects of pulling off his corn fodder, and last, but not least, have more than enough value in his corn by reason of leaving fodder on, to pay for the fodder. I have not pulled a blade of fodder in fifteen years; never expect to pull another. Nothing succeeds like success and if we would succeed we should patern after those who are successful. Don't patern after me if you don't want to, but each article I write is from actual experience and not borrowed from theorists.

Have just gathered a field of corn poorly cultivated by tenant and on thin land, had fodder left on because it was thin land and poorly worked, and I got more than twice the corn I expected and of good quality. F. A. GULLEDGE.

Mulberry.

Our community is so interesting to us, perhaps others would like to hear from us.

Farmers are busy gathering in their crops. The fields that were lately so white with cotton are bare—very little yet to pick and everyone has bales waiting for better prices. Corn, peas and potatoes are good, and we shall soon be ready for a real thanksgiving day.

Our school opened the 17th with a good attendance. Miss Pritchett of Roba has charge this session. It is her first term with us and promises to be pleasant and profitable.

Miss Emma Desbazo returned to Birmingham Wednesday, after several days' visit to her fathers family, Mr. W. H. Desbazo.

Miss Florence Desbazo, accompanied by Miss Harper, from Cincinnatti are spending awhile in our midst.

Quite a number of our people attended the revival at Macedonia last week. Rev. Freeman and Honeycutt are earnest workers and tireless in their effort to do good. Several were baptized Sunday.

Those people know how to make strangers feel good—take them to their homes, give them good dinner and ask them back.

Our singing met at Mr. Anderson Jone's Saturday evening to practice, they often meet and we have a choir to be proud of.

Rev. Windsor filled his appointment Saturday and Sunday here. As usual a large congregation listened to his able sermons.

Citation on Application to Sell Lands.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Probate Court.

To John O. Donovan and Claud B. Donovan:

Whereas, Beula Matthews, one of the heirs at law of the estate of Jerre Donovan, deceased, has filed her application in said Court for a sale of the lands described in said application, belonging to the estate of said deceased, upon the ground that said land cannot be equitably divided, and the 31st day of October, 1904, has been appointed for the hearing of said application.

You are, therefore, hereby commanded to appear before said Court on said 31st day of October, 1904, to contest said application if you think proper.

Witness my hand this 27th day of September, 1904. E. B. DEASON, Judge of Probate.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Chancery Court. Seventh District, Northeastern Division. In Vacation.

Jeff Wailes, Complainant, vs. Lula Wailes, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of J. C. Dennis, as Attorney for Complainant, that the Defendent, Lula Wailes, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that she resides in Mexico, but her post-office address is unknown to affiant, and further that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant, Lula Wailes, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, Chilton County, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Lula Wailes, to answer, plead or demur to the bill or complaint in the above cause on or before the 24th day of October, 1904, and failing so to do within thirty days after the service of this summons a decree pro confesso may be taken against her in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 21st day of September, 1904.

S. A. STEWART, Register in Chancery.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy

No one who is acquainted with its good qualities can be surprised at the great popularity of Chamberlains Cough Remedy. It not only cures colds and grip effectually and permanently, but prevents these diseases from resulting in pneumonia. It is also a certain cure for croup. Whooping cough is not dangerous when this remedy is given. It contains no opion or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. It is also pleasant to take. When all of these facts are taken into consideration it is not surprising that people in foreign lands, as well as at home, esteem this remedy very highly and very few are willing to take any other after having once used it. Administrator's Final Settlement.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County.
Probate Court, special Term, October, 5, 1904.
Final settlement of R. H. Martin, Administrator of Estate of Jesse S. Martin, deceased.

This day came R. H. Martin, Administrator of Estate of Jesse N. Martin, deceased, and presents to the Court, under oath, his accounts, vouchers, evidence and statement for final settlement of said Estate.

It is ordered that the 31st day of October, 1904, be appointed a day for making such settlement, at which time all parties in interest can appear and contest the same if they think proper.

Witness, at office, this 5th day of October, 1904.
E. B. DEASON, Judge of Probate.

Cause of Lockjaw.

Lockjaw, or tetantus, is caused by a bacillus or germ which exists plentifully in street dirt. It is inactive so long as exposed to the air, but when carried beneath the skin as in the wounds caused by percussion caps or by rusty nails, and when the air is excluded the germ is roused to activity and produces the most virulent poison known. These germs may be destroyed and all danger of Lockjaw avoided by applying Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely as soon as the injury is received. Pain Balm is an antiseptic and causes cuts, bruises and like injuries to heal without maturation and in one-third the time required by the usual treatment. It is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thursday.

LUMBER DESTROYED

Mobile Milling Property Suffers a Heavy Loss---600,000 Feet of Hardwoods Burned.

RESIDENCES AND SCHOOL HOUSE

Also Burned and Sparks Set Fire to Points Two Miles Distant.—L. & N. Tracks Afire.

At midnight fire broke out in the big saw mill plant of the Mobile Lumber company, a concern capitalized at one million dollars.

Aid was asked from the city and two hose companies were sent out, but they were powerless to do much toward stopping the headway which the flames had gained. The entire plant was destroyed, together with 6,000,000 feet of valuable hardwoods in the yards. There was a brisk wind blowing at the time of the fire which carried the sparks for a distance of one or two miles, setting fire to the dried grass and the saw dust on the telegraph road, in many places a mile or two from the scene of the fire, and imperiling the adjoining milling property.

The fire spread to the plant of the Hubbard brothers, where the main office building, six residences and a school house were destroyed. The loss will probably run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The northabound passenger train on the Louisville and Nashville road was delayed for nearly two hours on account of the track of the road catching fire in many places from the fire.

Improvements at Bessemer.

Work on Bessemer's new waterworks system is progressing rapidly. A large force of men are engaged in digging the reservoir, making the excavations and idying the mains. The indications are that before the new year the entire system will be in operation.

The Birmingham Railway, Light and Power Company is pushing the construction of the spur from the North Bessemer line to Hawkins Springs. As soon as the line is completed the work of installing the pumping stations will begin. The waterworks company it is understood has made a contract with a firm at Columbus, O., for two pumps of large capacity.

The laying of the main from the spring to the reservoir on Red mountain are almost completed, and everything will shortly be in readiness for the masonry work to commence. The reservoir will be constructed of concrete and will have a capacity of 5,000,000 gallons.

Railroad Extension.

There is discussion of a proposition on the part of the Southern railway to build a line from Gainesville to Rome, Ga., making another line from Birmingham to Atlanta and Washington. It is proposed, according to the gossip, to use the Alabama Great Southern to Gadsden or via Anniston to Rome, Ga., and thence to Washington. It is claimed that eighty miles at least between Birmingham and Washington would be saved by the construction of the line between Rome and Gainesville.

Sewerage for Woodlawn.

At the meeting of the board of mayor and aldermen of Woodlawn an ordinance was introduced and placed on its first reading providing for an election to be held to decide on the issuance of $30,000 of bonds to be used in the construction of a system of sanitary sewerage to connect with the trunk sewer of the county.

Farm Land Deal.

A deal was consummated by which E. C. Melvin disposes of the Batt Smith place, about nine miles from Selma to Clifford Kirkpatrich and others. The place contains 2,500 acres and was purchased by Mr. Melvin a few years ago for about $16,500. The price just paid for it was about $26,000.

Phosphate Case Decided.

A decision has been rendered in the supreme court of Florida in the phosphate rate case, which has been in the courts since last December. Proceedings were brought by the railroad commission of Florida against the railroads at the instance of the Fernandina board of trade, charging discrimination in rates in favor of Savannah as against Florida ports. The decision just rendered is a victory for the commission and peremptory writs of mandamus have issued compelling the railroads to put in force a rate of one cent per ton per mile on phosphate on all shipments to all Florida ports.

Found Lady's Pocket.

Burglars entered the home of L. W. Skinner, near Columbus, Ga., and secured from Mrs. Skinner's dress the keys of her trunk.

They entered an adjoining room where children were sleeping, and opened the trunk and took possession of nearly $100, which had been placed there by Mrs. Skinner. There is no trace as to the identity of the burglars.

BUILDING COLLAPSED.

Southern Round House at Selma Endangers Many Lives.

Selma was thrown into a furor of excitement by a telephone message sent from the Southern railway shops asking that every available doctor and assistance be sent immediately to that place, the round house having collapsed, and it was feared that twenty or thirty persons had been caught beneath the falling debris.

Physicians quickly jumped into their buggies and hastened to the scene. They were followed by hundreds of citizens. An engine tender which was being picked onto the turntable with crowbars suddenly started off as its weight tilted the table, and before the latter could be turned to allow it to go onto a track leading into a proper stall it crashed into one of the columns holding the circular front of the round house, and down came half of the entire front, the southeastern wall and the roof also tumbling in.

By a happy circumstance the majority of the fifty men working in the round house were in the office of the shops getting their pay checks and the few that were at work received sufficient warning from the creaking timbers to reach a point of safety. The damage to the engines in the round house was comparatively slight. Master Mechanic Boyden stating that $200 would cover it. The damage to the round house will amount to two or three thousand dollars.

The round house was probably built in 1852. On a stone which was embedded in the brick in the center of the circular front was cut "Alabama and Tennessee River Railroad, 1850."

MAY MOVE UNIVERSITY.

Tennessee Synod Condemns Action of Directors.

The Tennessee synod of the Southern Presbyterian church, in session at Knoxville, Tenn., passed a resolution by vote of 37 to 33, condemning the action of the directors of the Southwestern Presbyterian university at Clarksville, Tenn., in claiming power to elect new directors and to absolutely control the university. The resolution also claims for the synods of Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana the right to control the affairs of the institution.

This action of the local Tennessee synod is, in effect, an indorsement of the plan to remove the university from Clarksville to Atlanta, the question of control, etc., having, grown out of an injunction secured by the directors of the university inhibiting the synod from taking any action in regard to the removal of the university from Clarksville.

It is proposed to consolidate the Clarksville institution and the theological seminary now at Columbia, S. C., into one grand university at Atlanta.

GORDON WIPED OUT.

Little Town in Henry County Totally Burned.

The town of Gordon, in Henry county, was wiped out by fire Friday. The mayor of Montgomery was asked for assistance by wire, the statement being that the town was destroyed.

Gordon is a small town of about 400 population on the Atlantic Coast Line railway, and on the Chattahoochee river near Omaga, Ala., and just above the Florida line. It is the shipping point for a vast section of country.

Henry M. Davidson, aged 66 years, died at Augusta, Ga., Saturday. He was born in Charleston, S. C., and was a great grandson of William Austin Washington, a colonel in the continental army and a cousin of George Washington.

Crops of 1904.

The crops of 1904 were larger than those of the present year, but in no year has the value of the cereal crops of the country been of value so great as they are this year.

Hand Crushed.

Mr. James Presly, a man of family, employed by the Cullman oil mill, had his hand terribly mashed in a meal-cake crusher, necessitating amputation just below the elbow.

ARMIES SUFFERING

Chinese Corn Used For Fuel and Fodder Has Become Very Scarce. Little Fighting.

JAPANESE REINFORCED.

Armies Are Within Four Miles of Each Other—Kuropatkin is Still on the Offensive.

There has been no resumption of fighting of a general character on the Shakhe river. Both Russians and Japanese are entrenching their positions. The outposts are within 700 yards of each other, and less than four miles separate the main armies. A scarcity of fuel is causing the soldiers to suffer greatly since cold weather set in. St. Petersburg has information that the Japanese army confronting General Kuropatkin is receiving heavy reinforcements from the Port Arthur army and direct from Japan.

It is believed that General Kuropatkin will be ready for a forward movement at an early moment, unless Japanese reinforcements compel him to remain on the defensive.

Reports that Japanese reinforcements are arriving, taken in connection with the enforced inactivity of the Russian forces on account of the weather are felt to be a grave factor in the situation. There is reason to believe that the Japanese are drawing heavily on the Port Arthur army as well as upon Japan, in hopes of securing a numerical superiority that will enable Field Marshal Oyama to inflict a crushing blow on General Kuropatkin when hostilities are resumed.

The Russian forces on the left have again crossed the Shakhe river and are now pushing forward toward the Japanese positions, entrenching as they advance. At the same time Russian battalions are continually bombarding the Japanese, who can be plainly seen, busily engaged in the making of trenches.

This plan of the Russians to entrench as they advance was adopted because it was found in the recent big battle impossible to advance without some protection in the face of the Japanese shrapnel fire. The Russian batteries are now better screened than they were in former engagements, but the troops on both sides apparently make no great efforts to conceal themselves.

The question of fuel is becoming a serious one. The greater part of the Chinese corn has already been used for fuel and for fodder, while most of the houses in the Chinese villages have been destroyed and their wood used for fuel.

Without fuel and without shelter beyond that provided by the tents, it seems impossible for the armies to remain in the field during the increasing cold weather.

Ambassador Attacked.

Count Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador, returned to London from celebrating his silver wedding with his wife's relatives in Sylvia and barely escaped assault from a crowd at the Victoria station which followed him almost into the embassy. Fortunately for the issue of peace or war, nothing resulted; yet throughout the night a special force of police was compelled to guard the Russian embassy.

Count Benckendorff has always been regarded in official circles as a friend of peace, and he was as much opposed as Count Lamsdorff to the Russo-Japanese war.

Vardaman's Home Sold.

Governor James K. Vandaman has sold his home at Greenwood to F. P. Austin for $11,000, the transfer having been made during his visit to that place last week. The property is located in the heart of the residence district of Greenwood, and is a beautiful old place, surrounded by giant oaks and having a spacious lawn.

Graft for Promotion.

Fire Commissioner Hayes, of New York, has announced the discovery of a plot to obtain from firemen on the eligible list for promotion to higher grades large sums of money. The commissioner was informed of the matter through knowledge which came to a priest in the performance of his church duties.

One of the firemen on the eligible list, on the advice of the priest, called upon the commissioner and stated that a man who is known to make a business of lending money to city employes has offered to secure the firemen immediate promotion by the use of $1,000.

Telegrapher Implicated.

N. W. Hamilton, telegraph operator at Tullahoma, Tenn., has been arrested in connection with the First National bank defalcation at that place. He is charged with conspiring with Allan Parker, the cashier of the bank, to abstract and make away with funds of the institution.

He is alleged to have conducted Parker's bucket shop operations. Hamilton gave bond for $10,000 and was released.

KILLED BY ROBBERS.

Defending His Father-in-Law's Store, Young Man Shot.

L. Hersfield has been shot and fatally wounded while endeavoring to rout three masked robbers who had invaded the grocery of his father-in-law, A. M. Turbin, at Chicago. Hersfield and Turbin were alone in the store when the robbers entered. The proprietor was behind the counter counting the day's receipts, while his son-in-law was in the rear.

The robbers ordered Turbin to throw up his hands and started him toward the rear just as Hersfield came running toward them with a heavy club in his hand.

The desperadoes turned and fled toward the door, where one of them stopped and fired at the young man. The bullet went wide of its mark, but a second struck Hersfield and he fell unconscious. The burglars made their escape.

ATTEMPTED BLACKMAIL.

New York Hotel Proprietor Receives Letters.—Money Demanded.

Three letters, each containing a demand for $5,000 under penalty of death or injury to himself and family for refusal are reported to have been received by the proprietor of a new hotel in upper Fifth avenue, New York City.

Guests of the hostelry, one of the richest in the country, were startled Wednesday morning by an explosion. Inquirers were told that the noise was caused by the bursting of an electric light globe, but it now develops that the would-be blackmailers, having failed to carry out their plan, set off a light charge of some explosive outside the proprietor's apartments on the fourteenth floor of the hotel.

The present police theory points to the attempt as the work of some employe or helper of the hotel.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Woman's Dress Fired by Church Candles.—Was 100 Years Old.

A dispatch from Opelousas, La., says:

While engaged in prayer in the Catholic church here, Mrs. Donald Guiltory, aged 100 years, has been burned to death.

She was bowing before the altar near which a number of candles were burning. Her devotions concluded, she rose to leave the church when her dress came in contact with a candle and in an instant she was ablaze.

Only a few worshippers were in the church at the time and their attention was attracted by the agonizing cries of the centenarian. They ran to the woman's rescue, but too late. She died in agony a few minutes after.

Marine Improvements.

Temporary structures for health and accommodation for the marines on the Isthmus of Panama are necessary if the battalion is to be retained there, says Brigadier-General George F. Elliott, commandant of the marine corps, in his annual report. He submits no estimates for this work. Estimates for the Philippines are also omitted, but the announcement is made that the latter will submit "full and complete recommendations concerning the organization and disposition of marines in the Philippines."

The most important recommendation for improvements in this country is that for an appropriation of $350,000 for the construction of barrack buildings at the navy yard at Mare Island, $50,000 for three additional sets of officers' quarters.

Best Corn Yield.

The largest corn yield reported in Mississippi this year was on the Honey Hill plantation in Coahoma county, where a tract of four and one-half acres produced 255 bushels of a fine variety of corn.

The Christian Church.

The total membership of the church is given at 1,232,000. During the past year there were 94,000 baptisms, showing a gain of 33,000 over the previous year. In regard to the collections during the past year the total amount gathered in from all sources and for all work in the church was $7,400,000.

Rolling Mill to Resume.

The Gate City rolling mill, belonging to the Republic Iron and Steel company, will resume operation on Tuesday, November 1. Preparations are now being made to that end. About three hundred men will be given employment.

There is a good demand for finished iron and steel right now, and following the recent resumption of work at the Birmingham rolling mills, belonging to the Republic company also, indicates that the condition of the trade warrants an increased output. The Gate City rolling mill has been idle since July 2.

The Only Person Honored.

The people of Tuscumbia appreciate in no small degree the honor done Helen Keller by the St. Louis exposition management in designating and setting apart "Helen Keller Day," celebrated on the 15th inst., the exercises being participated in by prominent educators of the deaf, dumb and blind from all parts of the United States. She is the only person in whose honor the exposition has given a day.

ARMIES BURY DEAD.

Russians Abandoned Nine Guns on the Field of Shakhe.

Japan, without referring to the general situation in the vicinity of the Shakhe river, published the following report:

"Since the last telegram referring to the enemy's dead, the bodies left on the field have increased to the following:

"Found by the right army, 6,960.

"Found by the left army, 3,093.

"Found by the center army, 2,450.

"Total, 13,223.

"The number of prisoners captured totals 900."

Emperor Nicholas has received the following dispatch from General Kuropatkin, dated Oct ber 23:

"The night of October 22-23 passed quietly. At 9 o'clock this (Sunday) morning the whole of our volunteer sharpshooters harassed the enemy, while the Japanese tried to attack our outposts, but were everywhere repulsed by the Russian fire."

While clearing the field near the village of Shakhe the Japanese found nine abandoned Russian guns. Their condition has not been reported.

Both armies are resting on their arms. Continuous skirmishes are occurring between outposts and patrols and the artillery firing daily. A battle is expected north of the Hun river, where heavy field works have been erected.

NEW MINES AND FURNACE.

Development of Tennessee Coal and Iron Lands About to Begin.

Chattanooga and Buffalo capitalists are now forming plans for the extensive development of valuable coal and iron lands in Tennessee. They have incorporated the Cumberland Plateau corporation, with a capital stock of $500,000, and are now investigating the various properties on which they have options. These lands are in Cumberland, Morgan and White counties, within a radius of one hundred miles of the city of Chattanooga, there being about 20,000 acres to be utilized. It is understood that coal mines will be opened, iron will be taken out, and eventually an iron furnace will be built to work up the ores into merchantable pig iron.

Railroad Development.

Railroad development is on in the Mississippi delta. The Yazoo and Mississippi Valley road has a corps of engineers at work making the preliminary survey for an extension of its line from Minter City to Belzoni, a distance of about forty-five miles. The corps will also survey a new line from Dockery, on the Sunflower river, to connect with the line from Rosedale.

It is the intention of the Southern railway to extend its Itta Bena branch from Itta Bena to Silver City, in Yazoo county. Progress is being made with the work on the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City road. The laying of rails has commenced at Pontotoc to replace the old narrow guage line, and is being pushed at the rate of two miles per day. The company expects to have trains running through from Mobile to Memphis early next year.

FEDERAL GRAND JURY.

Has Returned Indictments Against Members of the Huntsville Mob.

The United States federal grand jury at Huntsville made a full report and indictments were returned against persons who participated in the Horace Maples lynching, charging them with trying to destroy by fire the jail in which was incarcerated United States prisoners. The report has created a sensation.

CHARTER GRANTED.

England Will Try to Grow Her Own Cotton and be Independent.

The royal charter granted by King Edward has just been delivered to the British Cotton Growing Association. It is expected to be of great assistance to that organization in the work it has undertaken—to relieve Great Britain as far as possible of the necessity of importing cotton from the United States and other foreign countries.

The election November 8 will cost Jefferson county, Ala., $871.10.

New Railroad.

Mr. Theodore Hemingway, in charge of the grading contract for the new railroad from Brookhaven to Monticello, states that his work will be completed within the next few days, and that trains ought to be running over the new line by the 10th or 15th of November.

The Brookhaven-Monticello line is about forty miles in length and is being built as a spur or feeder for the main line of the Illinois Central.

A VOICE FROM THE PULPIT.

Rev. Jacob D. Van Doren, of 57 Sixth street, Fond Du Lac, Wis., Presbyterian clergyman, says: "I had attacks of kidney disorders which kept me in the house for days at a time, unable to do anything. What I suffered can hardly be told. Complications set in, the particulars of which I will be pleased to give in a personal interview to any one who requires information. This I can conscientiously say, Doan's Kidney Pills caused a general improvement in my health. They brought great relief by lessening the pain and correcting the action of the kidney secretions."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Fighting "En Deshabille."

It is reported from Lake Yang, says the Westminster Gazette, that owing to the heat the soldiers often fight in their underclothes. The most remarkable instance of fighting en deshabille is the famous Battle of the Shirts, which took place in 1544 on the shores of Loch Lochy, in the Highlands of Scotland, between a band of Frasers and MacDonalds. The day was so hot that the combatants threw off not only their plaids, but the rest of their clothes and went at it in their shirts. Even then the heat was unbearable, and many, wearied with the big two-handed swords, rushed into the cool waters of the loch and fought there with their dirks. Lord Lovat, whose desperate valor earned for him the name of "Cruaidh Choscar" (the hardy slaughterer), and his son were killed. In fact, it is said that only four of the Frasers came out of the fight alive, and not many more of the MacDonalds, who, however, secured the victory.

Women Who Shun Men.

On a small island in the Greek archipelago there is a colony which is composed entirely of women. It is a sort of religious order which considers it a disgrace for one of its members to even look at a man. When a fisherman approaches the island, the women pull the cowls of their cassocks over their heads and turn their backs. Provisions are never imported, as the women, strict vegetarians, grow their own products. Only the matron, who is annually elected head of the colony, is ever allowed to leave the island. The others remain there all their lives, taking their turn at tilling the soil, washing and housekeeping.

A Record Commodore.

Captain Clay, commodore officer of the London and Northwestern Railway Company's fleet of steamships running between Holyhead and Ireland, who has just retired, has crossed the Irish Sea nearly 20,000 times as commander and has navigated the railway company's vessels about 1,500,000 miles and carried nearly 1,250,000 passengers.

Beware of Ointments For Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

as mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

Labor-Saving Hand Organs.

Labor-saving devices have got to the hand organs at last, says the New York Sun. In one of the latest, instead of the organ man turning the crank, he presses a button. The music plays on till he releases his finger. The music is sweeter than that of other organs and it can be heard blocks away.

Often.

Far too much abuse is leveled at the medium for lack of results, when it is the advertisement itself that is faulty. —Newspaperdom.

The only lithotype in existence is possessed by the inventor and it is claimed that he has issued volumes from it. Printing from aluminum surfaces on the principle of lithography is now an established success, though the art is only several years old. Aluminum, it was found, has a texture which enables it to act the same as a lithographic stone, and it is less expensive and vastly lighter to handle.

As in lithography, the letters or designs are simply traced on the surface of the aluminum, in a greasy ink, and not raised as in type printing. The surface is inked for printing with rollers in the usual way. The ink adheres to the face of the letters or designs because of the affinity of the grease for the ink. The rest of the surface is not inked. A sheet of paper pressed against the inked plate in the usual way thus receives a printed impression.

FIBROID TUMORS CURED.

Mrs. Hayes' First Letter Appealing to Mrs. Pinkham for Help:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I have been under Boston doctors' treatment for a long time without any relief. They tell me I have a fibroid tumor. I cannot sit down without great pain, and the soreness extends up my spine. I have bearing-down pains both back and front. My abdomen is swollen, and I have had fainting spells for three years. My appetite is not good. I cannot walk, or be on my feet for any length of time.

"The symptoms of Fibroid Tumor given in your little book accurately describe my case, so I write to you for advice."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. HAYES, 252 Dudley St. (Roxbury), Boston, Mass.

Mrs. Hayes' Second Letter:

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Sometime ago I wrote to you describing my symptoms and asked your advice. You replied, and I followed all your directions carefully, and to-day I am a well woman.

"The use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound entirely expelled the tumor and strengthened my whole system. I can walk miles now. "Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is worth five dollars a drop. I advise all women who are afflicted with tumors or female trouble of any kind to give it a faithful trial."—(Signed) Mrs. E. F. W. L. DOUGLAS $3.50 SHOES

W. L. Douglas makes and sells more men's $3.50 shoes than any other manufacturer in the world.

The reason W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes are the greatest sellers in the world, is because of their excellent style, easy fitting and superior wearing qualities. If I could show you the difference between shoes made in my factory and those of other makes, you would understand why W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes cost more to make, why they hold their shape, wear longer, and are of greater intrinsic value than any other $3.50 shoe on the market to-day, and why the sales for the year ending July 1, 1904, were [illegible]. W. L. Douglas guarantees their value by stamping his name and price on the bottom. Look for it—take no substitute. Sold by shoe dealers everywhere.

SUPERIOR IN FIT, COMFORT AND WEAR.

"I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes for the past twelve years with absolute satisfaction. I find them superior to all others in fit, comfort and wear. Since I have been in Congress I have recommended them to my friends, and they have purchased them by the dozen pairs." H. C. DE LAMAR, M. C., Fla.

W. L. Douglas uses Corona Colt skin in his $3.50 shoes. Corona Colt is conceded to be the finest Patent Leather made. Fast Color Eyelets used exclusively.

Are Perfumes Disinfectants?

I asked a doctor in England if perfumes are real disinfectants. "No," he said. "How can they be?" I asked a doctor in France the same question, and he answered, "Yes, madame, without doubt," and explained that the basis of every perfume is a strong essential oil of some kind and that these essential oils are antiseptic and possess most valuable disinfecting qualities. Now, which is right?—London Truth.

Can You Eat?

J. B. Taylor, a prominent merchant of Cheneeville, La., says: "I could not eat because I had a weak stomach. I lost all strength and ran down in weight. All that money could do was done, but all hope of recovery vanished. Hearing of some wonderful cures effected by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, I concluded to try it. The first bottle benefitted me, and after taking four bottles, I am fully restored to my usual strength, weight and health." Kodol Dyspepsia Cure digests what you eat and cures. An Alabama Author ss

"The North Star" by Mrs. M. E. Henry Ruffin, of Mobile, is a tale of Norway and her King Olaf. Mythological lore, the dawn of Christianity and stirring adventure are blended into a thrilling tale. We have been introduced to the Christian martyr by all sorts and conditions of writers. It is therefore with a sense of relief that the reader follows the fortunes of the first defenders of the faith into the North, where the hardy, vigerous warlike Norsemen cling with such fierce fevor to the gods of their mythology.

There is every evidence of careful and intelligent research in the volume, which insures the success of "The North Star" among readers not yet familiar with the legends of the North.—Milwaukee Wisconsin.

Stern Parent—So you want to marry my daughter, eh? Well, have you any expectations? Young Man—Yes, I expect you will decline to give your consent, and we shall elope. Stern Parent—Take her, my son, with my blessing; my daughter requires the firm rule of a character like yours.

Good Night.

"What are you doing there, Jennie?" shouted her father.

"I'm just saying good night to George!"

"Well, as it takes you so long I will say it for you. Good night, George."

George went so quickly that he forgot to reply.

Saves Two From Death

THE WORLD Elected Cleveland.

"It may be said without reservation that if the Democratic party in my first campaign had lacked the forceful and potent advocacy of Democratic principles at that time by the NEW YORK WORLD the result might have been reversed."—Grover Cleveland's Letter to The World, May 10, 1903.

Bryan on THE WORLD.

"THE WORLD never during the last twenty years considered itself a party paper. BOTH SIDES OF THE GREAT POLITICAL BATTLE FULLY AND FAIRLY GIVEN.

FIRST NEWS! BEST NEWS!

THE WORLD as the "Chief Champion in America of Democratic Ideas" will be the most interesting newspaper in the country in this Presidential campaign.

It already has a much larger daily circulation than any other morning newspaper in America.

We are beginning a campaign that promises to be memorable in history. By a single act of inspired courage the Democratic leader has restored his party to its old place as the instrument of enlightened reform, sane and practical liberalism, clear-headed progressiveness and constitutional government.

While the question of the standard of value remained an issue all other topics were submerged and the Democracy could not play its historical part. In the absence of that restraining force the Republican party has rioted in imperialism, centralization, militarism, extravagance and privileged injustice. Now the time has come when it can be called to account. Once more a party wisely, bravely and honestly led can raise with hopefulness Tilden's old war cry, "Turn the rascals out!"

The Democracy is ready to correct the abuses of a monopoly-breeding tariff, to promote trade with our neighbors in Canada, to cut short the insane rivalry with the military powers of Europe in armaments made needless by three thousand miles of ocean, to substitute the reign of law for the personal caprice of a military ruler, to restore economy and integrity in government, to bring corporate combinations of capital under legal restraint, and to discourage the [illegible] climatization of the American flag in any country [illegible] dence is a seditious document. To the attainment of these [illegible] pledges all its energies.

To encourage the prompt formation of clubs [illegible] a special commission of 20 per cent. will be [illegible] or parties forming clubs of ten or more, in advance.

An active agent wanted in every election district. Write for particulars.

Sample copies supplied free on application.

Every subscription will be for the DAILY [illegible] FOUR months from the date it begins. [illegible] Address THE WORLD, New York.

WINE of CARDUI

IN SHAKERTOWN.

In Shakertown the people all
Shook late and early, high and small.
Some blamed their ills on their religion,
Some cursed the ague of the region,
Though on the cause they didn't agree—
They shook with unanimity.

A traveler, as he passed that way,
With pity deep, to them did say,
"O, why in this sad state remain,
Whenhere's a cure for every pain?"
Then gave each one—this is no myth—
A bottle labeled "Wintersmith."

'Twixt hope and fear each drank his share;
Was cured completely then and there;
And no more shake these shivering [illegible]
They've grown as quiet as queer-eled Quakers.
Each loves the other with love platonic
And all praise Wintersmith's great tonic.

IN SHAKERTOWN,

In Shakertown the people all
Shook late and early, I rge and small,
Some blamed their ills on their religion;
Some cursed the ague of the region,
Though on the cause they didn't agree—
They shook with unanimity.

A traveler, as he passed that way,
With pity deep, to them did say,
"O, why in this sad state remain,
When here's a cure for every pain?"
Then gave each one—this is no myth—
A bottle labeled "Wintersmith."

'Twixt hope and fear each drank his share;
Was cured completely then and there;
And no more shake these shivering Shak
They've grown as quiet as queer-ied Qua
Each loves the other with love platonic
And all praise Wintersmith's great tonic.

Clanton, Oct. 31, 1904

Editor Banner—As Edler has seen fit to publish a statement of my recent difficulty with him and suppress the truth in reference to the occurrence to the best of his ability, I desire to say that true to my warning, I did give him a genuine and well deserved thrashing. Had he been disposed to tell the people the truth about it, he would have remained silent. I attacked him upon my own responsibility, neither Mr. Dennis nor Mr. Higgins offered any interference except at one time when I had stumbled and fell, Edler, who is several times my weight, sought to get at me while down when Mr. Dennis told him to wait until I had gotten on my feet again. Before that, when I drew my knife to cut Edler's throat, Mr. Higgins interfered in his behalf. Judge Deason was not present and knew nothing of the trouble until it was over with. The first I knew of Judge Deason's demand upon Edler for the name of the author of the article in question, was when I saw Edler's statement of it in his story of the difficulty. I gave Edler every opportunity for escaping punishment before I struck him. I simply gave him the alternative of a personal difficulty or the disclosure of the name of the coward who wrote the scurrilous article. I stated to him several months ago that I would hold him personally responsible for any anonymous publication in his paper which reflected upon my private character, and I expect still to do so. Any man, I care not who he is, nor where he hails from, who will write or publish under an assumed name, anything which reflects upon the integrity of his fellowman is a coward and a thief, and if "Just a Voter" has any manhood in him and would relieve himself of the stigma above named, let him uncover and take the consequences, let them be what they may. This is, so far as I am concerned, an end of the matter, on paper.

THOS. A. CURRY.

Clanton, Ala., Oct. 31, 1904

Editor Banner—I again ask you for a short space in your paper. When Judge Honeycutt makes such statements as appeared in the last issue of the Union, then it is that I stop and wonder "what manner of man some mortals be." I would not say one word Mr. Editor, that could unjustly reflect upon Judge Honeycutt's age, experience or intelligence. What reason he had for his utterances in last week's Union I do not know. I am glad that the Judge said he had known me for a long time, I feel that he will give me credit for being honest in my statements even though we differ in politics. I thought until a short time ago that he was a Democrat and fully in line with the Democratic party. I know that he has claimed that he was elected Judge by the Democrats of the county, and has for the last few years been generally understood a Democrat. And hence you can see why I thought him in line with the Democratic party. But now, the news is broken that Judge Honeycutt is not with the Democrats and that he is lending the opposition his influence (?) giving them the benefit of his opinion as to who should be Probate Judge of Chilton county. He says that Mr. Reynolds is the man for the people to elect. He says that Mr. Reynolds is better fitted and has more ability than I for discharging the duties of the office of Judge of Probate. What are his reasons for saying what he has stated? Judge Honeycutt served the county one term as Probate Judge, and, by the aid of a lawyer, he made a good Judge. From his own utterances I think the people see that he needed counsel. His lawyer was, as you all know, Col. Collier, and he at that time lived in Birmingham, and this was a great inconvenience to the Judge, for telegraphing was not satisfactory, writing was slow, and to go and see him was expensive. The Judge seems to know, and so states, that he knows just who would make the best Judge. He says that man is Mr. Reynolds, and intimates that he (Reynolds) would not be under the control of a lawyer. In this he intimates that Mr. Reynolds is much better qualified than he was. That Mr. Reynolds would be able to run the whole business without the aid or counsel of any one. Also that Mr. Reynolds would not show partiality to any class or element. In the name of all fairness has the Judge any right to insinuate that I would not be as fair and safe as Mr. Reynolds? I would like for him to give his reasons for such statements as he made last week. I say that he has not dealt fairly with me and can prove it. If he was ever in the office while I was Clerk I don't remember it, and I certainly know that I have not had the pleasure of seeing him or had his distinguished presence in the office since I have been Judge of Probate. Will he please tell the people just one official act of mine that showed the people that I could not and was not capable of attending to the duties of the office? Haven't I waited upon some of the biggest courts the county ever had and without a reprimand from the Judge or kick from any of the lawyers? The people who have attended court know this to be true, but Judge Honeycutt, who rarely comes to court, even may not know it. Has anything happened since I have been Judge of Probate to lead him to believe that I can't discharge the duties of office as well as Mr. Reynolds? Judge Honeycutt lives about 15 miles from the court house, and never has a great deal of business with any officer, and how in the world he can say what he has said I can't understand and the people won't understand it either like he wanted them to.

It may be that he refers to Mr. Reynolds and myself as to "fitness and ability" from an educational view point. I think Judge Honeycutt is a man who can appreciate the importance of an education in filling a public office, and as I am not a collegiate he may think my education deficient. I know that my penmanship is not the best, nor that which is admired by all, neither is my spelling at all times correct, but I do know that I can write a little, spell a little and solve a few problems in arithmetic. I don't remember that I ever spelled politics with a "y" and added "ks." I am not the author of a dictionary, a bureau of information, nor a walking encyclopeadia. I have been in public office for six years and am willing for my official record to be examined and criticised but with all fairness to Judge Honeycutt, I think it nothing but right that my judges or critics be those who have done business with me and have come in contact with me in an official way. I am willing for the people of my county, who have done business with me to say whether or not I have treated them honest and right, and to show Judge Honeycutt that I mean to be fair with him, I will not refer to anyone in Clanton, not the "set of little lawyers" he seemed to think had so much influence over me, but cite him to such men as Judge

MURDER AT MAPLESVILLE.

Last Sunday evening, about 3 o'clock, at Maplesville, Jim Harden (colored) shot and instantly killed G. W. Davenport, at his residence.

Two other negroes were fighting outside Davenport's home, and he went out to send them away from his house, when Hardin stepped up behind him, and taking the pistol from Davenport shot him twice, once in the breast and then in the head. Davenport fell dead at his feet. Harden then ran off toward Mulberry swamp, and a posse was organized to hunt him, but up to the present he has not been found. The citizens of Maplesville have made up a reward of $150 for his capture, and Gov. Cunningham has offered a reward of $150. Sheriff Morgan as soon as he was notified of the killing, went out to Maplesville Sunday eveing, calling for Deputy Lee Hayes on the way. They tried to find the negro Sunday night and Monday, but failing to catch him Sheriff Morgan went to Montgomery to see the Governor, who offers a reward of $150 for the delivery of Harden to the Sheriff of Chilton county. Davenport was a man of excellent character, leaves a widow and four or five children. He was buried Monday at the Mulberry graveyard. Great indignation is felt throughout the county.

It was rather curious, says the New York World, that on Dewey's golden anniversary in the navy an old Spanish shell in Manila should have exploded and done more damage than the Spanish fire in the battle of Manila did to the entire American fleet.

The wrecking of a trolley car at Melrose, Mass., by striking a fifty-pound box of dynamite, which had fallen from a wagon, makes one wonder how a fifty-pound box of dynamite managed to fall from a wagon without something happening sooner, says the Indianapolis News.

John Wanamaker says that it is better to be a poor man and a rich Christian than to be a rich man and a poor Christian, and the Wellsville Reporter derives from this the conclusion that to be a poor man and also a poor Christian is about the limit, says the Syracuse Post-Standard.

The Brooklyn police comfort a man who has been "burglarized" while at the theatre by telling him that he ought to give notice at the station house when he leaves his home for three hours. Police sleuths never did lack ingenuity — in some directions, comments the New York World.

Suits for alienation of affection are always instructive as reducing affection to a dollars and cents basis. To a poor young man, for example, a fellow citizen who values his wife's affection at $10,000 may easily seem to have had a remarkable helpmate; while to a millionaire it might appear that a $10,000 wife was hardly worth going to law about anyway.

The visiting Primate having been shaken up in a railway accident and the President having narrowly escaped one on his journey to Washington, D. C., it is a suitable time for managers in general to consider the question whether the railroads are run as carefully, with as close attention to the details of operation, as they ought to be, the New York Tribune declares.

The Manassas manoeuvres are intended to help bring about co-operation between regulars and militia as one result, says the New York Tribune. Jefferson called the militia "our general reliance for great and sudden emergencies," and the remark is still true of this part of our army service, and the recent manoeuvres are expected to demonstrate more clearly the latent military power of this part of our army establishment.

In few days of this century were so many automobile, trolley and railroad accidents chronicled as in the daily journals of Monday, August 29, the New York Tribune remarks. Almost every imaginable sort of disaster which could be attributed to human folly and recklessness reaped its harvest of victims. It surely ought not to be impossible in some way to bring about a greater degree of carefulness, self-restraint and foresight in our thoroughfares of business, recreation and travel.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS

National Commissioner of Education Submits Report For a Year.

COST OF THE SCHOOL SYSTEM.

One-fifth of Our Population Attends School—Ninety-six Reform Schools.

The report of the commissioner of education for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1904, made public by the secretary of the interior shows 16,009,361 pupils, or 20 per cent of the entire population of the country, attending the public schools during that year. As compared with the previous six years, this percentage shows a light decrease in the number of pupils, as compared with the total population. The total cost of the public school system is given at $251,457,625. This is an increase of $16,000,000 over the previous year. It amounts to $3.15 per capita of total population, and $22.75 per capita per pupil.

Since 1870 the proportion of male teachers has decreased from 34 per cent of the entire number to 25 per cent of the entire number the past year. The average compensation for male teachers last year was $49.98 and $40.51 for females. This is a slight increase over the previous year.

The enrollment in the private schools for the year is given as $1,093,876. By the addition of pupils in elementary schools, academies, institutions for high education, evening schools, business schools, private kindergartens and schools for defective orphans, the grand total of 18,187,918 pupils is reported.

The report estimates that the average schooling given to each inhabitant in 1870 was 672 days and in 1903, 1,034 days. The report shows that last year 1,578,632 colored children were enrolled in the common schools for that race in the former sixteen slave states and the District of Columbia. The enrollment in 1877, the first year statistics were taken of the colored schools, was 571,506. Since 1876 it is estimated that $130,000,000 has been expended in the education of the colored children in the former slave states and nearly $600,000,000 for the same purpose for the white children of the same section. Ninety-six reform schools are recorded with 31,468 inmates, 21,603 of which are learning useful trades.

ALABAMA BANKS.

Data on Organization and Capitalization.

From May, 1900, to October 26, 1904, there were 98 banks organized in the state of Alabama, representing a total capital stock of $6,402,500. Of this number 64 were state banks, with a combined capital of $4,067,500, and 34 were national banks, with a gross capital of $2,335,000.

For this year, up to October 26, there have been organized fifteen state banks with a total capital of $640,000 and 9 national banks with $492,000.

During the above period the bank incorporated with the largest capital was the City Bank and Trust Company, of Mobile, under the state laws, with a capital of $500,000, on April 2, 1903. The two largest national banks, with a $200,000 capital each, were the Fourth National bank, of Montgomery, and Selma National bank.

Two representatives of the British Cotton Growing association are now in the West Indies advising the people to engage in the cultivation of cotton. The area in Jamaica devoted to cotton growing is being extended, and a big company is being formed in England to develop the industry there.

Improvements at Meridian.

Announcement is made by J. A. Gibson, secretary and treasurer of the Meridian Light and Railway company, that $100,000 will be expended at once on improvements of the line. Five hundred tons of new seventy-pound steel rails have been purchased and the company will begin in November to take up all the lighter rails and replace them with the heavier ones. A downtown loop will be built to avoid the congestion of traffic and for the convenience of the public. An extension of one and a half miles will also be built in the cotton mill district.

Alabama Railroads.

The gross earnings of the railroads of Alabama for the year ending June 20th last were $28,222,829.72, compared to $27,615,657.99 for the previous 12 months, the increase being $607,261.72. The operating expenses were $21,379,412.96 in the year last ended, an increase from $20,845,526.60, or $533,886.36 in excess of the figures for 1902-3. The total mileage at this time is 5,762.14, an increase of 145.21 from the previous year.

ALABAMA TAX VALUES.

Have Risen Steadily for Twenty Years. Now Aggregate $323,000,000.

The assessed valuations of Alabama properties in 1884, twenty years ago, was $167,124,891, or $156,941,119 less than the figures of the assessments of 1904, which are $323,165,710.

The total receipts from the state's resources in 1884 were $830,831, while they were $3,201,840 in 1903, and will be about the same this year, notwithstanding the reduction in the tax rate from 75c to 65c on the $100.

The state taxes were $772,596 in 1903; they will be $807,593 by the assessment of 1904. The three mill tax for schools will be $868,636 for 1904 compared to $725,873 the year previous.

For the year ending August 31, 1904, the net receipts from the convict department were $267,965. For the time between October 1, 1903, and September 24, 1904, the convict department turned into the state treasury over and above all expenses $299,012.

There are a great many sources of revenue for the state outside of taxes. Licenses, redemption of lands, fees, corporation and franchise taxes, sales of tax lands, and other lands owned by the state, insurance fees and convict department, sales of books, all bring in big sums. Last year the total state tax collections were, exclusive of soldier and school, $1,530,000, while the total receipts were $3,201,840.

The $968,630 assessed to schools this year does not represent all the school fund, which is much over a million dollars this year. The old soldier fund is also to be largely augmented by special appropriations.

PHOTOS REQUIRED

Hereafter on Civil Service Examination Papers.

Much crookedness in civil service examinations has been stopped by the recent issuance of orders requiring that a photograph must be attached by each applicant to his examination papers. The photographs must not be more than three years old and it must be accompanied by an official certification that it is a good likeness. The photograph and sample of the applicant's handwriting will be sent for comparison to the chief of the division to which he is assigned. The order was the result of the discovery that many dummies were being employed to take examinations for applicants, and were paid either a fixed sum or a percentage of the applicant's salary each month after appointment. The frauds were especially large in connection with places in the Philippines.

JAPANESE VESSEL

Said to be Accountable for the North Sea Trouble.

Only two days before the North sea incident the consul general of one of the important nations represented at Paris wrote a letter saying that Demetrios Iviopos, living formerly at Patros, Greece, has made the following statement to the consul general:

Iviopos shipped as master's cook from a port in Scotland on board the Japanese ship Itsima. The ship came to Brest, whence she began making trips of surveillance of channel ships, took in the Japanese flag and raised sometimes the American flag, and sometimes the Swedish flag. Iviopos perceiving that the Itsima was not on an ordinary merchant cruise, but was engaged in a dangerous mission of surveillance over Russian ships, left the ship at Brest, came here and reported to the Russian authorities.

Water Too Low.

Low water in the Tennessee river has caused the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway to suspend all freight and passenger traffic from Hobbs Island to Guntersville. The transfer boats can not pick their way between the two points and they will be tied up until there is a rise.

Bridge Condemned.

The big draw bridge at New Hope, across the Paint Rock river, erected by Madison and Marshall counties jointly, has been condemned by commissioners of both counties and has been ordered closed to the public until repairs can be made. Two of the piers have been found defective.

MONTGOMERY WATER.

System to be Modernized at Expense of $200,000.

Rudolph Herring, expert engineer of New York, has gone to advise with Montgomery officials in the matter of putting in new water works. Forty miles of water pipe will be laid, one new reservoir will be constructed, two stand pipes erected and an eight million gallon pump installed.

The whole system will cost $200,000. Mr. Herring receives $75 a day and expenses. He installed the present sanitary sewer system of Montgomery.

Ginnery Fire.

The ginnery of Garey G. Mitchell, about seven and one-half miles southeast of Opelika, Ala., was destroyed by fire, causing a loss of about $2,500, with no insurance. The fire originated from a match being dropped in a roll of cotton. Besides the fine ginnery there were burned a bale of cotton, the seed house, with a quantity of seed, and several other out-buildings.

BUILDING COLLAPSED

Continental Bank of Memphis Weakened by Excavations. Several Injured.

ONLY ONE FATALITY OCCURRED.

Burning of the Ruins Prevented—Losses Will Aggregate Something Over $100,000.

With a crash that shook the whole city, the Continental Bank building, otherwise known as the Hood building, collapsed at Memphis Monday morning.

The building was five stories in height, and its estimated value was $100,000. The officers of the Continental bank and several workmen and others were buried in the ruins.

Of the fourteen men buried nine had been rescued at 1:10. They were all alive, but a brief examination shows that many are injured.

The building adjoined on the left the New Tennessee Trust company's building, in process of erection. For the foundations of the latter extensive excavations had been made under the bank. The latter building was old and was built almost entirely of brick.

The crash came at 9:40. The scene for the next hour was one of horrible confusion. It was thought for a long time that there were more in the building than there were.

The dead body of Winters Parker, the colored porter, was taken from the cellar of the wrecked building. The negro's head had been badly crushed by falling brick. This is the only fatality reported, and at 6 o'clock the police announced it as their belief that no more bodies were in the ruins.

It seems that there were a number of vacant rooms in the structure and that from the uncrushed portion, many escaped without bruises.

What the loss will be can scarcely be estimated. The building alone was valued at $100,000. Much adjoining property was wrecked and the Tennessee Trust building, which was being built is almost destroyed.

The building was occupied by several large real estate offices, many of which had valuable furnishings. The Memphis Scimitar had its headquarters there at one time.

ATTACK ON PORT ARTHUR.

Russian Powder Magazine Exploded. Skirmishing.

A third general attack on Port Arthur is expected to have begun on October 24th, and to have been still in progress on the 26th. On the latter day the Russians' only smokeless powder magazine was exploded, the fire spreading to the town. Russian trenches on the slope of Rihulin mountain were taken by the Japanese. In the vicinity of the Shakhe river there have been no developments of moment.

There have been a number of skirmishes along the whole front, but no development of any serious import has appeared, though the armies are in the closest touch and a general engagement may be precipitated at any time. At one point the trenches are only 400 yards apart. They are separated by a small stream which is the only water supply in the neighborhood. By mutual consent there is no firing on the water carriers who visit the stream with buckets.

War History.

Judge James Aiken, of Gadsden, who commanded a company in the Thirteenth infantry during the war, has signified his intention of writing a narration of the Thirteenth infantry for the department of archives and history at Montgomery.

Engineers Strike.

A strike of the hoisting engineers in 240 coal mines in Illinois is scheduled. The walk-out will effect about 60,000 workmen, and is expected to result in a cessation of operations. The refusal of the engineers to accept a reduction in wages or to arbitrate that proposition is the cause of the struggle.

Cotton in Mexico.

The cotton mills of Mexico will be compelled to import heavily from the United States during the next several months. The cotton crop of the republic has fallen below expectations, due to continued drought in many of the cotton growing sections, and the yield will not exceed 65,000 bales. It is estimated that the mills will consume almost double this amount of cotton, and consequently between 60,000 and 65,000 bales will have to be imported from the United States. There are now more than 150 cotton mills in operation in Mexico, and approximately 25,000 operatives are given employment.

Out on Bail.

At Athens, after a prolonged trial, John M. Morris and his son, Walter, who have been in jail since the last of June, were admitted to bail in the sum of one thousand dollars each. They are charged with being in a conspiracy to kill B. F. Grisham, and the shooting of Andrew Vaughan and Professor William McClellan.

The court refused to admit to bail John Morris, Jr., who fired the fatal shot at the memorable picnic.

NEARING COMPLETION.

Last Tunnel on Seaboard Air Line is Cut Through.

Daylight has been let through the last of the tunnels on the Seaboard Air Line Railway.

Announcement was made Saturday afternoon, the contractors then having safely made the excavation sufficiently wide to preclude the immediate danger of a cave-in. Woodwork is being placed in position to act as lining for the tunnel throughout, closely clinging to this lining the permanent brick work will be placed.

The entire Seaboard line is completed, including grading and tracklaying, except five miles included in which is this tunnel. All the grading is completed in that stretch of space, however, except the leveling at the last excavation of the tunnel. This piece must be brought down to grade and the ties and rails laid. The contractors in charge gave it as their expert opinion that within three weeks they would have completed the entire work and turned it over to the railroad company ready for operation.

While nothing official is being given out regarding the exact cost of constructing the road, men in positions to be able to estimate very closely do not hesitate to discuss it. Up to date, with the "finishing touches" yet to be applied, the cost including purchase of the old East and West road, has been $38,000 per mile. Approximating the distance from Birmingham to Atlanta as 165 miles, at about which the roadway will be opened, the cost of construction, including the purchase referred to, will be to date, $6,270,000. The same authorities estimate that before completion, an additional cost of $7,000 per mile will be necessary making the completed cost of construction, etc., $45,000 per mile. This makes the total cost of construction $7,425,000.

AUTAUGA AFFAIRS.

Grand Jury Report Developed No Sensations.

Examiner Sedberry made his report on the affairs of Autauga county in June and July, but it was not made public till read before the grand jury. In this report the examiner criticised the probate judge for failing to qualify as county judge to try criminal cases. On investigation the grand jury ascertained that the general law for county courts had been abolished so far as it pertained to criminal jurisdiction in this county, about thirty years ago. The grand jury completely exonerated the probate judge of all charges, and expressed full faith in his integrity.

The examiner's report also criticised the board of revenue on account of its failure to have all claims presented against the county properly verified before issuing warrants for them. The grand jury learned that the county had not been imposed upon by reason of the instances where the accounts had not been verified. The grand jury exonerated the board of revenue. It was made plain to the jury that the present board had taken hold of the affairs of the county while the county owed something near $5,000, and, without an increase of the tax rate, paid off the entire indebtedness, and spent nearly $20,000 on public roads and bridges during the past five years.

This grand jury considered 49 cases, examined 139 witnesses and returned 34 true bills, all in four days.

New Industries in Mississippi.

Bay St. Louis—$10,000 turpentine company.

Clarksdale—$50,000 cotton compress.

50,000 TONS

Of Ensley Steel Rails Ordered by Louisville and Nashville.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company will begin in January to make the first delivery of its order for fifty thousand tons of steel rails to the Louisville and Nashville railroad. The price to be paid is $28 per ton.

NORTH AND SOUTH RAILROAD

French Capital Said to Be Behind New Scheme.

A dispatch from [illegible] says:

Edward D. Stieger, president of the Denison, Bonham and New Orleans railroad, has just returned from France, where he has been for three months arranging with one of the largest banking institutions of the continent for the financing of what will be the first through railway north and south in America. It is to run from Duluth, Minn. via Kansas City to Galveston, Texas, with subordinate lines. The construction will amount to about 3,000 miles. The road is to be completed in five years. The contract with the French syndicate is for an investment of $75,000,000. Construction will begin in Texas within sixty days, according to Mr. Stieger.

FOUR STEAMERS BURNED

And One Life Lost in a Brooklyn Fire.

One man is dead, several millions and $1,000,000 worth of property destroyed in a fire which burned four ocean steamers, several piers and the warehouses of terminal companies' stores in South Brooklyn.

The dead is Patrick Cushing, a policeman, who was caught by the flames at the end of the pier.

The vessels burned are the American, Arizonian and Nebraskan of the German Hawaiian Steamship company and Citto Di Palermo, of the Italian line.

Whether all the crews escaped is not known. Officials believe the fire was of incendiary origin, as the company desired to close a number of streets, which was bitterly opposed by the residents.

TAX VALUES INCREASED.

Mississippi Breaks Her Record This Year.

Mississippi has made a new record in the matter of increased valuations of personal property for the fiscal year just ended. One year ago the valuation of personality was $[illegible], whereas it is now $87,043,[illegible], an increase of $16,294,027. This is the largest increase the state has ever had in a single year. In fact, the increase last year over the year previous in both realty and personalty was $10,283,324, but there was no assessment of realty this year. The total valuations of the state this year will be in the neighborhood of $4,[illegible],000, on which the state will raise six mills in the way of taxes, and of them one-half of which will go to the cause of public education.

COTTON GINNED.

Government Report and Compared Statement Issued.

A bulletin issued by the census bureau gives a summary of the report on cotton ginned in the United States in the present year up to October 18. The reports cover ninety-six counties and show a total of 426,882 running bales as against 292,669 running bales reported for the same counties for the same period last year.

The number of ginneries from which reports were received is 2,161, as against 2,342 for 1902.

A comparative statement for 1903 shows that up to October 18 that year a total of 3,829,627 bales had been ginned. The total number of counties from which ginning was reported in 1903 was 812, and the number of bales 27,723.

REPORT OF CONVICTS!

Submitted by President Carmichael of the State Board of Inspectors.

STATEMENT OF THE FINANCES.

Some History of the System—Health of Prisoners—Boys at Speigners.

The annual report of Judge J. M. Carmichael, president of the state board of convict inspectors, has been filed with the governor.

Judge Carmichael begins with a brief review of the history of the system and points out the difficulties which were encountered under the old plan of leasing convicts.

The report says in part:

"Since the last biennial report between 700 and 800 convicts, not here before under the immediate control of the department have fallen immediately into the care of the department. Prior to the 1st of January, 1903, convicts were made with the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, and the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company for the mining of coal, at 80 cents per ton, the department having entire control and management of the convicts, feeding, clothing, medicine, etc., all the men laboring at the two places.

"During the present year a contract has been made with the Dunham Lumber company to work from 50 to 65 men in saw milling at Dunham, the agreement to have the exclusive care and treatment of the convicts.

"The Sloss company was required to move its prison to the present location at Flat Top because of the death rate in the prison formerly occupied by them. The mortality was a great grief to each of the inspectors of the department and so continued until the people were removed. Their present location is very comfortable and healthy.

"The report reviews the project for a reformatory for negro boys under 16 years of age at Speigners.

"In pursuance of this section and the ordinance of the board referred to, camps separate and apart from other convicts have been established with department for night teaching, and the boys all gathered from the several camps in the state where they were found and placed there, numbering something like thirty-five to forty. They are now engaged in picking coal and will be employed at such work as they are able to do during their imprisonement, and at night instructed in spelling, reading and writing.

"The inspectors report that it is impracticable to operate the cotton mill at Speigners.

"This department is now engaged in mining coal for Pratt mines at 73 cents per ton, delivered over the tipple, and for the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company at Flat Top, at 43 cents per ton, delivered at the mouth of the mine. This, at the outset, was an experiment, many people predicting that it would be a failure, and a few believing and hoping that it would be a success.

"The expenses in running the mines have been very heavy, not more so, however, than we reasonably expected from the beginning.

"That the success of the present management may be fully understood, it may not be amiss to state, that for the year next before the beginning of the term of the present management, there was received into the state treasury, as shown by the treasurer's report, the sum of $6,527.82. At the end of the first fiscal year, after March 1, 1904, the net receipts were $84,157.56; for the next, $95,273.49; for the next, $[illegible].17, and for the year ending August 31, 1904, the net receipts were $[illegible],965.75. The whole sum earned during the two years ending August 31, 1904, was $469,789.40. The whole sum paid into the treasury for the two years ending August 31, 1904, was $[illegible],291.97. To this may be added $[illegible],828.52 earned, but not yet paid in, making the whole net sum earned $[illegible],220.49."

Louisiana Gets the Best.

Governor Vardaman, of Mississippi, has received a petition from the raw oyster dealers along the Mississippi coast urging that steps be taken to negotiate the agreement previously entered into between the states of Mississippi and Louisiana regarding the disputed oyster reefs and fishing territory, concerning which litigation is now pending before the United States supreme court.

The neutral ground described in the agreement includes some of the best oyster reefs in the Mississippi sound, and the Louisiana boats take oysters from them, but the Mississippi boats are unable to do so on account of Louisiana's armed patrol.

JUDGE RANDOLPH

Assailed by Montgomery Grand Jury, but Cases Not Pressed.

Judge Francis C. Randolph was acquitted of the charge of embezzling funds from the state. The jury was out twenty hours. On motion of the solicitor all the other cases, except those of the state and two private cases, were nol prossed.

PAYMASTER REPORTS.

Recommends Improvements in Standard of Officers and at Stations.

That an appointee to the pay corps shall not receive his commission as assistant paymaster until he has served one year as acting paymaster and until his physical, mental, moral and professional qualities have been examined and approved by a board of pay officers, appointed by the secretary of the navy, is the recommendation made by Rear Admiral H. T. B. Harris, paymaster general of the navy. The recommendation has the approval of the secretary.

Enlistment of chief yeomen directly from civil life is urged, $45,000 in stores having been lost in the last year by incompetent yeomen. Increase of the naval supply fund to $5,000,000 is earnestly requested.

Among the improvements at the navy yards which the report deems necessary are general storehouses at Washington and Norfolk, a lumber shed and steel storehouse at Charleston, S. C., general storehouses at San Juan and Guantanamo, a storehouse for provisions at Mare Island and a lumber shed and yard at League Island. Improvement in the navy radios on specified line is recommended.

VETERANS' REUNION.

Call Issued for Mobile November 15 and 16—Other Bodies Also.

Major General George P. Harrison, commander of the Alabama division of the United Confederate Veterans, has issued an order through his adjutant general and chief of staff, Col. Harvey E. Jones, calling a reunion at Mobile on November 15 and 16. The order urges the different camps in the state to elect delegates and alternates at once. The major general earnestly desires every camp in his division to send delegates to Mobile, and cordially invites every Confederate veteran, whether a member of the camp or not, to join his old comrades on this occasion. The United Daughters of the Confederacy, Sons of Veterans and members of kindred organizations are especially included in this invitation. Commander Owen, of the Sons of Veterans, has already issued an order calling the sons together at Mobile on the same dates. The sponsor for the veterans is Miss Lucille Washburn.

RESTRAINING ORDER

Which Affects Warrior Canal Building Has Been Issued.

A restraining order has been issued against the firm of Willard and Cornwall and Richard E. Prowell, of New York.

According to the bill the surety company went on the bond of Willard and Cornwall for $500,000. The company was to build a dam at lock No. 4 on the Black Warrior river in Alabama. It is alleged that after completing some of the work the company transferred their contract to Prowell, who, it is alleged, has been conducting the work in an unsatisfactory manner.

As a result of this a number of suits are threatened, and Prowell has so far refused to pay the amount of the outstanding debts.

May Import Japanese.

A movement is on foot by railroad men and mill owners to import about 1,500 Japanese laborers from California and the Pacific coast to work in the mills in Mississippi. The mill men are experiencing great difficulty in securing either white or black labor and it is thought that the Japanese will fill the vacancies made by the scarcity of common labor.

Three Disagreements.

L. E. Huffman, the alleged murderer of United States Marshal J. N. Holsenback, is in the Jefferson county jail. Huffman has just had his third mistrial.

Burned to Death.

Mrs. M. J. Collier, of Merrimac, fell down the stairs of her residence with a lighted lamp in her hands. The fall broke the lamp and ignited the oil, the unfortunate woman being burned to death in the flames. In an endeavor to smother the fire with bed quilts, the quilts caught fire and the house was almost destroyed.

Sensation Sprung.

At Anniston the Haynes murder trial has taken a sensational turn, owing to the statement of Ed White, a witness from Etowah county, who claims that John Haynes offered him $200 to swear that Turner was the man who applied a vile epithet. This, the witness claimed, he declined to do, and was told that he would be troubled for ten years, accepting the statement as a threat that the case would be continued that long.

Appointed Postmaster.

Henry White has been appointed postmaster at Lockhart, Covington county, vice John B. Rider, removed.

Nearly 7,000 New Cars.

The man with but little experience at farming sometimes does well in the production of some specialty because it takes less time to learn about one crop than to learn about them all. BY PROXY.

What the Baby Needed.

I suffered from nervousness and headache until one day about a year ago it suddenly occurred to me what a great coffee drinker I was, and I thought maybe this might have something to do with my trouble, so I shifted to tea for awhile, but was not better, if anything, worse.

"At that time I had a baby four months old that we had to feed on the bottle, until an old lady friend told me to try Postum Food Coffee. Three months ago I commenced using Postum, leaving off the tea and coffee, and not only have my headaches and nervous troubles entirely disappeared, but since then I have been giving plenty of nurse for my baby and have a large, healthy child now.

"I have no desire to drink anything but Postum and know it has benefited my children, and I hope all who have children will try Postum and find out for themselves what a really wonderful food drink it is." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Both tea and coffee contain quantities of a poisonous drug called Caffeine that directly affects the heart, kidneys, stomach and nerves. Postum is made from cereals only, scientifically blended to get the coffee flavor. Ten days' trial of Postum in place of tea or coffee will show a health secret worth more than a gold mine. There's a reason.

MINE EXPLOSION

In Colorado Results in Loss of a Score of Lives. Mine Burning.

RESEMBLED A VOLCANO.

Supposed to Have Been Caused by Dust—Number of Dead Not Known Positively.

A terrific explosion occurred at mine number 3 of the Rocky Mountain Fuel and Iron company at Terolo, Col., and the number of dead is placed between thirty and forty men.

The number reported as having gone into the mine was seventeen miners and four camp men. Many more are known to have gone into the mine and the exact number of dead may never be known, as the mine is burning and the bodies may be cremated.

United States Inspector Foreman was present when the explosion occurred. He gives the following account of the affair:

"I was standing not more than 300 yards from the mouth of the tunnel when the explosion occurred. The explosion was preceded by a low rumbling sound resembling an earthquake which made the earth tremble and startled the whole camp.

"I looked toward the mine and out of the mouth of the tunnel and two airshafts came a volume of smoke and dust which continued for nearly a minute. Out of the two airshafts, each of which are seven feet in diameter, timbers that were fully two or three feet in diameter were shot into the air and broken into splinters.

"Rocks were thrown about for a distance of a mile. Broken timbers and all kinds of debris were thrown out for fully a minute and many people were injured by these missiles.

"The explosion was for all the world like a volcano eruption. Women, men and children rushed to the mouth of the tunnel and women whose husbands were in the mine had to be brought away by miners to keep them from being killed by the deadly fumes coming from the mouth of the tunnel."

The mine in which the accident occurred works 140 men and it is thought that at least sixty were in the mine at the time. Hundreds of men are trying to get into the mine, but deadly fumes overcome them frequently, their places being taken by others ready to risk their lives.

LATER.

The number of dead will not be ascertained until the mine is thoroughly explored. The men are foreigners who had been recently imported to take the place of strikers, and their names have not been learned.

Hundreds of miners from other camps are working in three-hour shifts in the effort to reach the bodies, but the work is slow and extremely dangerous on account of the formation, the ground constantly sliding and caving in. Three bodies so badly burned and mutilated as to be unrecognizable were taken out. Most of the other dead are supposed to be in rooms about 1,000 feet further in the tunnel. The mine is completely wrecked.

Lumber Mill Wrecked.

A fatal accident has occurred at Satilla Bluff, Ga. The large boilers in the mill of the Hilton-Dorge Lumber company exploded. The mill property was practically demolished. Three negro workmen were killed outright. The body of one man was blown across the river.

The mill was a large one, cutting forty or fifty thousand feet per day. Operations are suspended indefinitely.

Will Live in Washington.

Mrs. Florence Maybrick, who has been recently released from prison in England, has decided to make Washington her home, for the reason that the city is most convenient for her while she is engaged in the preparation for the litigation in connection with the establishment of her right in the estate left by her father.

NO INDICTMENTS

Returned by the Grand Jury at Statesboro, Ga.

So far as the present grand jury of Bullock county, Ga., is concerned the lynchers of the negroes Cato and Reed will go free. The jury adjourned without returning indictments against the rioters of Aug. 16.

Judge Daly said in discussing the matter to the jury, that he did not see why indictments were not returned, and spoke in such a manner as to indicate disappointment and disapproval of the failure to indict the rioters.

Gins Burned.

The gin of J. H. Robinson, some 20 miles below Selma was completely destroyed by fire. A match is believed to have been accidently thrown into the cotton and the building immediately caught fire.

Two gins were burned in eastern Cullman county. One was the Martin ginnery at Baileyton, the loss reaching $2,500, and the other that of Schulz & Elkins at Walters, the loss being $2,000.

DEWEY WILL COMMAND.

Naval Maneuvers for This Winter Mapped Out.

Admiral Dewey will probably assume command of the Caribbean sea fleet and direct the winter maneuvers. Early in December Rear Admiral Jewell, now commanding the European squadron, will start for the Caribbean. Later he will be joined off Culebra by Rear Admiral Chadwick with the South Atlantic squadron and Rear Admiral Sigsbee with the Caribbean squadron. January 10th the combined fleet will rendezvous at Guantanamo, where Admiral Dewey will assume command and the winter maneuvers will begin. Target practice will occur either at Pensacola or near Key West, and the results of this target practice will decide the winners of the trophy for the battleship, gunboat and torpedo boat record. Special precautions will be taken against the recurrence of an accident that occurred off Pensacola last spring and all the ships by that time will be fitted with blowers which will make blow backs practically impossible. The fleet engaged in the maneuvers will be the largest and most powerful that has ever been assembled under the United States flag and the maneuvers will be the most comprehensive ever attempted by the navy department.

KUROPATKIN TO MOVE.

Weather is More Favorable and Russians are Reinforced.

General Linevitch, the new commander of the Siberian army, is sixty-six years old, but he is as active as a young man, and is immensely popular among the Siberian troops, whom he commanded in the "boxer" war. He acted as commander-in-chief of the Russian forces prior to General Kuropatkin's appointment and arrival in Manchuria.

Operations in Manchuria have again lulled, the Japanese and Russians apparently contenting themselves with partial successes, the Russians having captured a couple of villages on the western flank, while the Japanese carried the Buddhist temple on the hill east of and near Benaipiutze.

According to a correspondent two machine guns which had been abandoned by the Russians have been completely dismantled and their barrels separated.

General Kuropatkin has now sufficient reinforcements to replace the 45,000 men officially admitted to have been killed, wounded or missing in the battle of Shakhe.

Fine warm weather has set in. The general feeling is that an advance can not be delayed if General Kuropatkin still hopes to reach Port Arthur before the fortress falls.

TENNESSEE COA LLANDS

To Be Developed By $1,000,000 Of Chicago Capital.

Messrs. N. C. Chapman, Charles Spalding and Henry E. Weaver, all have been on an investigating tour of their coal lands in Tennessee's coal regions. Mines have been opened at Crawford, Waldensia and Mill Stone, and in the near future operations will be extended throughout the entire Cumberland mountain section. It is stated that the steaming coal obtained is of a high grade, and that the quality is equal to that found in Pennsylvania.

According to reports emanating from Nashville, the Chicago operators named above have determined to expend about $1,000,000 to further develop their holdings.

Mobile Bonds.

At the election on November 8 the county of Mobile will vote on an issue of $200,000 of bonds to build a new jail, repair the court house and build an asylum. It is expected that the jail will be one of the best in the south.

A Long Dry Spell.

A Mississippi weather phophet says there will be no rain worth mentioning in the state before the middle of December. He gives it as his opinion that Pearl river will reach the very lowest stage ever known to history, and that there will be a great deal of suffering on account of the small water supply for man and beast.

Wants Case Money.

The papers in the case of former Tax Collector John Case, of Mobile county, who has been checked up several thousand dollars short, are now in the hands of the attorney general. He has been instructed by the state auditor to proceed at once to collect from the bond of Mr. Case the amount now said to be due the state, $8,906.91, with interest from July 1, 1900. This is the amount alleged to be due in a report filed September 20, last, by Assistant State Examiner G. P. Sedberry, who spent some time going over the books and trying to get the accounts straight.

New Station.

At the first meeting of the directors of the new Meridian, Miss., terminal company, plans for the new passenger station were approved; the capital stock increased from $50,000 to $75,000 and President F. C. McGhee resigned. C. P. Wetherbee was elected president in his stead. Work was authorized to commence at once on the removal of the old cotton compress which occupies the site selected for the new depot.

Household Matters

Sour Cream Drop Cakes.

One cup sugar, one-half cup butter, one egg, one-half cup sour cream, one teaspoon of soda dissolved in a very little hot water, flour to mix soft. Drop from a spoon on greased tins.

Potato Souffle.

To two cupfuls of smooth, well seasoned and quite moist mashed potatoes add the yolks of two eggs. When a little cold stir in lightly the whites of two eggs beaten very stiff. Put the whole into a pudding dish and brown it in a quick oven.

Spinach Salad.

Boil and chop fine half a peck of spinach, mold it in six glasses and send away until cold. Prepare six leaves of lettuce, put one on each square of cold boiled ham or tongue, turn out the mold of spinach on this and garnish with a tablespoonful of French dressing.

Fried Cucumbers.

Pare and cut lengthwise three large cucumbers in slices about half an inch thick, soak them in ice water one hour, then wipe each piece dry, sprinkle with salt and pepper, dredge with flour or cornmeal and fry in one tablespoonful of butter on both sides until brown.

Tomatoes Broiled.

Slice six tomatoes half an inch thick, but do not peel them. Dip them in one tablespoonful of oil or melted butter, sprinkle with pepper and salt and broil them eight minutes on each side. Serve them with bits of butter sprinkled over them. Add one teaspoonful of chopped parsley.

Caramel Ice-Cream.

One third cupful of thin cream or one sixth cupful of each of heavy cream and milk, one and a half tablespoonfuls of granulated sugar, one tablespoonful of boiling water, one-quarter teaspoonful of vanilla, a grain of salt. Put sugar in a small saucepan; place on range and stir constantly until melted. Add water and boil until mixture is reduced to one tablespoonful. Add cream very slowly, vanilla, salt, then freeze.

Cheese Custard.

Butter a baking dish, put in a layer of bread cut in pieces, one inch square with crust removed, sprinkle thin-sliced cheese over the bread, dust with salt and paprika, or a few grains of cayenne. Add other layers of bread and cheese, seasoning as before, using in all half a small loaf of bread, one cup of cheese and half a teaspoonful of salt. Beat two eggs slightly, add one pint of milk, and pour the mixture over the bread and cheese. Bake about half an hour in a moderate oven.

Oranges Filled With Jelly.

Take half a dozen oranges that are perfect; make a hole at the stem end about half an inch in diameter; take a teaspoon and remove the pulp, and then soak the oranges in cold water for an hour; then scrape with the spoon until they are smooth inside; rinse with cold water and drain on a cloth and put them in ice box. Prepare pink and clear orange jelly, with the juice of two lemons added. Fill half of them with the pink, the other half with clear jelly, and when they are set wipe clean and cut each orange in four quarters. Heap them in a pretty glass dish for the table.

From Cellar to Garret.

Potatoes will bake more rapidly if a pan of water is put into the oven with them.

To break ice in small places for the comfort of an invalid use a darning needle.

To bake a pie crust without filling, line with paraffin paper filled with uncooked rice.

Coarse salt and vinegar will clean enameled ware that has been burned or discolored.

In stuffs for hangings the colors that have the soft, slightly faded look of old embroideries or brocades are preferred.

A nut pick kept on the kitchen table is the most convenient utensil for removing the paper cover from the milk bottles.

Never use newspapers to wrap about anything eatable. It is economy to have a supply of paraffin paper always on hand.

When washing boarded floors put a handful of salt into every bucket of water, and you will not be troubled with moths.

A convenience for a small room is a long, shallow, covered box, hinged and castered, which can be rolled under the bed and used to store clothing not in immediate use.

A soft varnish brush with a string or wire through the handle to hang by is a desirable utensil in every pantry, to be used for brushing bread, rolls and pastry with melted butter.

A tall screen covered to match a sofa or divan, and standing at its head, so as to shelter its occupant from the light or a draught, is a good idea and a help in breaking up long wall spaces.

An ingenious woman keeps her bread sponge at an even temperature the year round by putting it in the oven of a stove without fire and putting a small lighted lamp beside it, leaving the door partly open.

In a fruit pie always mix a tablespoonful of flour thoroughly with the sugar—both dry. If butter is to be used, spread it on the lower crust before putting in the fruit and it will be evenly distributed through the pie.

The speech of Mr. Kitchen, of North Carolina, which is being sent over the county by the Hon. Sydney J. Bowie, deals with Mr. Roosevelt squarely by quoting his own words. Roosevelt says the farmers are the basest set in the land, and refers to Populists as being opposed to refinement, comfort, morality, learning, prosperity, bathing, thrift, industry, payment of debts and the suppression of riots. The facts stated in this speech have not been, and can not be truthfully denied, as the books and writings of Mr. Roosevelt from which they come are in cold type and can be easily produced. If any voter fails to get one of these speeches he should apply to the Democratic Executive Committeeman in his beat, as a supply has been sent to them. Apply to any of the following gentlemen for a copy:

Ex-Governor Johnson spoke to a small but select crowd at the court house, Clanton, on Tuesday morning. He made a felicitous speech on the political situation which would have been good for every man in Chilton to hear. The Governor has just returned from a visit to the North, and speaking of the Republican party he said there was just as much fraud in elections in the North as there was in the South, but the Republicans were using the cry of irregularities in Southern elections and the curtailing of the negro vote as an excuse for cutting down Southern representation in Congress, and every voter should make it a point of duty to go and vote next Tuesday. Referring to the Populists, he said he always had a kindly feeling for them, and in many respects considered them the advance guard of the Democratic party, but with the Republican party seeking to cut down our rights it was very necessary for the white people of the South to present an united front and vote the Democratic ticket.

Governor Cunningham met with an enthusiastic reception at Thorsby Wednesday night and made a capital speech. After the speaking he was entertained at a banquet, at which some excellent speeches were made. Thorsby never does anything by halves and a glorious time was had.

Chairman J. A. Huey, of the Fourth district campaign committee, has issued a letter setting forth the reasons why Democratic voters should vote on next Tuesday. The letter follows.

Headquaters Democratic Executive Committee, Fourth District of Alabama, Talledega, October 27.

To the Democratic voters: I desire to urge upon you the necessity of casting your vote in the coming election, and of using your best efforts to induce all Democrats to turn out and vote on the 8th of November.

Our candidate, Mr. Bowie, has practically no opposition, or at least his opponent seems to be making no canvass, and in three counties in the district there is no local fight to bring out the vote; hence the danger of our people lapsing into apathhy and staying away from the polls. This is not only wrong, but dangerous.

Southern congressman have a heavier weight upon their shoulders in their efforts to successfully represent their constituency than the light vote by which they are elected. This small vote is made the basis of the charge that we have disfranchised a large proportion of our voters, and is the foundation of the proposition to cut down our representation in congress and the electoral collgege. Many white men are disfranchised in Massachusetts, but the sharp contests in elections there make the total vote large, while the failure to poll one half or more of our registered vote is used to emphasize the result of our efforts to rid ourselves of the burden of illiterate and vicious ballots put upon us in our weakness and thrown off in our strength. We can answer this and at the same time hold up the hands of our representative by speaking as with one voice and making that voice long and loud with the strength of numbers at the polls.

We owe it to ourselves, our fathers and mothers, our sons and daughters, to set the seal of our condemnation upon Rooseveltism by our united votes. Rossevelt, in his writings and public utterances, has expressed his contempt for southern character, for the farmer and laborer, for the Confederate soldier; we should express our contempt for him by polling an unusually large vote against him. He has insulted us by yielding the dictation of Federal appointments in our state into the hands of a negro, and his followers have added to that insult by placing two negroes upon his ticket of electors; we cannot be content with ignoring it in the security that rises from a knowledge of our own strength, but should make him feel our condemnation and show him our strength by polling ever possible legal vote.

Our obedience to our constitution is only equaled by our respect for the flag, and it is this that makes us Democrats. This man has gone beyond the constitution to grasp colonial possessions where he has changed the emblem of liberty to the flag of an empire.

Eight years of Republican misrule have built up a great system of tariff-fed trusts which is eating up the product of our labor and making it cost more and more to live; a system that exacts from every family whose yearly expenditure is $940. a tribute of $16.52, to the United States and 94.48 to the trusts. It has made possible the existence of a trust on meat products which forces each family to pay $4.53 to the trusts for every 2 cents it contributes to the support of the government. It has forced us to pay more for the product of our own factories than the foreigner pays for the same article. Surely, we will not fail to register our condemnation of such a system at the polls.

The south is paying forty or fifty millions per year as its share of the pension fund and is getting back less than ten millions. We are paying in the same proportion for our part of the common defense and receiving even a smaller portion in the improvement of our coasts and interior streams; with one third of the territory and population we are receiving less than one fifth of consideration in postal facilities. It is our duty to vote our opinion of this treatment. No man can afford to fail in this duty.

Mr. Bowie is devoting his energy in congress to remedying these evils. Let me urge every voter in the district to encourage him by a vote, which will be at once a stimulous and a reward.

A Card From Mr. Dake.

Clanton, Nov. 2, 1904

Editor Banner—I wish to thank my friends for what they have done for me in the past, feeling they have honored me beyond my merits, and those friends who supported me on July 26, 1904, and to those who did not look upon the welfare of the county and People's Party as I did, I accord them their honest convictions and harbor no ill feelings toward them, but am just as willing to serve them and do for them the same as though they had supported me, except to vote the ticket straight as nominated July 26, 1904, because I have had no reason to change my views as regards the prosperity of the county and perpetuity of the Peoples Parsy principles. I look upon the nominations as having been secured by doubtful means and not in justice to the various candidates who submitted their names subject to the action of the People's primary. I do not feel that I alone, but that all candidates were treated unjustly, and whereas I have not changed my political principles a particle from what they have been for years, still I cannot give my sanction to support the ticket through out as nominated, but will head my ballot with Hon. Thos. E Watson for President, and then I shall vote for those persons I deem best qualified to fill the various positions, be they Democrats, Republicans or Populists. And I do think this surely is a time when each voter should carefully consider whom he will support, that he can feel when it is done, he has conscientiously discharged his duty as he sees it.

Now, in giving my hearty support to Mr. Deason for Probate Judge, I have not gone into the Democratic party, or sacrificed my political priaciples, nor do I support him because he has a widowed mother to support and needs the position more than does Mr. Reynolds, but because I have known him officially for a long time and have always found him correct in all his dealings, and that his having served as Justice of the Peace for some years gives him the necessary judicial knowledge, and his being a fine pensman and accountant and thoroughly competent to make all calculations and computations gives him the ability in the clerical duties of the office, and believing him by far the most competent of the two gentlemen nominated, therefore I shall support him, and I do earnestly hope every voter will give due deliberation as to how he will cast his vote and lay aside all prejudice and personal feelings and vote for those whom he believes best suited to fill the positions to the upbuilding of the county and our general welfare and prosperity, and that after due consideration they will all vote in our county officers, and assuring all that they can vote as they wish without voting any one ticket straight through. As it is rumored around that you are compelled to vote a ticket straight through, I wish to say you can divide your ballot under the law with all parties if you so desire.

Yours respectfully,
A. G. Dake.

Don't forget the old man with the fish on his back.

For nearly thirty years he has been traveling around the world, and is still traveling, bringing health and comfort wherever he goes.

To the consumptive he brings the strength and flesh he so much needs.

To all weak and sickly children he gives rich and strengthening food.

To thin and pale persons he gives new firm flesh and rich red blood.

Children who first saw the old man with the fish are now grown up and have children of their own.

He stands for Scott's Emulsion of pure cod liver oil—a delightful food and a natural tonic for children, for old folks and for all who need flesh and strength.

To the Democrats of Chilton County.

After the political issues are boiled down only a few vital propositions remain.

Shall the Republican party, advocating beyond all doubt a reduction of Southern representation in Congress and negro equality, be endorsed at the polls?

Shall a local county ticket having no purpose in common with any regular movement for the betterment of our country, but on the other hand co operating with any and everything which promises a vote, be endorsed at the polls?

The answer to these questions concerns not only us who live today, but future generations. Duty, patriotism, the good of all calls upon every Democrat to lay aside his business on election day, go to the polls and cast his vote. Will you not do this?

It has been said that the "Stay at home" Democrats defeated our last nominee for the Legislature. Our campaign committee appeals to you to go the polls and vote. Our State chairman urges that you do this. The cause is worthy of this small portion of your time. Democrats, go the polls and vote and see that your friends go. Stay at the polls, that you may encourage by your presence and counsel those who are disposed to agree with us. Your duty well done, we shall win and have an end of campaigns full of prejudice and hatred in this county.

Denson, Col. Brewer, and Sam Will John, Bowman, Harsh and Beddow, of Birmingham, Judge Sayre and Solicitor Tate, and Mr. Reynolds himself to say whether I can discharge the duties of the office to which I aspire and now hold. In doing this I feel that I have been fair to the Judge and feel that I have submitted my record to those who are as well qualified to pass upon my ability as Judge Honeycutt and tney have certainly had more dealings with me than the Judge has. If Judge Honeycutt will show that I have been so lead and influenced, that I have wronged anyone since I have been in office, or before, I will make apology for writing this letter. I feel that Judge Honeycutt has attempted to do me an injustice to insinuate that I am not honest and that I could be lead around by someone to commit acts that are wrong. My name and reputation is as much to me as his is to him and I hope he will never again intimate that I am not honest or that I would not deal just with any and all, regardless of their politics or anything else. If he knows any reasons for such statements let him make them known and then I will demand the proof. I feel that his letter will not have the desired effect, but knowing Judge Honeycutt as I do, I was so surprised at him and his opinions that I could not refrain from replying to his letter. I must insist that he had nothing on which to base his statements, and that it was his age and experience and acquaintance before the people that were relied upon to give strength to his utterances. He must have been influenced himself to utter such opinions.

Submitting my claims to the people and believing that they will deal justly with the propositions before them, I am

Respectfully,

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is Pleasant to Take.

The finest of granulated loaf sugar is used in the manufacture of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it quite pleasant to take. Mr. W. L. Citation on Application to Sell Lands.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Probate Court.

To John O. Donovan and Claud B. Donovan:

Whereas, Beula Matthews, one of the heirs at law of the estate of Jerre Donovan, deceased, has filed her application in said Court for a sale of the lands described in said application, belonging to the estate of said decedent, upon the ground that said land cannot be equitably divided, and the 31st day of October, 1904, has been appointed for the hearing of said application.

You are, therefore, hereby commanded to appear before said Court on said 31st day of October, 1904, to contest said application if you think proper.

Witness my hand this 27th day of September, 1904. E. B. DEASON, Judge of Probate.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Chancery Court. Seventh District, Northeastern Division. In Vacation.

Jeff Wailes, Complainant, vs. Lula Wailes, Defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit on file of J. C. Dennis, as Attorney for Complainant, that the Defendent, Lula Wailes, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that she resides in Mexico, but her post office address is unknown to affant, and further that in the belief of said affant, the Defendant, Lula Wailes, is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register, that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, Chilton County, Ala., once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Lula Wailes, to answer, plead or demur to the bill or complaint in the above cause on or before the 24th day of October, 1904, and failing so to do within thirty days after the service of this summons a decree pro confesso may be taken against her in said cause.

Witness my hand, this 21st day of September, 1904.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

New Way of Using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. Arthur Chapman writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says: As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and put some upon the dummy teat the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child This they did and brought about a quick relief and cured the baby." This Remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

The Downfall of Russia, Its Causes and the Empire's Future . . . .

THE demonstrated inability of Russia to hold her own against Japan, either by land or sea, means more than naval and military incapacity, it is a convincing proof of the rottenness of the whole governmental system of the empire, and of the perilous insecurity of the foundation on which that system has been reared. It appeared to Prince Ukhtomsky, the companion of the present Czar on his travels in the Far East, that "the wings of the Russian eagle are spread too widely over the East to leave the slightest doubt of a future in which Asiatic Russia will mean all Asia."

A MENACE TO PROGRESS.

This vaulting ambition was held by other members of the family of nations to be a serious menace to human progress, but there was everywhere a vague foreboding that it might attain its end. All Europe stood in awe of the military power which has collapsed like a bubble at the picking of the spear of Japan. On the 8th of February last, when news of the first disaster at Port Arthur was already on the way, Prince Ukhtomsky was talking in St. Petersburg to a German newspaper correspondent in this strain: "The difference of race between our troops and the Japanese is so great that there can be no question of measuring ourselves against them in regular hostilities. The yellow men will not so much be beaten. They will be simply slaughtered.

"We cannot consent to look upon them as an even breed. That is, so to speak, an anthropological axiom. The Japanese will take good care not to face us in large bodies in the open field. Yellow is simply not equal to white. . . . What do they think they want, these half-men?" This glaring misconception of the character of the enemy whom Russia was to face was by no means confined to the Russians themselves.

LACK OF WAR SPIRIT.

It was shared by a great many people in France and Germany, and did not lack acceptance even among our own people. The disillusionment would, perhaps, have been more painful and complete but for the entire absence of the war spirit among the Russian people. Karl Blind quotes a letter from St. Petersburg written a few days before the Petropavlovsk disaster, which contains this statement: "In this present war there is not a trace of patriotic enthusiasm among the people; on the contrary, the masses are perfectly apathetic, not understanding in the least the occurrences in the Far East, whilst the cultured part of the population is directly hostile to the Government policy in Manchuria."

But the passing of the military prestige of Russia is, nevertheless, destined to have more important consequences in the internal administration of the empire than in its external relations. For two generations some of the best minds in Russia have seen the abyss to which their country was hastening, and have been earnestly trying to introduce the leaven of freedom into its institutions. Prince Dolgorukoff, when living abroad in 1860, wrote a book which he called "The Truth About Russia," in which occurs the following suggestive passage: "Russia has, from the time of the Mongol invasion, in the thirteenth century, down to our days, been nothing but an immense pyramid of oppression. In this vast edifice slavish subjection and arbitrary force reigned from the bottom to the top, and from top to bottom there is developed, in formidable proportions, the official lie, the lie erected into a political institution.

EFFECT OF DESPOTISM.

"This despotism, hideous in itself, exercises an eminently deleterious influence. It dries up noble and elevated sentiments; it degrades the soul; it corrupts, perverts and lowers the character, even more among those who exercise that despotism than among its victims." In the last forty years abundant evidence has been forthcoming of the prophetic truth of these words. The Russian bureaucracy has gone on from bad to worse, and the harvest of humiliation and defeat which is being reaped in the Far East springs from seed that has been liberally sown.

It has not mattered much whether M. Plehve's policy of reaction, or M. Witte's policy of what passed for economic progress, ruled the hour; there was no departure from the beaten track of autocracy, no effort to temper despotism with any regard for the rights of the individual man. In fact, it may be doubted whether the frank brutality of the methods of the Minister of the Interior, or of the Procurator of the Holy Synod, were more to be dreaded than the simulation of progress in those of the Minister of Finance.

WASTING MONEY ON RAILROADS.

A Russian professor said some two years ago that it was no exaggeration to affirm that, during the ten years preceding, the construction of railways had cost the country five hundred million rubles more than was necessary. Every year the administration of the empire was growing in costliness and incapacity. Police and gendarmes multiplied; peasants spent more on their courts, manufacturers had to maintain their prisons, and householders were compelled to keep more dvornika and spies.

The provincial administrations took months and even years to deal with the simplest petition, and the civil authorities had to call in the military to preserve order among the people. The hope of Russia to-day is with those whose voice has been raised in protest against all this, and who, with banishment and confiscation staring them in the face, have dared to tell the truth as they saw it. The agricultural committees which, two years ago, were summoned as M. Plehve sneeringly remarked "to talk of spades and potatoes," made some very remarkable contributions to the literature of Russian liberalism. One of these, the Voronezh Committee, made itself famous by presenting a report which includes not only an able analysis of the agricultural decay which has overtaken all the central provinces of Russia, but a series of demands upon the Government couched in terms which are quite without precedent in Russia's recent history.

WHAT THE PEOPLE WANT.

The opening paragraph in this long series of demands strikes at the conditions without which autocracy would be impossible:

"1. To extend to all classes an universal, unqualified law; no man may be deprived of personal freedom or property without trial, under danger of criminal and monetary responsibility for breaking the law.

"2. To abolish imprisonment and sequestration of property by administrative order.

"3. To abolish administrative punishments, penalties and restrictions, such as arrest, fine, exile, supervision and deprivation of the right of participating in public work.

"4. To abolish corporal punishment.

"5. To abolish the passport system.

"6. To insure freedom of conscience which derives logically from personal freedom."

FELL LIKE A BOMB SHELL.

All this sounds sufficiently elementary to those who enjoy the legacy of English liberty, but it fell like a bombshell within the circle of Russian officialdom. Its explosive force was decidedly increased by the declaration that these were merely the prelude to equally indispensable concessions, among which were universal education at the expense of the State and the right to teach children and to print school books in the local mother tongue. Promptly and effectually stifled at the time, the voice of internal discontent which made itself heard in the report of these committees may, in the hour of military defeat and administrative disgrace, find its chance to obtain a hearing.—Journal of Commerce.

Duchess' Dilemma.

A Brussels correspondent writes: The Duchess of Aosta, wife of the heir to the Italian throne, who has been spending the summer at Nieuport, has had an amusing experience in a bathing machine.

The machine was being driven along the sands to the sea, when the fore part became detached, and the machine fell forward in such a position that the door could not be opened.

The Duchess was thus a prisoner inside, but, fortunately, she is of light build, and when assistance had been procured she was released from imprisonment by being pulled through the window of the bathing machine—happily none the worse for her adventure.—Philadelphia Record.

A Woman Admiral.

Queen Olga of Greece is the only woman admiral in the world, having been appointed to that honor in the Russian navy by the late Czar. She is devoted to life on the sea. On a recent inspection she made such a thorough examination of the battleship as to amaze the naval experts of her country and win their admiration. She is the eldest daughter of a Russian Grand Duke and the niece of the late Czar, and since her marriage to King George she has done much to unite the interests of Russia and Greece. She is the founder, friend and patroness of the Seamen's Home, and on certain days of each month visits the old sailors and talks to them of life at sea.—Kansas City Journal.

Up and Down.

The following telephone conversation, recently heard between a woman whose home is in the suburbs and a business acquaintance of her husband, illustrates some of the curiosities of our language:

Business Acquaintance—"Good morning, Mrs. ——. I'd like to speak to Mr. —— for a moment."

Mrs. ——."I'm sorry, Mr. ——, but my husband isn't down yet."

B. A. (inquiringly)—"Isn't down yet?"

Mrs.——."I mean he isn't up yet. I'm letting him sleep late this morning; he was so down last evening after his office troubles that he was ready to give up. He says he'll be down as soon as he gets up."—Harper's Weekly.

Learned Counsel.

Justice Leonard A. Giegerich, of the Supreme Court, tells a story of two lawyers who appeared before him some time ago in the argument of a motion. One was an excitable fellow, who blustered and sputtered a good deal, and the other was of the calm, judicial order, with the usual attendant of biting sarcasm.

"I object to the statements of my learned friend," said the excitable one. "They should not go on record. They are entirely frivlol."

"I beg the Court's pardon," replied the other, calmly, "but I believe that my learned opponent meant to say that my remarks were frivolous."—Baltimore Sun.

FARM AND GARDEN

A FEW PIGEON NOTES.

The Homer pigeon is more popular with squab raisers than any other variety. It stands confinement well, and is a large, well-built bird. The squabs are large and never turn dark when dressed.

Common pigeons are not liked on account of their small size; besides, their squabs are inclined to turn dark when dressed.

Pigeons are not believers in mormonism. Equal numbers of cocks and hens must be procured. An odd cock is capable of much mischief. He will destroy the eggs and squabs.

They are fond of a good bath. During nice weather they should be given fresh water in their tubs twice a week.

Pigeons that are penned up should not be fed new grain, as it does not agree with them. They require a variety of good, sound food. They are fond of wheat, millet, hemp seed, corn, buckwheat etc. They will soon devour a salt codfish tacked up inside their house.

Keep fresh gravel before them always.—W., in Farm Journal.

WHAT THE PACKER WANTS.

The butcher pig weighing not over 270 pounds is the most profitable animal for both producer and killer. The reason is the same that won popularity for the handy-weight steer; public taste has changed. Not many years ago we paid a premium of as much as $1 a hundred-weight for big, heavy hogs, known as French fat backs, from which we got a back weighing forty-five or fifty pounds; but they are not wanted now, even by the French. Another cause of butcher pig popularity is the enormous increase in consumption of fresh pork. Retailers want a loin weighing ten or twelve pounds, and no heavier, and to furnish this 300 pounds must be the maximum weight of the live hog. We find that these medium weights are the healthiest. They rarely show tuberculosis, the bulk of condemnations being excessive weights. Growers marketing medium weights sell them at seven to eight months old, reducing the loss and making a quick turn. Hog raisers aiming at maximum results will produce this grade, but they must be matured to top the market. Anything weighing 200 to 280 pounds—sometimes I stretch it to 300—will fill the bill, but a square back and good finish are essential to top price-getting.—Mr. Goepper, in Breeder's Gazette.

WORTH OF THE FARM BOY.

Some folks figure out what the farm boy costs, but they do not seem to think that he is worth the raising.

But he is!

He brings the cows twice a day, the wood for night, and gathers the eggs when we are all tired out from the day's work.

Forty times a day he hears the call, "Johnny, run and get the hammer or the auger." And he runs.

He never says a word back when folks call him "Bub" and tell him how "no account" boys are.

He is a great, big streak of sunshine, wherever he goes all over the farm.

He knows where all the hoes, axes, saws and other farm tools are. Sometimes people say he knows this because he scatters the tools around; but it is not always so.

He keeps the rest of us from getting old. We must keep thinking if we answer the thousand and one questions he asks, and we must answer them or die, for he must know.

In short, the boy brings back two dollars where he costs a cent. If you do not believe it, just wait till he is gone and see what a hole it makes in the running of the farm. He fills a gap that no amount of money can fill.

Instead of figuring how much the boy costs, I think it is a great deal better to think how much he saves.—Farmer Vincent in The Farm Journal.

SELECTION OF THE BROOD SOW.

The time is now at hand when an intelligent selection of the sow can be made from early litters, to replace those that should be discarded. The fastest growers, best feeders and those having the best points can now be seen. There may, however, be good growers that are of too lazy and sluggish a habit to ever make good mothers. Then, too, you must be sure that the hearing is perfect, as lack of this quality is one of the causes of overlaying and killing the young, and furthermore, this defect is likely to be transmitted to the offspring. Always select with a view to uniformity of size, as an even bunch of hogs appeals the strongest to the buyer. In selecting bear in mind the records of the dams as prolific and good mothers, for this quality is passed along from one generation to another. Then, too, always select those that come nearest to conforming to your view of the type, providing always that the animal is not lacking in the qualities pointed out above. The selection of the sow has much to do with the uniformity of bunches of feeders from year to year.

After the young sows are selected separate them from the ones designed for market, and when keeping on pasture do not neglect to give them a sufficient grain ration to bring about the greatest development of bone and muscle, but do not make them fat. The result of a few years' judicious selection will prove surprising to any one who has never had any system in this matter.—Farm, Stock and Home.

IMPROVING THE BREEDS

What is the end and purpose of improvement in breeding? It is and cannot fail to be the improvement of any breed for the purpose for which it is kept and valued. The Merinos, for their special varieties of wood for distinct uses; the coarse wools for their similar product, but for other uses; the medium or clothing wools in the same way, and it can be readily seen that as the fleece is the specially valuable product which can be varied only by special breed, and the mutton is very much the same in all sheep, varieties of sheep must ever and always be cultivated, changed and improved, for the fleece first, and for mutton, as it may happen, excepting that in this respect the most rapidly and early maturing varieties will always excel in desirability for the butchers' use as feeding lambs. We must look forward very soon to the fact that our fast increasing population will demand a large increase in the production of mutton, in spite of the fact that a large proportion of our people are not as yet naturally mutton eaters. This taste, however, will soon be acquired, for it cannot always be ignored that mutton is the most nutritious, digestible and convenient of all meats, and economy will prevail over an undeserved and unprofitable stigma, and when this happens the use of the more convenient and more digestible and nutritious mutton will greatly increase. All the more reason for this because of the greater convenience of it and the ease with which small flocks may be kept for local use, to supply small villages and farmers' families. And for all the varied uses of the sheep we have breeds enough and to spare; and rather than to found any new breed for any reason whatever, it will be to mix the breeds we now have, so that the best sheep for the farmer and feeder, and for the more extensive use on the Western pastures, will be that one which will best adapt itself to its environments. And this we cannot help but think will be based on the Shropshire mixed with the heavier Merinos. But anyhow, we cannot think that there is any place for any new breed of sheep either as a mutton or as a wool bearer, and that the only efforts that have been made in this line for over twenty-five years past, one in Kentucky and one in New York, will doubtless be the last to be made by the most adventurous and enterprising hunter after something new of this modern, practical age.—Henry Stewart, in American Sheep Breeder.

GOOD BULLS IMPORTANT.

Prof. Hansen calls attention to the fact that greater stress is laid upon obtaining good milk cows than noted milking strains of good bulls, and says:

"It is a matter of course that the bull should exhibit signs of race. Its outward appearance ought to guarantee the transmission of its descendants of the desired conformation. Where the buyer has the yield of milk in view it behooves him to bear in mind that this is a matter that depends on the sire as well as on the dam. A good milch cow will not be the mother of good milch cows if the bull has not also belonged to a race of good milkers. This is a principle of breeding that deserves more attention than has hitherto been paid to it. Unfortunately, statistics have been waning hitherto; it requires time to collect the necessary data, and a herd of some size, in order to compare the milk yields of cows the progeny of a particular bull with the yields of other cows, the descendants of other bulls. This has been done by Herr Schrewe, of Kleinhoff-Papian. The experiments were made with 150 cows, descendants of four bulls, and their yields of milk within a period varying from three to six years, not merely in relation to the quantities, but also their richness in fatty matter and butter. The results conclusively demonstrate the influence of the bulls on the milk yields of their female descendants."—Indiana Farmer.

Cougar Killed in Coon Hunt.

A coon hunt that ended in a cougar killing was the experience of C. J. Oglesby on Fall Creek a few days since. The dogs took up the trail of the coons and had run but a short distance when they came upon the mountain lion, which they treed. The beast had hardly crawled beyond the reach of the snarling pack when the hunter came up and brought down the big cat with one shot. The hide, when stretched, measured 6 1-2 feet by 8 1-2 feet.

The coons are supposed to have left the cougar before the hunter came up, and to have suffered for it.—Portland Oregonian.

THE "SUNSET LIMITED."

Hush-a-By Land is a beautiful place
For sleepy small people to go
And the Rock-a-By Route is the favorite one
With a certain wee laddie I know

The track lies on a carpet of feather and down,
No accidents ever take place,
Though there's only one track there is only one train
But it runs at a wonderful pace.

There are beautiful things to be seen on this route
If you're good you may take just a peep.
But strange as it seems, they are seen best in dreams
So be sure that you soon go to sleep.

Say good night to the sun for he's off to bed too—
He can't hear you, so just wave your hand;
The Moon and Stars they will light up the cars
As you travel to Hush-a-By Land.

So, quick, jump aboard, it is time to be off,
You have nothing to pay, you young elf;
Just think of the luxury, laddie, you'll have—
A whole sleeping car to yourself!

—Frederick B. Hodgins, in the Book-lovers Magazine.

ANENT "ALICE IN WONDERLAND"

That the dormouse was supposed to be sleepy because of the French dormeuse, from dormer, to sleep, makes plain the behavior of one of the guests of the Mad Tea-party; but the reason why the Hatter was supposed to be out of his mind is not so readily given. There is said to be an old English word, long disused, "letter," meaning furious or raging, and that this explains the saying "as mad as a hatter." Some think the word comes from "atter," or adder, the snake. But after consulting the authorities one is compelled to doubt whether the phrase is at all understood.—From Books and Authors in Nicholas.

A TRICYCLE RIDE.

"Yes, Hazel," said Clarence, "that's pretty good for a tricycle; but, of course, a bicycle's the thing to have."

"Papa's going to get me a bicycle when I'm old enough," replied Hazel; "but he thinks a tricycle is a great deal better for a little girl, and so do I. See how fast I can make it go."

She took a quick turn around the yard and came back to the piazza with a grand flourish.

"Don't you want to try it?"

Clarence forgot that tricycles weren't good for much and lost no time in getting on.

"That's first-rate," he said, after he had gone to the road and back several times. "Why don't you give Sidney a ride now?"

Sidney was Hazel's big ash-colored cat, who lay asleep on the piazza.

"Do you suppose he'd like it?"

"Why, yes, of course he would."

Hazel seated herself in the tricycle, and Clarence politely passed Sidney to her.

The sleepy cat settled comfortably in her lap. He was a very lazy old fellow. If Hazel had just gone around the yard, all would have been well. She thought she would do something more than that. Between Hazel's own home and grandma's house was a hill—not long, but very steep. It led through the back yard, past the henhouse, and up against a high board fence.

Hazel thought it would be fun to take Sidney down this hill. Off they went, faster and faster, every minute.

"Oh, dear!" thought Hazel. "What shall I do? I never can stop it."

It seemed dangerous to Sidney, too. He gave a squirm, and jumped to the ground, the last wheel of the tricycle went over the tip end of his tail. With a loud "Meow!" he ran up to the very top of the pear tree. No one ever saw him run so fast before.

While this was happening, Hazel and the tricycle were speeding on. That board fence was coming nearer every instant.

Clarence saw the danger and ran, screaming, down the hill; but the tricycle went a great deal faster than he could. Just as it seemed as if something dreadful would happen, the hen house door flew open and papa sprang out.

He caught the tricycle as it was dashing past him, and stopped it.

"O papa," sobbed Hazel, "I thought I was going to Ginny-hack."

Papa didn't know where Ginny-hack was, but he was ever so glad that she didn't go there.—Lucie D. Welch, in Primary Education.

THIS DOG TRAVELS.

For two months Rory traveled every day between Garden City and Hempstead. He would appear on the station platform at just the right time to take a train and always seemed to know the exact time scheduled for the coming in or going out of the various trains. Where he kept his time table nobody knew, but he evidently had one.

One day he was missing, and there was consternation among those who had grown fond of him. For two days nothing was heard, and grave looks were exchanged when the question was asked, "Where's Rory during those two days?" "Any thing of Rory?"

Then came good news. For it learned he had extended his He had gone as far as Long City, stayed all night, taking rides on the ferryboat and gone into the bay and played the engines, then back to the and from the many who there had picked out his train and ridden on the engine. How he got was he fed, where he slept, no one knew. All that was known was that he was seen on the platform at Hempstead, the baggage car, and was found on the platform at Garden City. He had been on the Hempstead side of the bay when the train swept by.

Life now flowed along smoothly for Rory. The conductor kept him and spoke to the boys "and he" suit was a handsome nickel plated for made to order for the dog, one side of the collar is a plate bearing the single word in large letters, TRAINMAN. A Prison Without Walls.

Represa, a convict prison in California, is unique in the fact that it possesses no wall. The grounds are studded with nineteen guard posts, which are built of stone and wood, and resemble a system of lighthouses. They are built on salient points of observation, and are fitted with Gatling machine guns, Winchester rifles and shotguns. These posts are from forty to sixty feet high, and are placed various distances apart, averaging 300 yards. No convict is allowed to pass between the posts unless he has permission or is accompanied by an officer or guard. Each post is manned by a clever marksman, and is only accessible by a draw ladder, which is pulled up after the post is occupied.

The Russians are deeply religious and charitable. Even the poor, who can ill afford to give, do their part toward swelling the alms that go to the poor and needy.

THE VALLEY OF "NO."

Difficulties in Refusing Future Which Often Necessary to Oneself.

"No" is characterized as "a monosyllable the easiest learned by a child, but the most difficult to practice by the man."

Dr. Johnson displays a world of wisdom in these few simple lines, and the saying is no less true in regard to women than it is to men.

It seems cold and heartless to a man to refuse to lend a friend a little money to tide over some anxious time, and yet it is a great question as to whether he is justified in doing so if he himself is forced to make some of his own creditors wait while his money is fulfilling a friend's need.

In domestic life a woman has also much call for the little monosyllable "No." She may dislike to disappoint her children in some matters, but knows in her heart of hearts that the granted favor would be bad for their future health or happiness.

Yet how few mothers do say "No" under such circumstances! And they excuse themselves by saying it is bad for children to be thwarted! So it is, but if the said children were brought up to know that their mother had always a good reason for her decision and was not to be cajoled out of that decision, the mother would save a great deal of annoyance both to herself and to others thrown in contact with her offspring.—Philadelphia Ledger.

A London trade paper announces a shortage in the mummy market, which is felt by the color-makers. It is explained that mummies, in good condition and not over 2,000 years old make, when properly ground, a rich light brown which is in great favor among artists. But where human mummies cannot be had, mummified cats make a fair substitute.

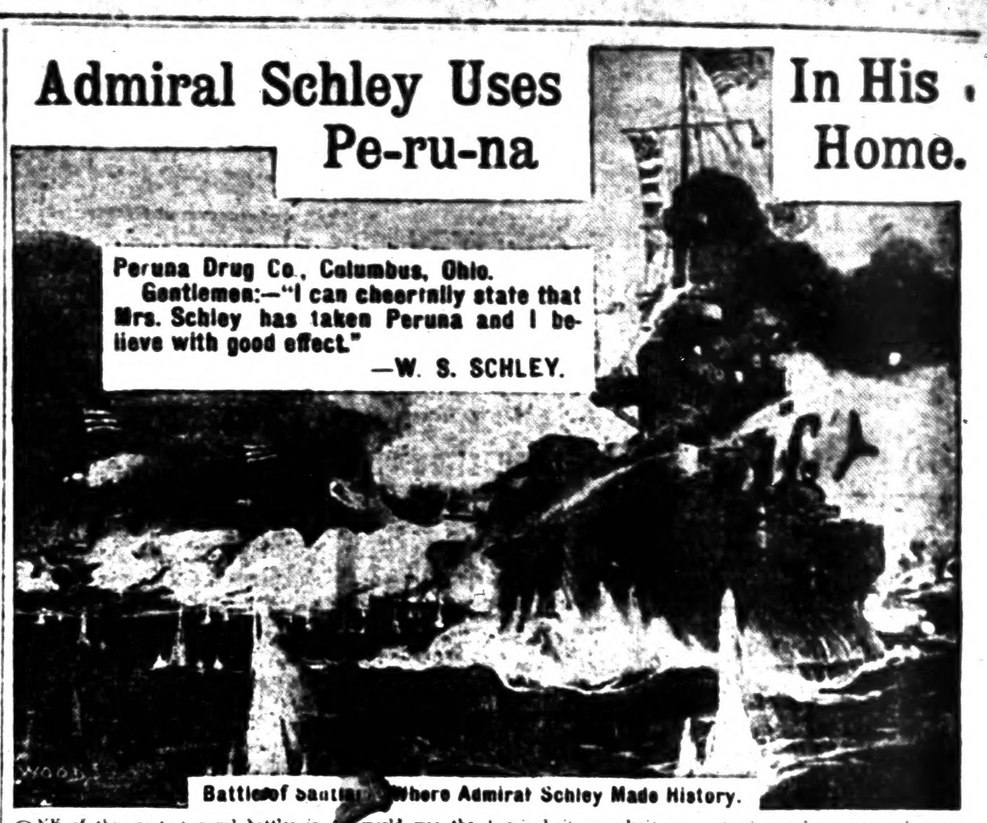
Admiral Schley Uses Pe-ru-na In His Home.



Peruna Drug Co., Columbus, Ohio.
Gentlemen:—"I can cheerfully state that Mrs. Schley has taken Peruna and I believe with good effect."
—W. S. SCHLEY.

Battle of Santiago, Where Admiral Schley Made History.

ONE of the greatest naval battles in the world was the Fight Off Santiago. Never since the dispersion of the Spanish Armada has there been a more epoch making victory in the onward march of civilization than in the notable event of July 3, 1898, in which the great hero, Admiral Schley, took a leading part.

A GREAT NAVAL BATTLE.

It was a great naval battle. Without a moment's warning it began. Quick decision, undaunted courage, excellent discipline, resolute self-confidence—these combined in Admiral Schley to produce that dash and daring so characteristic of the American soldier.

A man must think quickly in these days. There is no time for slow action. New enterprises arise in an hour. Old ones pass away in a moment.

A multitude of great themes clamor for notice. A man must take sides for or against by intuition, rather than logical deduction.

One day this fighting admiral, Schley, happened to be in company with others who were talking on various topics of popular interest. The subject of Peruna was raised—its popularity as a catarrh remedy, its national importance, its extensive use.

ADMIRAL'S WORDS CARRY WEIGHT

One asked his opinion. Without a moment's hesitation he said: "I can cheerfully say that Mrs. Schley has taken Peruna and I believe with good effect."

ADMIRAL'S OPINION OF PE-RU-NA.

Like the battle of Santiago, the thought was sprung upon him without any warning, and he disposed of it with the same vim and decision as he did with the Spanish fleet led by the ill-fated Viscaya.

His words concerning Peruna have gone out into the world to be repeated by a thousand tongues, because he has said them.

Like the news of his victory over Cervera, his words concerning Peruna will be caught up by the multitudes and passed from mouth to mouth, across oceans and continents.

Except for an inborn manly independence, in a country of free speech, these words never would have been uttered by an officer in such a notable position as that of Admiral Schley.

Except for a world wide notoriety and popularity, such as Peruna enjoys, no remedy could ever have received such outspoken public endorsement by such a man.

At a recent sale at Christie's famous rooms, London, a playing card, the five of diamonds, brought the enormous sum of $13,750. This particular five of diamonds held on its back a circular miniature in gouache, by Hans Holbein of Frances Howard, duchess of Norfolk.

The Osage Indians are the richest people in the world. They have $8,000,000 in a state bank and own 1,500,000 acres of land. Each squaw, brave and pappoose in the tribe possesses land to the value of $4,000 and the interest on their money gives an annual income of $200 to each member.

The vicar of Little Hutton, England, does not like makers of tombstones to cut their names on the stones, but allows them to do so on stones placed in his graveyard if they pay $2.50 for the advertisement.

Uncle Sam's Panama canal diggers already have about 30,000 men on their payroll.

WORMS

"I write to let you know how I appreciate your Cascarets. I commenced taking them last November and took two ten cent boxes and passed a tapeworm 14 ft. long. Then I commenced taking them again and Wednesday, April 6th, I passed another tape worm 20 ft. long and over a thousand small worms. Previous to my taking Cascarets I didn't know I had a tape-worm. I always had a small appetite."

Not A Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not been a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney Troubles and General Debility." That is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C. writes. PERFECT HEALTH FOR WOMEN

Is the first consideration always, for upon it depends her looks, her usefulness, her happiness. Thousands of women bear their suffering in silence because of their modesty, and to these Dr. Brown's Caul-Aleta will come as a true blessing. This is the best remedy ever prepared for all troubles peculiar to women.

MONTHLY PAINS. Women who suffer from any menstrual irregularity, such as painful, scanty or profuse menstruation, will be restored to their normal condition by DR. BROWN'S CAUL-ALETA, and their monthly periods will be perfectly regular and painless. Thousands of women can testify to its great curative powers.

BEARING DOWN PAINS, with which so many women suffer regularly, caused by displacement of the uterus, or inflammation of the ovaries, should have prompt attention, for if neglected they will completely wreck the entire health. Dr. Brown's Caul-Aleta will give prompt relief and permanently cure.

A Heavy Load.

To lift that load off the stomach take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat. Sour stomach, belching gas on stomach and all disorders of the stomach that are curable, are instantly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. S. P. Storrs, a druggist, at 297 Main street, New Britain, Conn., says: "Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is giving such universal satisfaction and is so surely becoming the positive relief and subsequent cure for this distressing ailment, I feel that I am always sure to satisfy and gratify my customers by recommending it to them. I write this to show how well the remedy is spoken of here." Kodol Dyspepsia cure was discovered after years of scientific experiments and will positively cure all stomach troubles. Forgetful.

Jones—What have you got that string around your finger for? Brown—My wife put it on so that I would remember something. I forgot what it was. I'm keeping it on now to remind me to ask her what it was when I get home this evening.—Boston Transcript.

The Omnivorous Korean.

The Korean is omnivorous. Birds of the air, beasts of the field and fish from the sea—nothing comes amiss to his palate. Dog meat is in great request at certain seasons. Pork and beef with the blood undrained from the carcass, fowls and game—birds cooked with the lights, head and claws intact—fish sun dried and highly malodorous—all are acceptable to him. Cooking is not always necessary. A species of small fish is prefefred raw, dipped into some piquant sauce. Other dainties are dried seaweed, shrimps, vermicelli, pine seeds, lily buds and all vegetables and cereals. The excesses make the Korean martyrs of indigestion.

Only Make a Bad Matter Worse.

Perhaps you have never thought of it but the fact must be apparent to everyone that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old fashioned pills only makes a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of a medicine. Try a 25 cent bottle of them. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

THE GREAT FAMILY MEDICINE

Thedford's Black-Draught comes nearer regulating the entire system and keeping the body in health than any other medicine made. It is always ready in any emergency to treat ailments that are frequent in any family, such as indigestion, biliousness, colds, diarrhœa, and stomach aches.

Thedford's Black-Draught is the standard, never-failing remedy for stomach, bowel, liver and kidney troubles. It is a cure for the domestic ills which so frequently summon the doctor. It is as good for children as it is for grown persons. A dose of this medicine every day will soon cure the most obstinate case of dyspepsia or constipation, and when taken as directed brings quick relief.

Danville, Ill., Dec. 25, 1903.

Thedford's Black-Draught has been our family doctor for five years and we want no other. When any of us feel badly we take a dose and are all right in twelve hours. We have spent lots of money for doctor bills, but get along just as well with Black-Draught. IRA H. RADER.

Ask your dealer for a package of Thedford's Black-Draught and if he does not keep it send 25c. to The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn. and a package will be mailed to you.

...small and inadequate expres-
...of gratitude finds vent. No
...er what one suffers, there is
...grand compensation to a
...by sickness, and that is the ...nscious kindness shown to the ...ted. Acts of kindness and ...ghtfullness which may seem
...l to the donor are of immense
...e to the sick recipient, cheer-
...him in his solitude, refreshing
...in his weakness, aiding him in

...to recovery. Callous, indeed,
...he the heart that does not ac-
...wledge before the Almighty at
...two things—thanks to God
...aring us life, and gratitude to
...good friends who have made

Pletcher, Nov. 7, 1904.

Editor Banner: Please allow me a short space in your paper to say something in regard to the Stanton High school.

The school opened September the fifth, with one hundred and fifteen students, and from that day until now, it has continued to improve, and surely the best is yet to be. I know this is to be one of the best in the State.

For the two months just past, I attended this school, and I know it to have as well equipped faculty as any school. The teachers are earnest workers. Teachers that will su ceed anywhere. If we had a school like the Stanton school in every orecinct in the county the boys and girls would soon be to a higher plane in life. This school is composed of girls and boys, young men and ladies, who mean business and intend to make life a success.

Now, in conclusion, I will say that I cannot express in words my thanks to the good people of Stanton, and especially the school, for their kindness while with them.

Billingsley.

We are still having awful dry weather in our town, and some real cool mornings.

Miss Kate Smith of Prattville visited Mrs. J. E. Felton Sunday.

Several of our young people attended preaching at Salem Sunday.

Miss Emily Edwards of Kincheon is among our boarding pupils going to school here.

Our Sunday school and prayer meeting is progressing nicely.

Miss Gena Moody of Verbena is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. H. Askins.

Mrs. Felton and Miss Lillian Marlor are attending the Street Fair in Montgomery this week.

Mrs. W. W. Carter has returned from a lengthy visit to her parents at Guerreton.

The flinch game given by the Miss Marlors Friday night was very much enjoyed by all who attended.

Mr. W. W. Carter visited the capital city Sunday.

Mr. Math Willis left Monday for Mississippi, where he will make his future home. our best wishes go with him.

Miss Althea Herrod from Wilton was among our most welcome visitors Monday.

Mr. S. C. Thorn and beautiul young wife left last week for Beaumont, Miss., which they will make their future home. Our best wishes and congratulations go with the oung couple for a long, happy and prosperous life together.

From what we can learn we will soon have no young men in town, as they seem to be seeking abode elsewhere. With our regrets at giving them up, we wish them much success.

Rev. H. M. Andrews visited Prattville Sunday.

With many good wishes to you all I ring off. A CITIZEN.

EYES INJURED.

Ensley Police Officer Severely Cut by Bottle.

While attempting to arrest an unknown negro, who had just shot and fatally wounded a negress, Police Officer Ollie Camp, of Ensley, was assaulted with a whisky bottle and seriously injured.

The ball of one of the officer's eyes was severed in two and the other will probably be rendered sightless by the cuts. His face was terribly lacerated, it being necessary to take 24 stitches.

The negro made good his escape and the officers have as yet been unable to locate him.

Japanese Gains.

There is published a series of reports of the besieging forces at Port Arthur covering the operations from October 30th to November 3d, inclusive. These reports show that the Japanese continue to vigorously press the attack, and that they are using heavy artillery to batter down the Russian defenses, following the artillery fire with infantry rushes.

The five days' fighting covered in the reports gave the Japanese a number of distinct gains, materially shortening the defensive power of the garrison.

Marion's Books.

State Examiner Sedberry has reported on the books of the officers of Marion county, and finds them all in good shape save $9.75 yet due by the tax collector, W. T. Burlison, shown on the books of the assessor. Mr. Burlison was not in Hamilton and his books were not examined. The others were complimented.

Sale of Land.

One of the largest mineral land deals which has been made in Walker county for a long time was consummated when the Jasper Land company sold to B. W. and A. F. Whitfield a large tract of coal lands lying in the vicinity of Palos.

The trade has been crystalizing for some time. The price paid for the lands was $48,000. The Messrs. Whitfield are well known in Jasper and Walker county, being now in the mining business at Nauvoo under the name of the Black Creek Coal company. It is understood that extensive developments of the lands acquired are to begin at once.

Bishop in Huntsville.

The Right Rev. C. M. Beckwith, bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Alabama, is on an official visit to Huntsville. He preached in the Church of the Nativity and confirmed a class.

Arrests Decreased.

During the past month the number of arrests made by the Birmingham police department fell somewhat short of the number for the previous month, and was much lower than October of last year. The report of Chief Weir shows that only 781 arrests were made.

Lower Rate Asked.

The management of the Louisiana Purchase exposition has applied for more favorable passenger rates in eastern territory. The roads are asked to grant a rate of three-quarters of a cent per mile during the remainder of the exposition at St. Louis. Similar requests will be made of western roads.

Accidentally Shot.

Lee Coggins a young man living in West Cullman happened to an accident that may cause the loss of an arm. He was out with his gun and stopped to light a cigar. He leaned his gun against his breast and raised his leg to strike the match on his pants. His foot struck the hammer of the gun and discharged the load in his breast and arm.

Morrow Act Sustained.

By issuing a peremptory writ of mandamus, Judge Coleman sustained the Morrow act, passed by the last legislature, authorizing upon application the transfer of civil cases from the city court of Bessemer to the circuit court of Jefferson county, or other courts of like jurisdiction. The decision of the lower court will be appealed to the supreme court.

War Horse Dead.

At Lake City, Fla., General Jesse J. Finley, one of the few surviving brigadier generals of the confederate army, died Saturday. General Finley was 92 years old. He was a Tennesseean by birth, coming to Florida in 1843.

He resigned the district judgeship of Florida to enter the confederate army, and rose from the rank of private to that of brigadier general. He was a member of congress three terms, and held many positions of honor and trust in his adopted state.

Russia is said to be planning to have a new navy built in the United States. It's an ill war wind that blows no nation commercial good.

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS

Republican National Ticket Wins by an Unprecedented Majority.

ELECTORAL COLLEGE STANDS 325 TO 151

The Returns Indicate that the Democrats Have Carried Only the Southern States, Losing Even Maryland and Missouri.

At 2 o'clock Wednesday morning the following was sent from New York.

If Maryland has gone republican, as unofficial returns at this hour indicate, the republican vote in the electoral college will be the unprecedented one of 325 for Roosevelt and Fairbanks to 151 for Parker and Davis. Not only is this far in excess of McKinley's vote, 292, in 1900, but Judge Parker's vote is 4 less than that given Mr. Bryan four years ago. It is practically certain that the republican national ticket has carried every state in the union outside of the so-called solid south. It may take the official count to decide Maryland.

The republican majority in the next house of representatives will not be less than fifty.

The republican national ticket has been elected by a vote in the electoral college that will exceed the 292 given for McKinley in 1900. The result was astounding even to the most sanguine of the republican managers. Confident as they were of success, they were not prepared for the figures which followed the closing of the polls, bringing into the republican column not only all of those states they had claimed as safe for their candidates, but with the possible exception of Maryland, every state classed as doubtful.

Democratic successes are confined to the solid south, in which Kentucky is included, and Mr. Parker has not carried a single state which did not give its vote to Mr. Bryan four years ago. Unofficial returns indicate that he has lost some of those which the Nebraska candidate held for his party. Official figures from some of the northwestern states may slightly change the totals, but based on the returns available at a late hour the electoral vote stands as follows:

The Vote for President.

From indications up to 1 a. m. the vote for president is as follows:

For Roosevelt:

State.	Estimated Plurality.	Electoral Vote.
Colorado	5,000	5
California	Conceded	10
Connecticut	25,000	7
Delaware	2,500	3
Idaho	15,000	3
Illinois	150,000	37
Indiana	50,000	15
Iowa	125,000	13
Kansas	30,000	10
Maine	37,000	6
Maryland	Probably	8
Massachusetts	80,000	16
Michigan	100,000	14
Minnesota	100,000	11
Montana	Conceded	3
New Jersey	50,000	12
Nebraska	40,000	8
New Hampshire	20,000	4
Nevada	Probably	3
New York	185,000	39
North Dakota	25,000	4
Ohio	100,000	23
Oregon	30,000	4
Pennsylvania	300,000	34
Rhode Island	5,000	4
South Dakota	30,000	4
Utah	8,000	3
Vermont	30,000	4
West Virginia	10,000	7
Washington	30,000	5
Wisconsin	60,000	13
Wyoming	Large	3

This gives Roosevelt a total of 325 electoral votes.

For Parker:

State.	Estimated Plurality.	Electoral Vote.
Alabama	37,500	11
Arkansas	40,000	9
Florida	18,000	5
Georgia	45,000	13
Kentucky	10,000	9
Louisiana	35,000	9
Mississippi	50,000	10
Missouri	35,000	18
North Carolina	Largely	12
South Carolina	Largely	9
Tennessee	25,000	12
Texas	190,000	18
Virginia	Largely	12

This shows a total electoral vote of 151 for Parker.

At the Parker Home.

It might have been some other man's defeat for all the concern Judge Parker seemed to feel. Around him throughout the evening were the members of his family and their guests. The first news of the election was telephoned from Poughkeepsie, and showed a republican gain over the vote received by Bryan in 1900.

In the village of Esopus, there was general grief manifested by democrats at the discouraging character of the returns, but many had foreseen this as based on the returns for the village which Judge Parker had failed to carry by 14 votes. The bonfire prepared for the occasion was not lighted.

Judge Parker conceded the election of Roosevelt at 8:30 p. m. when he received a bulletin that the democratic national headquarters had admitted that every doubtful state had been carried by the republican national ticket. He appeared to be not at all downcast by the result, although it is known that he greatly deplored his overwhelming defeat in his own state. He received the discouraging news in his study, where he sat smoking with two of his neighbors. When asked if he had any statement to make, he pulled a telegraph blank toward him and wrote hastily for a moment. Then he said:

"I am going to send this telegram to President Roosevelt."

It was as follows:

"Rosemont, Esopus, N. Y., November 8, 8:30 p. m.—The President, Washington: The people, by their votes, have emphatically indorsed your administration, and I congratulate you.

"ALTON B. PARKER."

At that hour returns were indefinite and the judge declined to make an extended statement. He said his telegram to the president conveyed everything about the situation that he knew, that the result was evident, even though details were lacking.

No More a Candidate.

President Roosevelt has issued a formal announcement that he would not be a candidate for re-election.

"I am deeply sensible of the honor done me by the American people thus expressing their confidence in what I have done and have tried to do. I appreciate to the fullest the solemn responsibility this confidence imposes upon me, and I shall do all that in my power lies not to forfeit it. On the 4th of March next I shall have served three and a half years, and this three and a half years constitutes my first term. The wise custom which limits the president to two terms regards the substance and not the form. Under no circumstances will I be a candidate for or accept another nomination."

How Roosevelt Received the News.

Surrounded by his family and a company of intimate personal friends, President Roosevelt received the news of his victory achieved at the polls of the American people.

The first information of a definite character was received while at dinner. The returns taken before then were in the nature of assurances that he had carried New York, his home state, by a plurality so large as to be really astounding. Bulletins from the newspapers of New York city were received conveying the welcome news. Soon after dinner a company of intimate friends of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt assembled in the parlors of the white house and extended their felicitations and congratulations to both of them on the result.

Shortly after 9 o'clock President Roosevelt received a personal telegram from his democratic opponent congratulating him on his election.

The message from President Roosevelt was:

"I thank you for your congratulations."

At 9:30 p. m. several young ladies from the village joined the group in the study. They cheered the returns from Texas, which gave Judge Parker an increased vote over that received by Mr. Bryan in 1900, and said to the judge they believed he would win after all. The judge's laugh rang out above all the others.

In addition to the telegram received from Judge Parker, the white house telegraph force was deluged with congratulatory messages for the president from friends in every section of the country.

At 10:15 the president left his guests at the white house and went to his private office in the executive building. He chatted freely about the result of the election, making no attempt to conceal his gratification at the great victory. After talking to his friends for a time, he dictated a formal statement expressing his views. The scene at the moment of the making of the statement was notable. Ranged in a semi-circle about the big desk in the president's office the correspondents faced Mr. Roosevelt as he tilted back in an arm chair, dictated the announcement slowly to Secretary Loeb. So quiet was everybody in the room that one could hear the clock tick on the mantel shelf.

Beginning with the state of New York, which gives a republican plurality of approximately 185,000, the tale runs practically throughout the country, Kentucky alone showing democratic gains. Indiana is credited with at least 40,000 plurality, Iowa 125,000, and Pennsylvania heads the list as the banner republican state with the plurality of 253,000. And in the southern states the vote has been light. Georgia's democratic majority being only between 20,000 and 40,000. Nevada, which was carried by Mr. Bryan four years ago, is republican, and the indications are that Montana, Idaho and Colorado, also democratic in 1900, have gone back into the republican column. Delaware is estimated at about 5,000 republican. Massachusetts at about 90,000, and Connecticut, in which the more sanguine of the democratic leaders claimed to have had hopes, is about 25,000 for Roosevelt.

New York.

Theodore Roosevelt's plurality in his native state is second only to McKinley's 286,000 in 1896. It exceeds McKinley's in 1900 by about 41,500. The late returns show that there were cast for him about 185,000 votes more than for Parker.

Not only was his vote heavy in the country districts, where the republican strongholds are, but in Greater New York he ran much closer to Parker than had been expected even by his own campaign managers. It had been estimated that he would come down to the Bronx with better than 14,000 plurality, but the figures tonight showed that this forecast would be exceeded by approximately 85,000. In the city Parker's supporters had expressed hopes that their candidate would have from 140,000 to 160,000 more than Roosevelt, but in this they were disappointed by more than 100,000 votes.

The earlier counties to reach the city made it clear that the Parker vote everywhere fell below Bryan's in practically all the upstate districts. In Greater New York Parker's plurality was from 12,000 to 14,000 larger than Bryan's, but in the state his total vote fell 16,000 short of Bryan's.

The small plurality for Parker in New York city caused astonishment, the lowest preliminary ante-election estimates having figured that he would go to the Bronx with 100,000 or more. When the reports came in showing that he would lead Roosevelt by only 40,000, they were received with amazement. The Parker plurality in the city was 35,000 less than was given Herrick, democrat, for governor. In Brooklyn, the republican managers thought Parker might lead Roosevelt, but reports from all but thirty-seven districts give Roosevelt 424 plurality. There was surprise in the proportions of the vote for Higgins, republican, candidate for governor, he running far ahead of the Odell vote in the counties and winning by about 85,000. Herrick did not carry Albany, his home county, nor did Parker carry Ulster, in which he lived.

Leaders Tell How it Happened.

Cornelius N. Bliss, the treasurer of the republican national committee, said:

"The result is magnificent. In this state, and especially the people have always proven that they love justice and a square deal, and that they condemn the stand taken against the president, Cortelyou, Governor-elect Higgins and Governor Odell."

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, made the following statement:

"Of course I am very much surprised at the result. I do not attempt to account for it. Whatever may have been the cause, it will develop, and the party can deal with it.

"I sincerely regret the defeat of Judge Parker. He was in all respects a worthy candidate. As much can be said for Judge Herrick and his associates on the state ticket. They undoubtedly were the choice of the democracy, and their defeat is to be regretted for the sake of the country and the party more than for the candidates individually."

Armies Close Together.

Both Kuropatkin's army and Oyama's have now completed the fortifications of their position along Shahke river. At some points the fortifications are only a few hundred paces apart. The weather is dry and very cold.

Building Cars.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad company has nearly completed an order for 600 box cars and will commence work in a few days on an order for 500 gondolas. The company is building more cars at New Decatur now than ever before in their history.

Joseph Hayden, of Uniontown, Pa., cast his eighteenth ballot for a democratic president this year, completing a record of father and son voting in every election extending over the entire history of 115 years of the United States government, from the first election of George Washington.

Washington's eccentric millionaire, Dr. Leroy M. Taylor, who died recently, made his home in an impregnable and fortified "castle" in the heart of an alley next door to a stable and in a narrow court, inhabited mainly by negroes.

Benjamin Franklin's portrait has been brought out of obscurity at the postoffice department and now the face of the first postmaster general is almost the first object that attracts the attention of the visitor.

The "Thousand Islands" in the St. Lawrence river number only 900.

DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSMEN

Are Returned from Every District in Alabama by a Good Majority.

PARKER'S MAJORITY ESTIMATED AT 75,000

In Many Counties the Vote was Light. Returns are Slow in Coming In. Comer Polls a Large Vote.

In an interview at 12 o'clock Congressman J. L. Burnett of the seventh district, says he will carry the district by at least 2,000 majority. He has carried Cherokee by 300, Etowah by 500, Marshall by 200, Cleburne by 100, and Mr. Burnett thinks he will carry every county in his district except Winston. The vote in the district will run 18,000 and Mr. Burnett believes he has safely received 10,000.

In Marshall county the democratic ticket will run about 300 ahead and in Etowah will run 300 to 500 ahead.

Reports from the fifth district show that Mr. Heflin has carried it. He has carried Chambers county by 1,500 majority. It looks now as though Heflin's majority in the district will not be less than 8,000.

Chairman Mallory, of the state democratic committee, expects the seventh district, the only one in doubt, to give Burnett, democrat, a majority. He also regards Heflin, democrat, as safe in the fifth by increased majority. The vote in the state was heavy and the democratic majorities will be increased. Heflin received 280 at Tuskegee, the home of Booker Washington, to 34 for Walker, republican.

Chilton county has gone democratic by a small majority.

Morgan.

Returns are coming in slow. The precincts heard from indicate that Parker's vote will be 2,500, Roosevelt's 500. County ticket elected without opposition, as was also circuit judge and chancellor.

The election passed off quietly in the Decatur. There were no fights nor drunkenness. But little interest was manifested by the political parties.

Estimates at this election place Richardson's, democrat, majority over Roberts, republican, at 7,000.

Livingston.

Livingston: Parker 140; Roosevelt 2; Epes, Parker 60, Roosevelt 3; Bluffport, Parker 18, Roosevelt 2. Majority in Sumter for Parker about 1,500. Congressional ticket the same.

Marion.

Marion box polled 230 votes out of a total strength of 360. Republicans get 4 out of 7 of negro votes cast. Total vote of county estimated at 800; virtually solid democratic. Total strength of county about 1,300. For local taxation for public schools, Marion box, for 169; against 49.

Columbia.

Vote light, 151 polled. Parker 110, Roosevelt 41. State and county ticket: Solid vote in contest for probate judge of Houston county. Leslie will carry beat over Crawford by small majority.

Huntsville.

The republican ticket got not more than 10 per cent of the votes polled in Madison county. Estimated result: Parker 2,250, Roosevelt 250. For congress: Richardson, 2,250, Roberts 250. The vote was unusually light.

Courtland.

About one hundred votes were polled at this place, of which the democratic ticket will receive 90 per cent. Impossible to get returns from county precincts before tomorrow.

Center.

Returns indicate majority of 600 for Burnett and larger majority for Harralson and Hunt. Joe Savage, for probate judge, leads county ticket with over 1,100 majority.

Montevallo.

Parker 136, Roosevelt 50, Comer 141, McClellan 137.

Scottsboro.

A very light vote was polled in the county. Out of 4,300 registered voters in the county there were only about 3,000 polled. All of the precincts have not been heard from owing to the fact that for the first time since the war the democratic county ticket had no opposition, therefore little interest was taken in the election. Only 288 votes were polled here.

Parker 250, Roosevelt 25. For congress, Richardson 275, Roberts 18. Parker's probable majority in the county 2,500, and Richardson's about the same for congress. The vote here for circuit judge is Haralson 278, Nicholson 10.

Autauga.

Parker carries the county by a large majority. Heflin receives solid democratic vote. Special school tax almost unanimously carried. About 75 per cent of vote was cast.

Blount.

Kelton, probate judge, 70; Davidson, republican, 56; Hood, Kelton 21, Davidson 16; Chepaltepec, Kelton 57, Davidson 30. Kelton's majority 16. Six years ago Davidson's majority in these beats was 90, which indicates Kelton's election by 200.

Baldwin.

The election was quiet. Baldwin

Lauderdale.

About half of the registered vote of Lauderdale county was cast. Unofficial returns give Parker 1,400, Roosevelt 360. In 1900 this county gave McKinley a small majority. Judge William Richardson for congress from the eighth district had practically no opposition.

Franklin.

Partial returns show that democrats have carried Franklin county by a majority of about 100, electing the entire county ticket. Burnett for congress will probably lead the ticket a few votes.

Shelby.

Bowle, democrat, will carry Shelby county by 300, and Chilton by a small majority, it is thought. Driver, democrat, has carried every beat in Chambers county for probate judge.

Cullman.

Indications from precincts heard from give the democratic ticket a good majority, with the exception of possibly one man. John L. Burnett is getting a heavy vote. Reports from the country will not be in until Wednesday morning.

Tuscaloosa.

There were 500 votes polled here today, more than at the county primary in July. Parker 448, Roosevelt 52. J. H. Bankhead's majority for congress and Judge Sprott's for judge of the sixth district will probably reach 1,600. Parker's majority is estimated at 1,700.

Dallas.

Returns so far reached in Dallas county indicate a full vote has been polled. In Selma, 819 votes were polled, of which the republicans received 17, the populists 11 and the socialists 11. Only two precincts in the county have been heard from, and they gave a solid vote for the democratic ticket.

Calhoun.

Election day passed off quietly here. There was no contest in Calhoun county for county offices, but a larger vote was polled than in 1900. S. J. Bowers for congress carries the city by a majority over Kitchens. Republican indications are that Kitchens will carry but one county, and that by a small majority, while Bowle carries five by large majorities, reelecting him to congress. Returns are also coming in from rural districts on account of large number of names on the tickets.

Coosa.

Election passed off quietly throughout the entire county. Reports from precinct 18 in the county give Judge of Probate J. A. Crawford 50 votes over A. D. Bentley, independent. Reports from precincts to hear from can't possibly change results, but will perhaps increase democratic majority. All the balance of the ticket in effect the same as for judge of probate.

Jefferson.

The election passed off quietly in Birmingham. It is estimated that between 2,900 and 3,000 votes were polled at the four voting places in Birmingham, a large majority for Parker. The largest vote cast at a box was 799 at the court house. More negroes voted than had been expected. It is estimated that one hundred negro votes were cast in Birmingham.

B. B. Comer, the democratic nominee for president of the railroad commission, carried Jefferson county by an overwhelming majority.

There was no organized opposition to the re-election of Oscar W. Underwood for member of congress from the ninth district.

DeKalb.

Democrats claim election of entire county ticket. Haralson and Hunt carry this county.

Millport.

Result of election: 77 and 2; Broadhead 57, Crumpton 2. County ticket practically the same. Special school tax 6 to 1.

A New Party.

Late in the night came the announcement from Melville G. Fuller, manager of the campaign of Thomas E. Watson, the candidate of the people's party, that as a result of the overwhelming democratic defeat steps would be taken to form a new party. To this end, according to the announcement given out, Mr. Bryan, Mr. Watson and William Randolph Hearst would hold a conference in New York in about a week's time.

SES IN ALABAMA.

Central Part of the State Suffered Heavily. Losses Reach $50,000.

COTTON LOST IN TWO OF THEM.

Montgomery, Faunsdale and Benton Visited—Some Insurance Was Carried.

Fire broke out in the rear of the Adams stables in Montgomery and consumed 1,000 bales of cotton in the warehouse of the Roman Cotton company entailing a loss of $30,000. One of the horses running from the stable knocked down E. O. Marion, a gunsmith, and trampled on him, inflicting serious and probably fatal injuries. When the fire broke out negroes ran from the stable to release the horses. Forty or fifty of them dashed out into the streets running like mad. They raced away in every direction. A few moments several ran back and tried to get into the stable and were only kept out by hard work.

The loss at Faunsdale is estimated between $15,000 and $20,000, five cabins being burned, including the dispensary. The fire originated in a negro restaurant, evidently from a defective flue, and was quickly communicated to adjoining buildings, among which was the brick store house of G. McKee, just completed a few weeks ago. The amount of insurance carried on the rest of the property is not known, but Mr. McKee is said to have carried no insurance whatever, and the heaviest loss perhaps falls upon him.

The railroad station house at Benton on the Western Railway of Alabama was totally destroyed by fire. Four bales of cotton sitting on the track near the depot suddenly burst into flames and from it the depot caught fire and was completely consumed. The building was an old frame one, but was substantially built. The cotton, consisting of about thirty-five bales, was destroyed, as well as the depot.

LATER.

E. O. Marion, who was run over by a frightened horse during the fire in a cotton ware house at Montgomery, died Sunday as a result of his injuries.

BOND FOR AIRSHIP.

Furnished by the World's Fair Company.

The $16,000 bond required by the fair house authorities has been furnished by the exposition company that the flight of the French airship may be made free from any hindrances during this line.

This was done because Mr. Francis had been informed that his ship, being a dutiable exhibit in bond, it could not be taken out of bond at the fair grounds unless a bond was filed. Its ascension at the fair might result in its flying without the bounds of the exposition site, Mr. Gallenkamp said that the ascension could not be permitted unless bond had been furnished.

Southern Steel Ingots.

The Birmingham Steel and Iron company, which has been in operation only a few months, has purchased the rolling equipment of the old Henderson steel plant at North Birmingham, and will manufacture small steel ingots for the southern trade.

The plant will work day and night, making steel castings in the day and ingots at night.

Customers who have purchased their steel ingots from the north state that they would rather have their orders filled in the south, if possible.

For New Cars.

The Gulf and Ship Island and the Southern railroads have both filed equipment mortgages with the state of Mississippi to secure the purchase of 250 box and fruit cars for the one and 2,000 similar cars for the other.

Mobile and West Alabama.

The Mobile and West Alabama Railroad company is reported in capital shape. The contract for constructing the road has been let and $300,000 has been collected to begin the work. Engineers have completed a survey as far as Bessemer. The new road will penetrate the Bibb Creek district, and may be able to take the place of the Birmingham, Huntsville and Gulf road.

Steamers Sunk at Port Arthur.

Delayed advices forwarded from Port Arthur between Nov. 3 and 4, say that two steamers of about 3,600 tons each, anchored in the west harbor, were sunk by the Japanese guns.

Attempted Hold Up.

According to the crew of the Philadelphia and New York express train on the Pennsylvania railroad, which left Washington at 9:50 Sunday night, unsuccessful attempts were made to hold up the train at Havre de Grace and Perryville by two men, one of whom was a negro. The men escaped.

It is believed the men boarded the train at Baltimore.

BETTER PAY FOR MUSICIANS.

Recommended By Gen. Elliott, Commanding the Marine Corps.

Brigadier General Elliott, commandant of the marine corps, is trying to secure better pay for the members of the marine band. This is rendered necessary, it is claimed, because of the opposition of the musical unions, who have by their opposition prevented the band from securing any outside engagements upon which they formerly depended to equalize their earnings with those of civil life. General Elliott suggests that the leader be given the pay and allowances of a captain in the corps, the second leader the pay and allowance of a second lieutenant, and the first and second class musicians be paid $100 and $75 a month respectively. It is thought by many if the change in pay is not made that many of the best musicians now in the band will not reinlist at the end of their term and it will be difficult to supply the vacancies with limited pay that is now allowed.

IRON FURNACES.

And Something of the Iron Business in Alabama.

Contracts for the second quarter of 1905 are being booked at $13 on a No. 2 foundry basis.

Pig metal stocks in Alabama amount to less than 100,000 tons. Of the 26 furnaces in Jefferson county, only 14 are in blast. The Tennessee's No. 4, which was started up a few weeks ago, was banked because of scarcity of coke, the Ensley stacks consuming more than usual. No. 4 will probably resume operations this week.

The Sloss Sheffield's No. 1 city furnace, which has just been rebuilt, will be ready for the torch soon.

The Tennessee company's five Ensley furnaces are doing splendid work. They made a record last month. President Bacon reports that the company's coal production is now about 50 per cent. of normal. He is having thirty new houses built at No. 5, and thirty at No. 7, Pratt, and expects to build forty more.

ORDER OF EASTERN STAR

Concludes Fourth Annual Session.—At Ensley in 1905.

At New Decatur the grand chapter of Alabama of the Order of the Eastern Star, in its fourth annual session completed its work Friday. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

Worthy grand matron, Mrs. Hannah D. Chaffee, of Montgomery; worthy grand patron, H. A. Killen, of Greenhill; associate grand matron, Mrs. Mary Camps, of Wylam; assistant grand patron, Dr. W. M. Cunningham, of Corona; grand secretary, Mrs. Elizabeth Salter, of Birmingham; grand treasurer, Mrs. Sue Cunningham, of Ensley.

The next annual meeting will be held at Ensley. The new officers were installed.

WEST PRATT COAL CO.

New Owners Will Make Marked Improvement in the Properties.

The West Pratt Coal company has been purchased by Henry B. Gray, W. H. Soper and associates. The purchase price is said to be about $100,000.

The West Pratt coal properties are located in Walker county and belong to that group that have been recognized as independent in operation. The property was first opened and development began by the Stoberts, a stock company being later organized to manage the property. The daily output has been in the neighborhood of 800 tons.

The property is situated on the Frisco system. Considerable improvement was recently made and the new owners will go further in their developments. The output will be materially increased.

Three white men, John Pruitt, Wiley Pruitt and Will Fox, are in jail at Anniston charged with robbing a mail pouch at Lincoln last Thursday. The robbery was discovered as soon as the pouch was received on the train bound for Atlanta, and reported to the officials, who have had them arrested on circumstantial evidence.

Russell's Books.

Examiner J. T. Gorman has filed his report on the officials of Russell county. All the officials were complimented for the neatness of their books and the correctness of their accounts. The tax valuation in the county has increased $34,718 over last year, but the examiner says that the property is given in at about 50 per cent. of its actual value. He also stated that there were three corporations that owed the state $190 licenses.

A. P. Longshore, probate judge of Shelby county, who was found due the state $55.12, has paid the money into the state treasury.

Wright to Make Tour.

Governor Wright, of the Philippines, will leave Nov. 12 for a twenty day tour of inspection in Jolo and Mindanao.

Navigation Resumed.

It is announced that regular steamboat service will be resumed on the Alabama and Tombigbee rivers, the recent suspension being occasioned by low water.

PLOT TO WRECK SHIPS.

Intercepted Message and Balloons the Subject of Controversy.

Not yet has there been received official confirmation of the sensational report that an intercepted dispatch from the Japanese minister at The Hague would be produced in the court of inquiry into the recent North sea incident to prove the existence of a plot to destroy the Russian Baltic fleet.

There is, however, said to be good grounds for believing the report to be true, and that there are many indications that the Russian government has been long in possession of strong evidence of a Japanese plan to intercept all of Vice Admiral Rojestvensky's warships. It also developed that Emperor Nicholas during an audience with British Ambassador Hardinge last Sunday, declared in the most positive terms that there were Japanese torpedo boats in the North Sea.

Apparently Denmark was impressed by the same belief.

Another remarkable story is current to the effect that two balloons were seen hovering over the Skagerack when the Russian fleet entered the North sea.

RAILROAD EXTENSION

Another Line is Working Toward Atlanta.

The Georgia, Florida and Alabama railroad is making active arrangements to extend its road northward from Cuthbert to Columbus and Atlanta. For several days an engineering corps has been in the field north of Cuthbert, looking at the different routes.

A deed for $1,100,000 is being recorded in Randolph county to secure an issue of bonds to make this extension.

The route indicated in the paper is from Cuthbert to Richland, and thence to Columbus and Atlanta or from Cuthbert to Lumpkin and thence to Columbus, or to build a line from Cuthbert to both of these places. Another route is from Cuthbert near Springvale and thence to the Chattahoochee river valley, and up this valley to Columbus, leaving Lumpkin and Richland to the west.

COTTON GIN BURNED.

No Insurance and Several Farmers Lose Their Cotton.

The steam cotton gin of John A. McWilliams, in Tuscumbia, including engine and boiler, was completely destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of approximately $5,000. Beside the gin plant, valued at $5,000, twenty bales of cotton and 2,000 bushels of cotton seed were consumed.

The burned cotton was the property of numerous farmers in the vicinity, the cotton having been ginned and baled and left on the yard subject to their disposal. There was no insurance on any part of the property destroyed, the owner of the plant neglecting to renew the insurance which had expired only a few days ago.

The origin of the fire is thought to have been in the engine room of the building.

Delayed Pensions.

Some of the pensioners who will come in this year for money from the old soldiers' fund are getting impatient and want to know why the warrants are delayed. The explanation is this: For several years the names of the pensioners have been written in a big book, and that book became entirely full this year and every name had to be copied into a new book. This could not be done until after the state board of pension examiners met and passed on the lists, which was the last of August.

Since that time two men have been working night and day to get the names transcribed. There were 15,500 of them, and they had to be placed in alphabetical order. Only two men could work at it. The old soldiers will get their money before the last of November.

New Industries in Alabama.

Bessemer—Pfining mill; stove foundry.

Camden—$25,000 naval stores company.

Duncanville—Cotton gin.

Georgiana—Saw mill.

Mobile—Ice and cold storage plant.

Montgomery—Ice factory.

Will Enlarge Plant.

It is understood that the United States Cast Iron, Pipe and Foundry company will shortly begin making considerable improvements and enlarging on its plant in Bessemer. It is also reported that the improvements will represent an expenditure of something like $200,000.

The company has now perfected arrangements to secure sufficient pig iron to keep the plant operating on full time.

Reserves Called.

The Japanese reservists residing in the Philippines have been called to the colors. Their number is estimated at 600.

Commerce and Labor Budget.

Acting Secretary Murray, of the department of commerce and labor, made public the estimates of appropriations for the department for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1905. The estimates aggregate $14,339,529, being $549,425 less than the estimates for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1904. The estimates for the fiscal year of 1906 exceed the appropriations for the current fiscal year by $4,213,444.

FORTY FEET APART

Russians and Japanese Fighting Almost Hand to Hand. Outer Works Carried.

VERY EFFECTIVE CANNONADING

Has Marked the Japanese Attacks. Positions Taken and Retaken.

After three days of continuous bombardment of Port Arthur, which caused extensive destruction to the Shojusan and Niryusan forts in the west center of the Russian line of defense, and also of Kekwan fort, the right wing of the Japanese army assaulted Shojusan. Having carried the approaches to that height, the assailants entrenched themselves under the glacis of the forts. In the evening the left wing delivered an assault on Kekwan, fighting its way to the lower parapet. There the Japanese held their ground stubbornly in the face of the Russian counter attacks.

Having reinforced during the night, the Russians charged down upon the Japanese, and desperate hand-to-hand conflicts ensued. The Japanese beat back the enemy and destroyed two covered positions in the front moat. A Japanese sub-lieutenant with thirty volunteers then succeeded in making his way to the rear of the fort. There he engaged in a personal conflict with a Russian officer and killed him. Having discovered two more defenses in the rear of the moat, the sub-lieutenant withdrew his force with a loss of two men.

Later in the night the advanced position of the Japanese was taken and retaken twice. The besiegers succeeded in holding the approaches and constructing trenches connecting them with the army's front parallel. Fort P, north of the new and old batteries in the left center of the line of defense, was captured by the severe fighting of the night.

Severe explosions and extensive fires have occurred in the fortress within the last few days. The total casualties of the Japanese in the late attacks were 1,100. The firing of all the guns is wonderfully effective.

The outposts of the contending forces were only forty feet apart. One of the Japanese trenches collapsed into a Russian gallery. The enemy being surprised underground, fled in confusion.

Protection Recommended.

Judge Carmichael, president of the state board of convict inspectors, has caused to be held a rigid investigation concerning the death of Percy Swope, a convict who was killed by electricity in mine No. 3 at Pratt Oct. 18. He wrote to Superintendent Rogers asking for a report. Mr. Rogers reported that Swope came in contact with a trolley wire while walking in the dark. Chief Electrician Elliott reported the same. Judge Carmichael then asked for a report from State Mine Inspector Gray. Mr. Gray reported that he had made a personal inspection, and that with ordinary care these trolley wires were safe. He suggested, however, that shields should be put on at certain places and made several recommendations. Judge Carmichael then wrote Superintendent Rogers urging him to comply with the recommendations, and suggested that double shields be used on all cross entries.

Delayed Traffic.

In a freight wreck at Henry Ellen three box cars were derailed and the track torn up for a little distance, delaying passenger traffic considerably.

River Association.

The annual meeting of the Tennessee River and Harbor association will be held in New Decatur on November 22d. The last meeting was held in Chattanooga and resulted in good.

It is expected that the association will ask congress to make a large donation for the improvement of the river from Chattanoogs down.

Suit for $50,000,000.

The suit for $50,000,000 brought by Elizabeth T. Greenough, of New York, against Henry H. Rogers, of the Standard Oil company, which was dismissed by agreement of the parties on September 24th last was reentered in the supreme court. The new suit is entered under the name of Cadwallader M. Raymon vs. Henry H. Rogers et al., the damages being set at $50,000,000 as before.

Mrs. Greenough is administratrix of the estate of her husband, Benjamin Greenough, an inventor, and seeks to recover royalties on the uses of a secret process for treating petroleum to make it non-explosive.

Representative Resigns.

J. F. Thompson, the nominee for solicitor of the Fourth circuit, has written the governor resigning as a member of the house of representatives.

Studying Our Systems.

Fernandi Benendel, mayor of the City of Mexico, with his wife and two children is touring the United States making a study of our municipal governments.

TRAPPIST MONKS

Meet and Elect a New Superior General of the Order.

All the abbots of the Trappist order have just gathered at Rome, says a dispatch from that city. They met in general chapter to elect a new superior general to succeed Dom Sasselian Wyarth, recently deceased. Most of those present were Frenchmen, the Trappist order having more houses in France than in any other part of the world.

Among the American who attended were the abbots of Gethsemane Abbey, in Kentucky; of Melleray Abbey, in Iowa, and of Lonsdale, R. I.

The meeting resulted in the unanimous election of the Right Rev. Dom Augustine De La Mare, bishop of Constance and abbot of Notre Dame D'Igny, in France, who will now reside in Rome. The new general is 51 years old.

The Trappist order at present numbers 3,500 members, distributed among fifty-six monasteries. There are also sixteen houses of female Trappists, who have adopted the same rules, and who number 1,500, mostly in France.

NEW RAILROAD PLANNED

To Run from Leeds to Gadsden, With Right of Extension.

A railroad will be built from Leeds to Gadsden and further on. Efforts are now being made to finance the new road and Birmingham parties are in the east for that purpose. While nothing definite can be learned it is understood that either the Central of Georgia railroad or the Seaboard Air Line will back the issue of bonds to be financed for the construction of the road, the name of which is not yet mentioned. The first intention is to build something like thirty-five miles of roadway, with heavy steel. The right will be reserved to consolidate with or absorb other railroads, which may mean that very close arrangements may be made for an entrance to Chattanooga and then into Birmingham or Montgomery.

Twin Crimes.

At DeKalb, Miss., the convening of court Monday was made notable by the charge which Judge Robert F. Cochran delivered to the Kemper county grand jury. Among other things Judge Cochran said that it was the duty of every law-abiding and law-loving citizen, who knows of violations of the law, to go before the grand jury and inform against criminals without waiting to be summoned.

"I say to you," said the judge, "that blind tiger liquor and pistols are at the bottom of seventy-five per cent. of the homicides in the Tenth district, and you have it in your power, by fining the blind tigers $500 and ninety days in jail and the pistol carrier $100 and ninety days in jail, to stop the slaughter of human beings by these agencies of the devil. Blind tigers and carrying of pistols are twin crimes."

DYNAMITE USED

To Crack Safe in Midland City.—Robbers Escaped.

Masked burglars entered the store of the Volbern-Howell Mercantile company at Midland City early Sunday morning, dynamited the safe and got some cash and a number of endorsed checks. The men were seen as they left, but no clues leading to their capture are in the hands of the officers. The store they burglarized is one of the largest in the city.

River Very Low.

The general rains during the past few days have raised the Tennessee river, but to no great extent. The river has been one inch lower this fall than it was ever known to be before, so say old river men.

Russian Crops.

Reports from the grain centers of Russia state that the harvests which have ended show record yields of very fine quality. The farmers are unable to find room in which to store their grain. Ninety-one thousand car loads are stalled at various parts of the country.

Railroad Employes.

The state railroad commission has an enumeration of the employes of the lines of railroad in the state. It is shown that the following have the numbers as indicated: Louisville and Nashville, 4,867; Alabama Great Southern, 1,435; Atlantic Coast Line, 1,566; Birmingham Southern, 379; Central of Georgia, 1,831; Chattanooga Southern, 79; Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham, 619; Mobile and Ohio, 1,869; Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, 632; Seaboard Air Line, 290; Southern, 4,302; Western of Alabama, 611. No figure of the number of employes were made up last year, but it is known that there is an increase for this year.

Trust Cuts Price.

In Illinois the announcement that the basis price of whisky had again dropped from $1.24 to $1.22, making a fall by successive stages of 5 cents in about two months, caused a sensation among independent dealers. Independents say they are convinced that the trust has begun a war of extermination.

Well informed whiskey men say the price may go still lower.

SEVENTY-FOUR FATALITIES

Have Occurred in Alabama Mines so Far This Year.

Seventy-four men lost their lives in the coal mines of Alabama through accident this year already.

For the past four months thirty of the seventy-four met their fate in the mines, six during the month of July and eight during each of the following three months.

During the year 1903 fifty-seven men in all lost their lives in the coal mines of Alabama, with a total production of 11,700,725 tons of coal. It is estimated that the production this year will not be less than 700,000 tons greater than last year despite the strike but the increase in fatal accidents has been in greater percentage than the coal production.

The major portion of the accidents happened from fall of coal or rock in mines while several men were run over by tram cars by coming in contact with electrical wires in mines and through other causes.

Need Officers.

The necessity of officers at the front has resulted in the mobilization of many Russian reserve officers. The loss of officers at Liao Yang and below Mukden was about 1,300.

The news from the front indicates that General Kuropatkin is devoting his attention chiefly to keeping the Japanese army busy along the line of their fortifications below the Shahe river.

Alexieff Almost Home.

Viceroy Alexieff will arrive in Petersburg Friday. There is renewed talk that he may be transferred as viceroy to the Caucasus on account of the situation there.

General Alexieff, chief of the bureau of operations of the general staff has been appointed third quartermaster of General Kaubler's Third Manchurian army.

General Grippenberg, commander of the Second Manchurian army, and his staff leave Vilna November 17th.

Check Returned.

A. I. Jenkins, of Midland, was robbed of a $258 check by a pickpocket on a train between his home and Columbus some three weeks ago. The thief finally threw it away, being unable to cash the check. Mr. Jenkins having advertised his loss. He threw the check away on a country road and curiously enough it has been found and returned to Mr. Jenkins.

Believed to be a Panther.

Ed McDermott, manager of the Swan Lake fishing and hunting resort just across the Tennessee river from Decatur, while out coon hunting in the river bottoms, was attacked by some unknown wild animal and came near losing his life. As it was, his face and shoulders were badly lacerated. The beast broke his gun in the struggle, and in fighting the beast with his gun, the gun exploded, killing one of his fine hounds. It is believed the animal was a panther.

Trolley Collision.

At least forty persons were injured, some of them seriously, in a rear-end collision Saturday on the Long Beach, Cal., electric road in a fog. A car bound to Long Beach and carrying thirty-three passengers, had stopped near Compton when a work car containing about forty Mexican laborers and two foremen, which had been closely following, crashed into it at full speed. Not a person on the passenger car escaped injury, and some of them received serious cuts and bruises.

Badly Injured.

Charles Whelan, five years old, was thrown from a wagon in Birmingham and the wagon ran over his head. It is thought his skull is fractured.

New Mississippi Railroad.

It is expected that trains will be running over the new branch of the Illinois Central from Brookhaven to Monticello, a distance of twenty-five miles, by the 20th of this month, and the little town, so long in the woods and far removed from civilization, is preparing for a great rejoicing.

Kennedy in Command.

Lieutenant Colonel H. H. Kennedy is in receipt of his commission as lieutenant colonel of the Third regiment, Alabama National guard, and he has assumed command of the regiment.

Colonel Kennedy will at once ask for an auditing committee, whose duties will be to ascertain the financial condition of the regiment, and beginning the middle of next month visits will be made to every company in the regiment for the purpose of inspecting said companies and establishing the exact conditions of each and every company.

On Canal Commission.

Hunter L. Johnson, of Tuskegee, has been appointed to a place on the Panama canal commission, and he will leave shortly for Panama to take charge of the work assigned to him. Mr. Johnson was private secretary to the late Congressman G. W. Thompson, and was editor of the Tuskegee News up to the time of his appointment. He has sold his interest in the News to William P. Cobb, son of the late Judge Cobb.

ONCE again the election is over and the voters have expressed their choice for the governing bodies of the Nation, the judiciary of the State, and the County officers.

Theodore Roosevelt is elected President of the United States by a large majority, and it appears that the Republican majority in Congress is fully maintained and probably increased.

In Alabama all the Democratic nominees for the judicial offices were elected without opposition, as was also B. B. Comer for president of the railroad commission. All of the nine congressional districts returned the Democratic nominees by substantial majorities, the opposition in the fourth, fifth and seventh districts not developing any great strength.

In Chilton the Democrats have made large gains, as was anticipated, and it seems have probably carried the county. No authentic figures are obtainable however, this evening (Wednesday) and it will require the official count on Saturday to determine who have been elected. The Democrats claim they have carried the county by a safe majority, and the opposition make a similar claim.

Court convened Monday morning and Judge T. Scott Sayre gave the Grand Jury an explicit and plain and clear charge, which has been favorably commented upon. The following was the Grand Jury empanelled:

P. D. Wilson, Foreman; Cato Pattillo, N. G. Ward, Dock Gentry, Hugah T. Mullins, N. J. Calloway, John A. Rodgers, Y. O. Freeman, E. H. Adams, Charley Martin, Jr., W. A. Weaver, C. E. Edwards, A. Patison, J. G. Gay, J. T. Davis, J. J. Hicks, R. P. Mills, E. G. Cofer, R. H. Martin, Calvin Jones.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER.

when spoken from the deep of the heart it means a great deal. If I should be so ungrateful as to forget their kindness I should deserve to be forgotten at the day of judgment—not good enough for heaven and too bad for hell.

I wish I knew what to say and how to say it to the good and lovely ladies who have so kindly remembered me. Fruits and flowers, good things to eat and sweet things to drink, these have been among the many presents I have received from the good ladies, not only of Clanton but from distant parts of the county. I have lain for hours and speculated whether the lady who sent the flowers or fruit, or the tasty viands to tempt a sick man's appetite, or the health-giving juice of the grape or the blackberry—I say I have lain for hours and wondered if they derived one hundredth part of the satisfaction in sending these things as I did in receiving them, if they did then they know what it is to be happy. "It is more blessed to give than to receive." That is alright, but the sick man who receives is blessed above the average of mankind, and the givers are enshrined in his memory forever. I would rather be a sick man, blessed with the present of a simple flower from some one who was kind enough to remember me, than to be a well man, a millionaire without a friend.

To one and all I rejoice to say my health is almost returned and with kindest regards and thanks for your sympathy. Believe me

Yours gratefully,
FRANK CHRICHTON.

Fairview.

Hello! We have come again. Our community has not had a word in a long time, so we just want to let some of the people know some of the things that are happening at Fairview.

First, we want to say our Sunday school is fine; you just can't imagine how much it has improved, both in attendance, and the recitation of their lessons.

We are glad to have Miss Etta Roper with us. She has had quite a lengthy stay at Billingsley, so it seems to us.

Missie Gatlie and Lula Sims are boarding at Mrs. Durbins; she former is teaching at Fairview and school is fine, we have some boarding students.

Mr. John Moore of Coopers visited this place recently.

Mr. Ernest Williams of Mulberry visited here recently.

Mr. Mc Broadhead of Clanton visited J. O. Broadhead a few Sundays ago. Somehow, I think he likes to come to Fairview these days.

Quite a number of our girls and boys attended the entertainment at Billingsley. They report a nice time.

Next Sunday is preaching day, let everybody come.

Mr. Doc Foshee of Liberty visited this place Sunday.

Some of the Fairview girls [illegible] Prof. Byrum has forsaken them, but all is not dead that seems to be, so cheer up girls.

Well, G. M. D. has ordered some new buggy wheels, look out over at Mulberry.

Mr. Grover Vance visited Mr. Milton Rogers Sunday; reports a nice time.

Mr. Sammie Broadhead visited Mr. Tunnell's Sunday.

AUNT PATSY.

A Good Complexion.

"Sparkling eyes rosy cheeks restored by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers," so writes S. P. Moore, of Nacogdoches, Tex. A certain cure for biliousness, constipation, etc, etc. Small pill—easy to take—easy to act. Sold by Upchurch Drug. co.

New Salem.

Rev. Sutton Smitherman will fill his appointment at the church Sunday morning, and in the afternoon Prof. Durham will sing; we invite everybody to come. Success to the Banner.

Pletcher.

After an absence of quite awhile, I come again asking for admission and space for a few items from this little village nestled among the pine clad hills of old Chilton.

Mr. Secar Harris returned from Florida last week.

Mr. R. J. Langston and wife attended the fair in Montgomery last week.

Mrs. Clark of Braybead paid Mrs. Alex Green a visit here recently.

Mrs. J. H. Adams of Lawley is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Wilkins, at this place.

Mr. D. F. Harris of Montgomery was a visitor at Mr D. W. Wilkins' last Friday.

Mr. George Williams returned from Pensacola, Fla., Saturday to the delight of his many friends here.

Our school is progressing nicely under the skillful management of Miss Mary Jones.

We are glad to learn that our friend, Miss Ellen Harris, has returned from the infirmary in Selma, and is improving.

Rev. T. L. Deason filled his regular appointment at Pilgrim's Rest Sunday and delivered an excellent sermon.

Mr. James Abbott left Tuesday for Blocton. BASHFUL CRICKET.

Curious Flowers.

The Brasilian flower known as the running antelope is so called because its white petals have a series of well defined, dark colored lines and dots in which the imagination can readily trace the form of an antelope, with its limbs outstretched and head thrown back, seemingly fleeing for its life. In the "caricature plant" one species has the imitative form on the petals, and another has it outlined in the ribs and shading of the leaves.

The last mentioned curiosity bears a remarkably well executed likeness of the Duke of Wellington and has on that account been named "Arthur and His Nose." Among the orchids the imitative form is entirely different in character, being exhibited in the shape of the flower itself. Some are exact counterfeits of bees, butterflies, moths, etc., while others take upon themselves the form of worms and beetles. Naturalists believe that in the first instance it is nature's trap to lure other bees, moths and butterflies, but in the case of the worm and the beetle, orchids or those that are the exact counterparts of toads, lizards and huge spiders, they do not attempt to explain.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Death of Mrs Dora Gullman.

The angels come to accompany the sweet spirit of our beloved friend and sister, Mrs. Mary Eudora Gullman to her eternal home, Nov. 1, 1904. She was not quite 21 years of age, and had been in very delicate health for four or five years. During her last illness with typhoid fever, she was only confined to her bed two weeks. All was done for her that loving relatives and friends could do, but God claimed her for his own. While we are sad because we cannot look on her sweet face, nor hear her gentle voice again on this earth, we are comforted by the testimony that she left, and by the noble Christian life she lived.

Having been trained by a pious mother, she became a Christian in childhood and joined the M. E. church when only 6 years of age, and lived a consistent member until her death.

A few hours before her death she spoke beautifully of her departure, asking her loved ones not to grieve for her, saying that she was ready to go, and only regretted to leave her sweet little babe. She told her loved ones that waited around her bedside, that she could not stay with them but they could go to her, and with weak and trembling voice, she sang the beautiful chorus "Angel Band." She said, "I see my blessed Saviour, I see him now." Soon after she passed quietly and peacefully away.

The burial service was conducted by Rev. W. A. Montgomery in an impressive manner after which she was laid to rest in Pleasant Grove cemetery.

We commend the broken hearted husband and all the bereaved ones to "Him who doeth all things well," and may we all so live that we may meet dear Dora in the land of beauty and of sunshine, where the flowers perpetual bloom, and where she waits at the pearly gates to welcome us home.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Thousands Cured.

"DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of Piles. "I bought a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve on the recommendation of our druggist," so writes C. H. LaCroix, of Zavalla, Tex., "and used it for a stubborn case of Piles. It cured me permanently." Sold by U. church Drug co.

Falakto.

Mr. and Mrs. George Nobles and daughter of Prattville are visiting relatives and friends here this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Y. G. Downs have another fine boy.

Mr. and Mrs. Marion Wilson are rejoicing over their sweet little girl baby.

Prof. H. A. Harri's school at Bethel began last Monday.

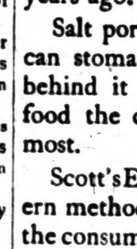
Consumption

Salt pork is a famous old-fashioned remedy for consumption. "Eat plenty of pork," was the advice to the consumptive 50 and 100 years ago.

Salt pork is good if a man can stomach it. The idea behind it is that fat is the food the consumptive needs most.

Scott's Emulsion is the modern method of feeding fat to the consumptive. Pork is too rough for sensitive stomachs. Scott's Emulsion is the most refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more than that. There is something about the combination of cod liver oil and hypophosphites in Scott's Emulsion that puts new life into the weak parts and has a special action on the diseased lungs.



A sample will be sent free upon request.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Shadow and Irish Bulls.

A correspondent in India heard a very unctuous Hindoo police khavrast say the other day: "When I went into the house I saw four dead bodies. One of them was carried away alive."

"Then you saw three dead bodies and not four?" I queried.

"No, sir," was the reply, emphatically and reprovingly given. "I saw four dead bodies. The one taken away alive turned out to be dead."

"What does he mean?" I asked of his European superior, an Irishman.

"He means, sorr, that of the four dead men the wan carried away alive died by jingo, as he was going along in the kyart."

And another story comes to us from the east. There is an orphanage at Bandora. A gentleman made a feast for the little inmates, one of whom was observed to be stuffing his pocket with cake. "Why don't you eat it?" said the kind donor. Quoth the orphan, "I'm keeping it till my parents come to see me." It used to be said that bulls were an Irish specialty. But, then, the learned are forever pointing out the oriental cast of Irish thought. Westminster Gazette.

Vest and the Yellowstone.

A string of jack snipe was responsible for the founding of Yellowstone park, says a St. Joseph (Mo.) communication to the Galveston News. The snipes were carried into a hotel in St. Joseph one night in 1878 by W. C. Fredericks and attracted the attention of George Graham Vest, late United States senator. The jack snipes answered the purpose of an introduction, and the two men were soon on friendly terms. Fredericks, who had been all over the west, began telling Vest, who was a sportsman, of the wonderful country in Montana and other states. Vest later joined a party in Omaha and inspected the country of which Fredericks had told him. When he became a senator one of the first things he did was to introduce a bill setting aside the Yellowstone district as a national park.

The Microscope In Tibet.

The French traveler M. Huc, when in Lassa, in Tibet, early in the last century, commemorated his visit by presenting the dalai lama of the day with a good microscope, which was put to a strange test before all his court. Among unwashed Tibetans there is never any lack of insect life, and a courtier, producing a specimen from beneath the folds of his sleeve, handed it to M. Huc, who amazed the simplicity of the lama and his dignitaries with its magnificent proportions. The experiment over, there arose a little difficulty as to the disposal of the insect, which might not, by the tenets of metempsychosis, be slain. The owner reverently received it back and restored it to the happy hunting grounds of his own person.

Freak Names.

A. G. Wright in his Directory Bulletin says:

"In the way of freak names a publisher chronicles the following:

"'One of our canvassers ran across a man who gave his name as W. H. Angel. When asked what the W. H. stood for he declined to answer. Through another source, however, it was learned that the man's full name was Welcome Heavenly Angel. Small wonder that he felt a delicacy about disclosing it.'

"Of the same nature were the names conferred by one of Milwaukee's eccentric pioneers, who named one of his boys Welcome U and signified his approval of another by stamping him O. K."

A Mean Husband.

"I think old Kreezus has the queerest way of teasing his wife I ever heard of."

"I thought he was fond of her."

"He is, but he likes to get a joke on her. You know she is sensitive about her age. Well, he has let everybody know that when they were married he gave her a magnificent necklace of diamonds, each diamond representing a year of her age, and he adds one to the string every time she has a birthday. Imagine how the poor woman is torn between her desire to display the necklace and the fear that when she wears it everybody will be counting the diamonds."

Touchiness.

There is a disease called "touchiness," a disease which, in spite of its innocent name, is one of the gravest sources of restlessness in the world. Touchiness, when it becomes chronic, is a morbid condition of the inward disposition. It is self love inflamed to the acute point. The cure is to shift the yoke to some other place; to let men and things touch us through some new and perhaps as yet unused part of our nature; to become meek and lowly in heart while the old nature is becoming numb from want of use.—Exchange.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is Pleasant to Take.

The finest of granulated loaf sugar is used in the manufacture of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the [illegible] used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it quite pleasant to take. Mr. W. L. Roderick, of Pe[illegible]ville, Md., in speaking of this remedy, says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with my [illegible] for several years and can truthfully say it is the best preparation of the kind I know of. The children like to take it and it has no injurious after effect. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, Ala. Horsby.

The Blood of Men and Apes.

Between the blood of men and apes there are many points of similarity and evidences of a distinct relationship, but the blood of monkeys can readily be distinguished from that of men. The difference is more or less marked, according to the species, the greatest resemblance being seen in the case of the gorilla and the least with the lemurs, a small species about the size of a cat and having a face somewhat like a fox. A singular fact is that, judged by the blood, there is less evidence of relationship found in the American families of apes than in those of the old world.—Harper's Weekly.

Doesn't Respect Old Age

It's shameful when youth fails to show proper respect for old age, but just the contrary in the case of Dr. Kings New Life Pills. They cut off maladies no matter how severe and irrespective of old age. Dyspepsia, Jaundice, Fever, Constipation all yield to this perfect Pill. 25c, at Clanton Drug co. Upchurch Drug co.

Temper.

A great source of cruelty is temper. When it is considered what a vast sum of misery temper causes in the world, how many homes are darkened and how many hearts are saddened by it; when we remember that its persecutions have not even the purifying consequences of most other calamities, inasmuch as its effects upon its innocent victims are rather cankerous than medicinal; when we call to mind that a bright face and a bright disposition are like sunshine in a house, and a gloomy, lowering countenance as depressing as an Arctic night, we must acknowledge that temper itself is only another form of cruelty, and a very bad form too.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.
New Way of Using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. Arthur Chapman writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says: As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and put some upon the dummy teat the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child This they did and brought about a quick relief and cured the baby." This Remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Why the Peasants of France Are Rich.

Marvels of Thrift Accomplished by Diversity of Trade—Farmers Who Work During Their Spare Hours at the Production of a Multiplicity of Manufactures.

THE thrift of France has been for years the marvel of Europe. It is still.

The payment of the German war indemnity, the millions lost in the Panama scandal, the crushing weight of war taxation, have left that thrift unimpaired.

The revolution laid the basis of modern prosperity by abolishing primogeniture and decreeing the division of landed estates. Every man has a hold on the land.

And being on it, he not only makes it produce twice as much value as the land of Great Britain does, but he conducts from his farm cottage a variety of industries in silk, lace, pottery, embroidery, and sells to all the world. Says the Contemporary Review:

"Although watchmaking is mainly the industry of the mountainous country to the east and northeast of Lyons, we shall also find the watchmakers busily at work in the north of France, at and around St. Nicholas, north of Paris. Man and wife work together, and the division of labor has been carried to such an extent that hardly a single man would be able to make a completely finished watch. Chronometers are made by a master who occupies four workers, and these chronometers have a name esteemed even outside France. At Sougeous the peasants are making spectacles, telescopes and other optical instruments, and earn from three to six francs a day.

"The watchmaking industry in the north cannot possibly be compared to that in the mountains east and northeast of Lyons. At Cluse we find a centre of this trade, where 500 workers are earning their living as watchmakers, while in the neighboring villages 4000 peasants are engaged in the same business. The majority have electric power transmitted to their houses. Electricity is cheap, while only one-eighth of a horse power is required for the use of four or five laborers. This watchmaking, which yields an income to the district of 3,000,000 francs annually, is almost, without exception, carried on in addition to agriculture, and the electric motive power permits the workers to employ any kind of machine tool. Each village has its particular specialty, one making only wheels, another springs, and so on. A school for watchmakers is established, where about 150 pupils receive instruction for three years.

"Going further to the northeast we find in and around Besancon the greatest watchmaking centre in France; 8000 workers at Besancon and 41,000 in the whole district are making watches. At Besancon alone 400,000 to 500,000 watches—for the greatest part expensive ones—are produced, while large quantities of cases of gold and silver are also made, frequently with highly artistic engravings. Also here a school is established, and an observatory, to which is allied an institute for testing, by exposure to extreme changes of temperature, parts which are to be used for watches of great exactness. Round this industry various allied industries have grown up, such as the making of glasses, bracelets and bags for watches.

"But the French peasant farmers, in addition to such industries, turn out the great crops of grain, sugar beet and vegetables, produce the wine, make butter and rear the poultry, and so on, which form the foundation of the great wealth of modern France.

"The commune of Allassac, in Limousin, contains about 7600 acres of land, divided into 2300 properties. But from the neighboring railway station of Objet, in 1895, no less than 450 tons of green peas, besides a quantity of other vegetables, were sent to market. The average income per acre is estimated at about 1200 francs ($240) annually. Of course, the possibility of obtaining such incomes from the cultivation of land necessarily increases the rental value of land as well as the selling price of land. The market gardeners to the north of Amiens pay 6000 francs ($1200) for an acre of peat bog, while at Bourges they pay 2000 to 3000 francs ($400 to $600) per acre for orchard land, and from 6000 to 7000 francs per acre for meadows.

"It cannot be said that access to the land is made easy for the laborer; and in agricultural France, as elsewhere, the taxation of land values is a crying necessity in order to ameliorate the lot of the masses of the people and to enable the workers to retain the fruits of their own industry. But compared with the English and Irish agricultural laborers the life of the French peasant farmer appears almost ideal. True, it is hard and laborious, but the life is a healthy one, and they, at least for the most part, are enabled to provide for their old age when no longer able to work."

The Hemmer Attachment.

Millions upon millions of women know the value of the hemmer attachment to the sewing machine, yet it is not probable that one of them ever knew the name of the genius who devised the simple thing. It was Isaac W. Barnum, a Brooklynite, who died only recently, eighty years old. He was a few years ago worth more than a million dollars, yet he died in poverty.

It takes three nations to make the best gloves—Spain to produce the kid, France to cut it out, and England to sew it together.

WHEN WE FORGET.

How Living Among Foreigners Makes Native Tongue Become Strange.

Mr. W. B. Vanderlip, the mining prospector, who recently spent fourteen months wandering among the wilds of Northern Siberia, says in his book that when he met the ship which his employers had sent to hunt him up he addressed the captain in Russian, and was reminded that the gentleman spoke English. Vanderlip says it may seem incredible, but it is true, that for a few moments he was utterly unable to converse with the captain in his own native tongue. He had not used a word of English in conversation for fourteen months, and, being in a low physical condition, his mind was confused. For several days he spoke a jumble of English, Russian and Korak, the language of the natives with whom he had lived and traveled. It was a week before he could talk good straight English again.

There are numerous examples of the fact that a person may become very rusty in the use of his native tongue if for a long time he has had no conversational use of it. This was illustrated once by a man whose fame had filled the world. It was on the evening that David Livingstone first stood on the platform of Exeter Hall. His pronunciation was peculiar and his speech broken. He seemed to grope for words. After a few sentences he paused to beg the indulgence of his auditors. He asked them to remember that for sixteen years he had not spoken with to a living soul, and that he had almost forgotten how to use it.

A few may recall the instance of an illiterate British sailor who entirely forgot English. He was a castaway among the Solomon Islanders, and had lived with them perhaps thirty years before an English vessel found him. He had been completely reduced to the level of the natives. His mental faculties were evidently somewhat impaired. This may have facilitated the utter failure of his memory as far as English was concerned, but the fact that English had once been his only language enabled him to acquire a few hundred words of it more readily than he would otherwise have done.

A highly educated Polish woman of this city, who is about to revisit her native home, is now brushing up her knowledge of the language of her fathers. She says she has lived here so long that she thinks in English, and that she will certainly appear ridiculous in the eyes of her relatives if she does not practice her native speech. It seems quite evident that facility in the use of our native language is not an inalienable accomplishment.—New York Sun.

The World's Oldest Inhabitant.

A tortoise from the Seychelles Islands, believed to be at least 250 years old, is probably the oldest living creature on the face of the earth. A writer in the Scientific American says: "Several years ago, when the son-in-law of Hagenbbeck, the animal trainer, was looking for interesting specimens, he learned of the existence on an island of Seychelles, off the coast of Madagascar, of a giant tortoise, that was celebrated among the natives not merely for its size—it weighs 970 pounds—but for the fact that there was documentary evidence that it had been living on the earth for over 150 years, and probable evidence that it was from 100 to 150 years older than that. After careful investigation, he was satisfied of the truth of the statement, and set about to secure the loan of this animal, which, by the way, is held in the highest esteem and respect on the island, for exhibition at the St. Louis Fair. Not until the strongest assurances were made that the venerable curiosity would be returned to the Seychelles did the native population consent to part with him. When the tortoise reached this country, it was found that a tiny palm tree was growing from its back. The tortoise loves the mud, and it is evident that soil was washed into a deep scar on its back, and that the seeds of the palm, mixed with the earth, took root and the tiny growth had thrived in its portable field. The fact that 150 years ago, the Seychelles natives began to take particular pride in this tortoise because of its age makes it certain that it must have been at least 100 years of age at that time. This is borne out by the condition of the shell, which is a guide to determining the age."

A Dramatic Moment.

The campaign leader who can arrange a dramatic climax is "cut out" for his work. Pearson's Weekly revives the story of the Republican National Convention of 1868, at which Thomas Nast, the carieaturist, was present. It was known that General Grant was to be the Republican candidate.

Nast had prepared a little surprise for the convention. Upon a large curtain he had painted the White House entrance, with two pedestals, one on each side, bearing the words, "Republican Nominee, Chicago, May 20," and "Democratic Nominee, New York, July 4," respectively. On the Republican pedestal sat the figure of Grant, and Columbia stood pointing to the empty space opposite. Below were the words, "Match him!"

This, with a blank curtain before it, was suspended at the back of the convention stage. At the instant when General Grant was announced as the unanimous choice of his party for President, the blank curtain was lifted and the great cartoon was suddenly exposed to view.

It was so unexpected a climax that the throng was silent for a moment from sheer surprise. Then a cheer burst forth, and another. The great hall was turned into a scene of wild exultation.

WEIRD : FILIPINO : BELIEF.

The Wok-Wok Most Dreaded of the Islands' Devils.

He's a Baboon Ghost and Runs Away With Folks at Night—Trial by Ordeal Still Practiced—Healing a Sick Child by the Offer of Gifts to a Cranky Spirit.

THE Zamboanga (Philippine Islands) correspondent to the New York Sun, writes: The wok-wok is a hairy ghost devil. He is a baboon, huge, long limbed, irresistibly strong, who comes out only in the dark to carry one off for murder. He is invulnerable to wounds and immortal. He lives altogether on the southern islands, and principally loves to hide in wait in the darkest corners of the cocoanut grove at night.

There is only one thing that can really baffle a wok-wok, and that is water. That is one reason why the Moros love to build their houses on tiny piers above the sea. No one cares to have wok woks prowling about.

Now and then you can see a line of torches, made of bundles of grass tied on a pole, bobbing along through the darkness. The palms cast ghostly shadows, dancing across the trail ahead. A little moon shows the shapes of unnamed horrors against the sky. Often the torches halt and huddle, wavering in a bunch. You know what that means. A belated party of Moros is hurrying homeward, and far off, weird, mysterious in the underbrush some rustling sends shivers of fear through the loneliness. Allah knows it is a wild pig, but how can mortal tell that it is not the warning of a wok-wok, crawling nearer and nearer through the gloom on his prey?

In Siassi they have flags flying to frighten away wok-woks. Siassi is a very wok-woky spot indeed. At most places they only guess that there are wok-woks, but at Siassi they know it. For this is the certain proof: A wise man decided ages ago that if there must be devils, it is better to have them good humored than not. So he ordered that each week bowls of food be set out at a point in the forest. A hungry wok-wok is naturally worse tempered than one who has eaten.

Each seventh day ever since has the offering been put out. Hence the proof. For in the morning when the slaves go tiptoeing forth to bring in the empty bowls they find that all the fish and rice are gone. Never once have the wok-woks failed to devour it overnight.

It is not alone in the matter of wok-woks that our small brown brothers involve Providence in their daily affairs. Among them, as in Europe in the Middle Ages, and in our own New England, the judgment of God is invoked in matters of justice. There are certain crimes in which innocence or guilt is determined by throwing a coin in a pot of boiling water, and making the prisoner pick it out with his naked hand. If he is guilty he is scalded, but if he is innocent he escapes unharmed.

In murder cases where two men are suspected their names are written on two similar pieces of parchment. These pieces are then folded up and placed in watertight boxes. Two divers of equal skill are selected, and each takes one of the boxes. They dive together at a given signal, remaining under water as long as possible. The box carried by the first man to come to the surface contains the name of the guilty man.

Among the Moros, as among the Indians, certain sicknesses are believed to be evil spirits. In the last cholera epidemic at Siassi a little boy was very ill. His parents and their friends were wailing and sobbing about the house when an old villain of a Hajji hove in sight, and offered to work on the evil one who was tormenting the child. The parents were overjoyed and after wild movements and whispered incantations the Hajji went into a trance.

He sat immovable for a few minutes. Then he spoke, dreamily, his eyes fixed on far off mysteries. The spirit, he said, was in him. It was a pretty tough old spirit, but he thought that if it were put in a good humor something might be done with it. It wanted chow now. It was no use fooling with a spirit that had not dined for nine months.

So the parents brought eggs and fish and rice and tapioca cakes, and the Hajji kindly ate them for the spirit's trance cnufwyp pjp jf sake. Then he went into another trance. The spirit was no longer hungry, but was still cross. It wanted presents, it said. There were several pearls that the father owned that would please it immensely, and a pony, and a fine gold handled kriss. The spirit said that the Hajji could take those presents and guard them for it.

The father hesitated, but his little son was groaning in agony. He gave up to the spirit his pearls and his pony and his kriss.

The spirit was pretty cheerful after that. It desired sleep, though. After it woke up it would talk. So it went off with the Hajji and slept under a banana tree until supper time. Then it had another meal. The child was still alive. The Hajji had a personally conducted spasm, and the spirit left him panting on the ground in the twilight.

He said that the spirit was a good deal appeased. He had never seen such a change in a spirit in all his experience. But still it had not made up its mind definitely. It might spare the boy—and it might not. The Hajji could not say certainly. But anyhow he would advise certain treatment. This he did and then departed, followed by the prayers and gratitude of the parents and mounted on the spirit's pony.

Yet, somehow, as a matter of fact, the boy lived.

Among these people there are many prophets. In Pata Island an old chap, Tungalon by name, had some months back a vast following. He made a number of impressive statements, such as that he could turn aside a Krag bullet with his breath and could sink American vessels by pointing at them with his barong. A small but select aggregation of unbelievers in khaki and blue flannel descended on Tungalon one day and carried him off from the midst of a band of hundreds of his spearsmen and riflemen and bolomen without a shot being fired, but with a very superior kind of magic, indeed.

He came away on one of the very ships he might have sunk if he had only pointed his barong. His people waited on the beach expectant of some dreadful miracle and inspired by a sort of savage pity for those ignorant Americans. But the boat went cheerfully sailing on until it disappeared behind the sky line.

When Tungalon comes home again he will find his warriors planting rice. His graft will be gone with last year's monsoon. He will have to give up his spirits and take to raising tapioca, and there will be seen on the island of Pata the sorrowful spectacle of a prophet without honor in his own country.

At Balabac there is a famous haunted rock called the Diamond Stone. There is a tradition that long ago the English Government offered Spain £1,000,000 sterling for it. But Spain refused to sell.

It is a curious rock, of a rough round shape, about ten feet in diameter. It is composed chiefly of quartz, but there are no traces of metals of precious stones about it. There is a hole some three inches deep in one side, where a man once started to drill with the purpose of blasting. The story goes that he was immediately made ill by the spirit that guards the rock, and that he died three days later. No one has dared to follow his example since.

There is, however, in Balabac a vast deal of mineral wealth without the drawbacks of evil spirits. In a brief ramble back into the hills I found some gold-bearing quartz, though I saw no traces of gold. There were also rich markings of copper, chiefly in the form of cuprite and of green hydrous copper carbonate. There were traces, too, traces of a very poor form of brown coal, but it is reported that back in the forests are Spanish mines which in old times furnished an excellent quality of coal.

But over the copper and coal of Balabac, as over all the forests and wealth of the Philippines, hangs a spirit more deadly to development than all the wok-woks that ever existed—the spirit of the laws of the islands, and the duties the laws entail.

Jealous of a Spirit.

A widower who married a second time has troubles. The man and his first wife had been devotees at the shrine of the occults and often went to spiritualistic seances together, but the second wife had no sympathy with his craving after the transcendental. For a long time he bore her derision in silence and then he succumbed to a temptation to commune with the disembodied soul of his first wife. Accordingly he repaired to the third story of his house and communed. On several nights in succession he repeated the communing. Meanwhile Wife No. 2 began to be suspicious. She followed her husband one night to the dark chamber. She listened at the door long enough to hear John talking to the departed Eliza. Unable to control herself further, she burst in upon the communion of spirits.

"John," she said, as she went up to her husband and shook him, "I don't mind your going to those spook meetings to your dead Eliza, but I shan't have no other woman, dead or alive, comin' into my third story after its been house-cleaned. You come right downstairs." And John came.

Similarity.

Uncle Jerry's memory had begun to play queer pranks with him, but he refused to admit the fact, and stoutly insisted that he could remember things as well as ever.

On one occasion, while calling at the house of a friend, he was introduced to a stranger whose name was Eddy.

In the course of the conversation that followed he addressed the stranger as "Mr. Whirlpool."

"I beg your pardon," said the other, "but my name is not exactly Whirlpool. It is Eddy."

"I beg your pardon for the mistake," replied Uncle Jerry, courteously. "I was misled by the—er—similarity of sound."

A Queer Procession.

The unusual spectacle of a couple of perfectly white geese out for an airing with their owner is frequently seen along at the man's heels, seemingly interested in all that goes on around them, but never swerving an inch from one side to the other.

Frisking around this queer lot is a little terrier; but the geese do not seem in the least afraid of him. First he bounds ahead of the group, to investigate something which has aroused his curiosity. Then, as if he had finished an imposed duty, he trots back and takes up his position in the trail of the birds.—Boston Globe.

UNCLE SAM—PRINTER.

THE OLD HAS A BIG SHOP OF THE OWN.

The Bindery Division Is One of the Most Sought Departments—Putting the Gold Leaf Lettering on the Books.

The Star has printed from time to time during the past month articles about the government printing office, in which the methods of work and volume of business transacted by the various departments have been elaborated upon. With all that has been written, one can visit the big printery and find something of interest well worth closer investigation.

The bindery division is so comprehensive and covers so much of industrial value to the mechanic, the lover of machinery and the trained eye of the artist that it is quite naturally one of the most sought departments of the printing office work.

The work of the bindery is separated into departments also, and doubtless none is more interesting to the student of industrial life than that done in the finishing room. It is certainly one of the busiest rooms in the big new building, and is the most up-to-date and largest book finishing room in the world. It is located now on the fourth floor of the new building, and is not yet fully equipped to the extent of plans in contemplation.

Finishing is really the most important and artistic branch of the bindery work. Here the finest kind of tooling and lettering and line work is done by hand on Levant, Morocco and Russia leathers, and also all the blank books used in the governmental offices throughout the country. Probably the largest portion of these blank books go to the various branches of the treasury department, yet the extension of the functions of Uncle Sam's big government to the islands of the Pacific has largely increased the demand for blank books to other departments besides the treasury. There are 50 men employed in the finishing department and they belong to the most skilled and educated class of artisans in the government service. Your Uncle Samuel has secured his trained force of workingmen from the very best private workshops of the country and inquiry among them reveals that they hail from nearly every state in the Union.

The work of the finishing department is that which the name implies. Here the fine binding in leathers and best grades of cloth is done and the books come in from the forwarding division, where they are prepared for the binder or finisher. One sees piled up many fine volumes from the Congressional library and departmental libraries under processes of binding.

It is estimated that fully 7800 books of the very best dark gold leaf are used by the letterers in finishing during a year. This is the real thing, too. A system of checking is used on material and tools employed. The workman receives so many books of gold leaf or so much leather, and it must be duly accounted for. When closing time arrives material and tools are put under lock and key. This is a procedure that is mutually agreeable, because the workmen are particular people engaged in particular work, and they are only too glad to work for your Uncle Sam, who, bless your heart, is particularity itself.

Now, if the visitor will watch the man who is using the gold leaf to do his lettering of the fine books, he will notice that he has a three-sided pasteboard frame placed in front of him, which partly incloses the cloth pad upon which he lays his gold leaf. The frame is to keep any draught of air from blowing away the leaf or disturbing it. When the leaf or any portion of it is laid upon the book where the lettering is to be made a piece of cotton twine drawn tight across the face of the leaf makes a temporary line for a guide upon which the lettering is done. Brass type is used, for the type must be heated before it can be used, and, as you will readily perceive, if you have ever melted and molded old type into fish-line slugs or bullets when a boy, the ordinary metal would never stand the degree of heat necessary to make the lettering perfect.

After the lettering or lining is done with the gold leaf you will notice that the workman picks up what looks like a small ball of putty.

It is not the glazier's well known material but it is a ball of soft, crude rubber, whose adhesive qualities are best adapted to picking up and retaining all the waste particles of gold. But soft, was the words waste used? It was a case of lapsus calami. There is no such word as "waste" in the use of gold-leaf in the bindery division. Here the rubbers are collected when they are well filled with gold waste and sent to the refineries, where it is extracted and Uncle Sam given due credit. The government receives a considerable sum of money each year from this apparently inconsequent source.

By way of parenthesis, it is stated that in another section of the bindery division where the job binding for the government is executed a good sized force of young women is employed handling the gold leaf. Here are machines and methods that will be made subjects for later reference. The printery is certainly a palace of wonders.

One of the main requisites for finishing and lettering books to good light. It is an absolute necessity. The large new room of this department fully fulfills this requirement with 18 double rooms affording ample northern and southern light. Long work tables occupy both sides of the room near the windows, with, besides light, plenty of room for work and good air. A large closet at one end of the room will be a credit to any of the finishing rooms of the city and is appreciated by many. It is natural that there should be an air of neatness and order about the room, because of the workmen themselves.

Here, too, where one can see with taste to a marked degree, the sewing machine has entered and taken its place alongside of brush and brawn. It is in the new apparatus for lettering.

The old style of heating [illegible] by gas stove is to be discarded with and electricity [illegible] ers substituted. Two [illegible] men with motors attached [illegible] do horse power for printing current, have been [illegible]. Then there is a machine for [illegible] a sort of flange on the edge [illegible] the cover of the book. You will find there a cutting machine that cut up more cardboard accurately the cases or what you would call [illegible] for the back of the book, [illegible] hour or two than a man can do [illegible] day. But the machine that will attract you and hold your eyes spellbound is the casting machine, the language of the street, a 'peach.' It is the creation of a man who said he could do it when everybody else who had for years used primitive methods said no. The two pieces of cardboard that form the two sides for the back of the book pass into the machine. The cloth, cut to the measure for the book's back, goes into the machine at the same time and passes around a cylinder covered with glue. A mechanical device operated with tubes raises the two pieces of cardboard by suction.

They are lifted and placed on the cloth, and carried along to a human-like appliance which presses and crimps the corners with a neatness and accuracy that double [illegible] any hand operator. Each machine requires two machine operators, and will do a day's work not only equal to a half-dozen hand laborers, but of superior workmanship.

There are 25 cabinets filled with styles of brass type, two workmen sharing a cabinet. Slugs are used in lettering the names of senators, representatives on their books, and the work can be done very quickly. What is a slug? Why, it is a word or name made in one solid piece of metal.

There is another machine, operated by one man and occupying a corner to itself, which does its work quickly and cleanly. It cuts the side edge of the pages for the [illegible] letters. There are three of these machines, but two of these are sufficient to keep up with the day's work.—Washington Star.

EARLY DAY HUNT IN [illegible]

In the "Bag" Were 17 Wolves, 600 Deer and a Few Foxes and Raccoons.

Doubtless the most successful hunt ever conducted in Ohio took place Dec. 24, 1818, in Medina county, is known in the annals as the "Hinckley Hunt," and it was a great from any point of view. Hinckley is the northeast township of Medina county, and the centre of the township is only about fifteen miles in the air line from Cleveland. At the time of the great hunt it was a heavily wooded district, and was especially well stocked with game. Many of the settlers in and near the town had guns as effective as any of to-day.

Bears raided the pig pens at will, and wolves were a great obstacle to keeping sheep. Partly to stop these losses and facilitate farming, and in part, no doubt, for love of sport, the most elaborate preparations were made to clear the wild beasts from the great forest in Hinckley township. Captains of companies were appointed by the committee in charge of the hunt, by common consent, and the plan of the hunt was well advertised for many miles around. Men came from Cleveland joined in the sport, and more distant towns were represented. After all the firearms in reach had been put in the most reliable hands, weapons were improvised by mounting bayonets or butcher knives on poles and using axes and hatchets for work at close quarters.

Many of the hunters remained on the edge of the woods the night before the grand raid to listen to the howls of wolves and bears, camping out all night. At sunrise about [illegible] men and boys were ready for action. The signal to start was given and around the forest, some six miles square, in 40 seconds. The line of advancing hunters, deployed as skirmishers for battle, made a great noise with horns, shouts and firearms, and they gradually penned the game in the woods closer and closer to the centre of the surrounding circle.

The final slaughter at the close of the forest was great. Deer and other large animals unprovided with firearms, and when the hunt ended in the afternoon, the "bag" was as follows: 17 wolves, 21 bears, 300 deer, a few foxes, raccoons and wild cats. Many of the hunters remained in the woods all night, camping on the scene of the great event. On this occasion was killed [illegible] Only one man was killed, [illegible] buckshot, and he was accidentally shot.—Cleveland Leader.

A CRUSTACEAN CAROL.

Down beneath the rolling ocean,
  As the bottom of the sea,
Lived a Shrimp who led a notion
  That a perfect shrimp was he.
He was bright and he was pretty,
  Clever, too, and rather witty,
He was jimp, distinctly jimp.
  Was this pleasing little Shrimp;
So, of course, as you may see,
  He was all a shrimp should be,
He was all a shrimp should be.

As the Shrimp one day was flitting,
  Here and there and all around,
He beheld a Cockle sitting
  On a little sandy mound.
And he said, "O Cockle dear,
  You look rather sad and wan.
I will sing to you a song,
  Not too short and not too long,
And I'm sure you will agree
  It is all a song should be,
It is all a song should be."

Then the Shrimp, with smiles of pleasure,
  Took his banjo on his knee,
And he played a merry measure
  Like a Carol or a Glee.
And he sang a catch so jolly,
  All of frolic, fun, and folly,
All of merriment and play,
  All of mirth and laughter gay;
And I'm sure you'll all agree
  That is all a catch should be,
That is all a catch should be.

QUICK RESULTS.

W. J. Hill, of Concord, N. C., Justice of the Peace, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills proved a very efficient remedy in my case. I used them for disordered kidneys and backache, from which I had experienced a great deal of trouble and pain. The kidney secretions were very irregular, dark colored and full of sediment. The Pills cleared it all up and I have not had an ache in my back since taking the last dose. My health generally is improved a great deal."

Radium and the Diamond.

In the course of some experiments concerning the effect of the emanations from radium upon diamonds, Sir William Crookes made a curious discovery. When a diamond was placed in the path of the radiations it was converted from the carbon crystal into the common form of graphite, while in addition its color was quite changed. As a result of this strange metamorphosis Sir William Crookes suggests that the radium rays may prove of great commercial value to the jeweler since by this means diamonds which are of an indifferent and defective color may be appreciably increased in their commercial value by treatment under the radium rays. He also observed that the prolonged action of the radium also increased the intensity of the pale-colored gems.

An anchor to one of Benedict Arnold's bateaux has recently been rescued from the Hudson river.

BENEDICT ARNOLD RELIC FOUND.

A Mute But Eloquent Reminder of the Well-Known Traitor.

Those of us interested in early American history, whether absorbed at school or acquired by maturer reading, recall Benedict Arnold, his brilliancy and treason, perhaps more vividly than almost any prominent figure of the Revolution, says the Lewiston Journal.

The students of those times recall that Washington sent him with 1100 soldiers on the ill-fated expedition to Quebec in 1775 by the way of the Kennebec River through the forests of Maine. Two miles below Gardiner, in Colburn's yard, his command halted long enough to construct 200 bateaux with which he proposed to transport troops and supplies through the Northern waters.

A week ago J. Rafter and Abbot Lord, Gardiner business men that fish the river for sport, brought up in their great sturgeon net, directly opposite where the bateaux were built, an anchor, or grapnel, which is undoubtedly a genuine Arnold relic. The stalk is some four feet long and carries five curved arms welded to its base. It was evidently fashioned of wrought iron, over an anvil.

These anchors were thrown out ahead of the bateaux, by which means they were pulled through rapids and swift water. For 120 years the anchor remained in the waters of the Kennebec, to now come to light, a mute but eloquent reminder of the man who betrayed his country.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

Diet For Consumptives.

You have to eat at a sanitarium for consumptives, hungry or not. There are no big forges to overwork the stomach, but there are six meals a day of moderate size. Some patients can eat full meals and then swallow thirty-six raw eggs a day. The aim of the treatment in these sanitaria is to get the sick man to drink three quarts of milk and eat a dozen raw eggs a day in addition to his regular meals of simple food.

And you must eat meat and plenty of it. Don't cut the fat off. The cow got most of the good out of the lean in her lifetime. The fat is what will do you good. All that there is to cod liver oil that makes it worth while is that it is a fat easy to assimilate. Bacon fat is nearly as easy to digest and about 500 times as easy to take.

Fruits and salads you may eat merely to amuse yourself and pass the time. But you are wasting stomach room on them. Milk, eggs, meat and hard breads for you if you are to get well. Not a great deal at a time, but often.—Everybody's Magazine.

What Chemistry May Do.

It has been said that a century is the natural duration of the human body; that it decays earlier because it does not receive proper care in health and disease. In regard to this latter, here is a suggestion from a man who protests against so much research in electricity to the neglect of chemistry. He says there are seventy-two elements of matter ergable of entering into an infinity of combinations and concludes therefore "that a form of matter must be capable of existence, and must therefore be within the power of chemical research to discover and prepare, which will possess any assignable or conceivable, potency or influence over any form or species of matter, dead or living." If this be true, then it is possible to chemistry to find substances which will neutralize all the poisons generated by disease germs and kill disease the moment it is discovered.—Exchange.

Not A Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not been a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C. writes. Only 50c, at Clanton Drug Co., Upchurch Drug Co.

A Remarkable Photograph.

In some respects one of the most remarkable war photographs ever made was secured by a man named Meyer, a correspondent for a German illustrated newspaper, during the war in South Africa. Meyer was with the Boers, and one day, during one of Buller's attacks along the Tugela, he took a position on the firing line. The fire from the British batteries across the river was very heavy during the preliminary part of the assault, and shells literally rained on the low lying kopjes occupied by Botha's army. Meyer thought he saw a good opportunity to secure a fine picture, and he jumped out of his "schanze" to snap it.

Just then a big lidlite shell exploded within a few feet of him, killing him instantly. I afterward secured the camera, which was comparatively uninjured. When the film it contained was developed I discovered that Meyer had made a beautiful photograph of the huge shell which snuffed out his life. I sent a copy of the picture to his residence in Germany.—Everybody's Magazine.

An Invitation to Dine.

"San Francisco is only an hour's journey from Baltimore, comparatively speaking," said a resident of the City of the Golden Gate. "In the old days it took a month to cross the plains, and you risked your life to round Cape Horn. Now you board a comfortable Pullman in Baltimore at 4 o'clock in the afternoon and take dinner at 6 in Frisco—almost. And since the days of rapid railroad transit have begun the Pacific coast has not been so far out of the world as one might imagine who had not taken the trip. Why, I remember when people read with awe of thrilling journeys all the way from the eastern coast towns to Pittsburg and when a man would shudder his teeth loose with just thinking of the terrible trip to Chicago, while to mention Salt Lake City or Denver would bring up hideous tales of starless nights on arid deserts and wholesale massacres by red demons. And, speaking of red demons, I think the cigar store Indian has done much to overcome eastern fear of the noble red man, standing in innocent bravery all day long, with a wooden hatchet in one hand and a bunch of cigars in the other.

"But what was I talking about? Oh, yes—Frisco being so close to Baltimore. Come out some Sunday, and take dinner with me!"—Baltimore News.

An English Sporting Event.

A notable sporting event came off at York, England, in 1804. The wife of Colonel Thornton, a well known sportsman, had backed herself to race against Mr. Flint for 500 guineas a side. The crowd was estimated at 100,000. For three miles Mrs. Thornton led, but her horse had "much the shorter strake of the two," and Mr. Flint then forged ahead, and Mrs. Thornton gave up in mercy to her horse. She was much less tender to Mr. Flint. A few days later the York Herald contained a letter from her, accusing him of lack of gallantry in refusing to allow a gentleman to ride round with her, so as to be handy for the rescue if her saddle slipped round, as it had done a few days before; in saying, "Keep that side, ma'am," gruffly to her at the starting point, and in beating her as badly as he could. She defiantly challenged him again for next year.—London Chronicle.

A Heavy Load.

To lift that load off the stomach take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat. Sour stomach, belching, gas on stomach and all disorders of the stomach that are curable, are instantly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. S. P. Storrs, a druggist, at 297 Main street, New Britain, Conn., says: "Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is giving such universal satisfaction and is so surely becoming the positive relief and subsequent cure for this distressing ailment, I feel that I am always sure to satisfy and gratify my customers by recommending it to them. I write this to show how well the remedy is spoken of here." Kodol Dyspepsia cure was discovered after years of scientific experiments and will positively cure all stomach troubles. A Merger.

"Colonel never resigned, did he?"

"No; he just merged into the office, an' to this day they can't tell the difference 'twixt him an' the weather boardin'."—Atlanta Constitution.

Only Make a Bad Matter Worse.

Perhaps you have never thought of it but the fact must be apparent to everyone that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old fashioned pills only makes a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of a medicine. Try a 25 cent bottle of them. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol cures indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does not only cure indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy cures all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ills of our sex, I bought a bottle and began using it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and took three more and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a fine tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and am pleased to endorse it.

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic

AFTER USING IT.

Perote, Ala. May 7, 1901.

I have not been without Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic since it was introduced in this section. I consider it the best all round medicine I ever used, and I am glad to recommend it. A. B. LANEY.

Opelika, Ala., May 12, 1900

Having used Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic in my family and known of its use for a number of years, I take pleasure in recommending it as a valuable household medicine. Its efficacy as a dressing for wounds, burns, etc., is really wonderful; preserving the flesh and allowing it to heal without inflamation or suppuration. It is very popular wherever well known. J. F. PURSER, Pastor Baptist Church.

Hurtsboro, Ala., May 9, 1901.

VOL. XIII CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 17, 1904 NO. 5

MAN ON THE CORNER

Saw the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The election is over, the grand jury and its host of witnesses have gone home, commissioners' court has adjourned—all the excitement is over and the world moves just the same as if nothing had happened That's the way of the world, man frets himself into excitement of one sort or another, works himself into a fever about petit or grand juries, and at the time work and business has been attended to the same as if courts and juries had never been thought of.

Now the election, it seems everybody is about satisfied, the result was close and uncertain until the announcement of the official count either side can boast of much victory. The Republican-democrat combination feels good cause they get all of the officers but one, and the Democrats are glad of running the opposition so close a race and getting in their man for Treasurer. It is like a family quarrel, lively while it lasts and now it is over and done and all is peaceful and serene. Democrat, Republican and Populist will work and play side by side with one another, harmoniously and agreeably, until the next election comes on, then there will be some old falling out, and each one will do its best to get their own.

Man wants but little here below but when the little that man gets office he wants it so bad he thinks that life is not worth living unless he gets it. Often, after he gets it, he wishes that luck had stayed in him and that the other fellow had gotten the office. And when the race is over, man finds the coveted office has gone to some else, then he philosophizes decides that he is better off as a private citizen and is glad he is not to be worried with the cares of office. Win or lose he gets lots of food and lives as jolly whether he is a servant of the people or his own master. What's the odds so long as you're happy.

On the face of it, it looks as if the grand jury had been in session some time, but after all they only had five days of real hard work. On Monday of last week the jury organized, listened attentively to Judge Sayre's charge, then adjourned until Wednesday morning to give the jurymen a chance to go home and vote. Wednesday they settled down to business and from that time until Monday evening of this week there was a procession of witnesses going to and from the court room. They broke the record by returning 55 true bills, so there will be work for circuit court whenever it convenes.

Another record breaker was made by the Court of County Commissioners, the court being in session all of last week (of course they adjourned over Tuesday for the election) and finally got through Friday. (Wednesday) The routine work of the court was extra heavy in the first place, and the remainder of the time was occupied by the jury commission. The work has to be done and time must be given in which to do it properly.

A familiar face will be missed from the business circles of Clanton, after a long and successful career as a merchant P. D. Wilson will retire from trade and has sold out his business to W. Kanter & Bro. Mr. Wilson has made no definite Shoults.

Our school is progressing nicely and the children are very nicely behaved, for they have been trained at the Primary Training School.

Mr. O. A. Latham left Sunday for Charleston, Miss., and will remain for a good while, he is going back to the brickworks.

We are sorry to say that the death angel visited Mr. J. R. Lawley's last Wednesday night at 9 o'clock and took his young loving wife away. She leaves a husband and one little baby boy to grieve after her. Her many friends have missed her since.

Rev P. G. Maness is going to preach a Thanksgiving sermon on Nov. 24th, at Pleasant Grove church.

Mr. Festus Atkins and wife have spent a pleasant visit at his father's this week.

Mr. J. J. Hicks and son have gone into timber business and are progressing nicely.

Mr. Ben Griffin has returned from the medical college at Birmingham. Mr. G. F. Latham has returned home from Selma.

Mr. B. F. Wilson has visited this place two or three days, and has carried his mother, Mrs. Mary Hall to his home in Jackson, Ala.

Mr. Calton Hall of Long Branch has moved to this place.

We have been needing rain for a long time and it rained last week.

We learn that Mr. J. H. Shoults is going to move to Lawley and we will all regret it.

Our Sunday school is still progressing nicely at Pleasant Grove. Masters Howord Shoults and Allen Lawrence of Lawley are coming to school here.

Our country friends are especially invited to call and see us.

Providence.

Our School (District No. 58) continues to swell the roll, and great interest is manifested by both patrons and students. We have on honor roll for the last two weeks just ended Ora Shaw and Essie Watson. Esther Shaw, Evie and Annie Varden. Willie Sims, Willie Shaw and Clabe Sims made a good deportment. These would have been on honor roll, but with one exception. Eddie Martin was perfect in all his studies and would have headed the honor roll but carelessly forgot one rule. You may look for a better report from the above mentioned next week. Annie and Vully Skipper, Laura Lowry, Vernon Shaw. Grady Watson, Carson Lowry, Avie Smith, Pearl Varden, Clyde Skipper and Innis Watson made a very good average. There is little Junior Busby, last but not least, is worthy to be remembered, who is climbing to the top round by round. By way of encouragement to our boys and girls in school, our teacher reports flatteringly of them and says that Providence is going to redeem herself. We hope to list many more on the honor roll next time. Miss Lula Lowry was absent last week on account of sickness.

Better Than Stealing.

Many years ago a newly arrived highlander was being shown the sights of Glasgow by a fellow countryman. As they crossed a street they saw in the distance a dense crowd of people, and the newcomer asked what it meant. He was told that there was a man being hanged. He then inquired what they were hanging him for, and he was told it was for sheep stealing. He looked aghast at this news and at last exclaimed: "Ochan, Ochan; hanging a man for stealing sheeps! Could he no' ha bocht them and then no' peyed for them?"—"Reminiscences of Sir Archibald Geikie."

JAPANESE REINFORCED.

And a Big Battle is Expected Soon About Mukden.

Latest indications from the front point to an early resumption of military operations on a large scale. Field Marshal Oyama has received heavy reinforcements from New Chang, and evidently is about ready to wage battle for the possession of Mukden. The Japanese are showing particular activity on their right flank, as if they were contemplating a turning movement from that direction.

General Kuropatkin has fortified his positions along the Shakhe river, and as he seemingly is prepared to accept a battle, he doubtless has made dispositions to block a flanking operation according to the opinion of the military authorities here his flank is secure.

APPEAL FOR FUNDS.

Madame Stoessel, from Port Arthur, Writes for Aid.

M. Perloff, the millionaire merchant of Moscow, has received a pathetic letter from Madame Stoessel, wife of General Stoessel, dated Port Arthur, October 24th, appealing to the rich Muscovites for money to assist the helpless wounded defenders of the fortress, some of whom have lost both arms, others either an arm or leg, some of them being blind and others suffering from wounds in the spine and who will be cripples for life. There are, she adds, very many such.

$12,000 FIRE

In Residence District of Birmingham. Some Insurance.

Fire originated from an unknown cause in the residence of T. L. Bell, North Twentieth street, and quickly spread to the residences of his brother and of John Crane. The stable of Alderman Copeland was also destroyed.

A brisk wind was blowing and the flames spread rapidly. Insurance to the amount of about $5,000 was carried.

Synod in Session.

The fall session of the Synod of Alabama is meeting at Anniston, Thaddeus Harrison, Esq., moderator. At this session it is expected that important action will be taken as to the male college which is to be erected and conducted under the auspices of the synod. The college is to be located in Anniston. The city of Anniston has offered two sites of forty acres each, but another site, on Tyler Hill, within the incorporated limits of Anniston is said to meet the requirements more fully. Eighty thousand dollars of the $100,000 to be raised for the construction and equipment of the college has been subscribed, and the clergy and laity within the bounds of the synod are enthusiastic as to this great educational project.

Extension of Civil Service.

President Roosevelt will shortly sign an order extending the civil service regulations over the employes of the canal commission. The order embraces all employes except those appointed by the president, and laborers. Besides about thirty places are excepted, such as secretary to the commission; the secretary to the governor general of the zone; the customs collector for the zone, etc.

Pig Iron Over $13.

Pig iron took another advance and No. 2 foundry is above $13 per ton, approaching rapidly $13.50 per ton, delivery after January 1.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company sold 12,000 tons of iron on a basis of $13.25 and more per ton.

Killed by a Mule.

The 10-year-old son of Mr. James White, living near Bolivar, was instantly killed Saturday by a mule.

The boy when found was dead with his neck broken, and from the position of the body and from the fact that he still had a whip in his hand, it is thought that the child was teasing the animal with the whip, and was kicked on the side of the head.

ALABAMA SCHOOLS

State Superintendent of Education Hill Submits His Annual Report.

REVENUE FOR 1904, $1,041,560.97.

This Does Not Include Poll Taxes. School Tax Elections to Be Held Will Swell the Fund.

In his annual report made to Acting Governor Cunningham, State Superintendent of Education I. W. Hill touches upon all phases of the school question, and discusses all the machinery.

In part it reads as follows:

The provisions of the present constitution, which provide for a special tax for school purposes, is a great improvement over the old plan of raising revenues. Under the former constitution it meant a fight at every session of the legislature to procure an appropriation for the common schools. The constitutional provision guarantees a permanent school fund, and this fund will [illegible] only be increased by every ra[illegible] tax valuation of the state. [illegible] legislature has the power, when the finances of the state will permit, to make an especial appropriation for the schools. The amount from the special tax reported to this office on October 1 by the state auditor is $879,246.33. This, with the sixteenth section and other interest funds, gives for school purposes this year the grand total of $1,041,560.97. This does not include the poll tax nor the many large appropriations made by cities and towns for the support of schools.

The constitution allows counties, under certain conditions to levy a one-mill tax for the support of the schools of the county. It is pleasing to note that a good number of counties have ordered elections to be held for the purpose of levying this tax. Jefferson, Walker, Talledega, Marion and Tuscaloosa have already levied this tax. Not a single county in which an election has been held up to this day has failed to levy the tax.

While the county tax will be of the greatest assistance to the schools of the various counties in which it is levied, there is still further need for revenue. There is only one way in which the rural schools can be put on a basis commensurate with their needs and this is by allowing a local tax by districts. The present school fund can be used for but one purpose—the paying of teachers. Not a cent can be used for school buildings or for equipments or for defraying the actual incidental expenses of the schools. If allowed local taxation by districts, the funds raised could be used, if the district authorities saw fit, for building and improving the school houses and for other purposes which are absolutely necessary in order to have an efficient public school system.

For years there has been a complaint that the school census of the state was padded. As a matter of fact, under the old plan of taking the census in a great many sections, an actual enumeration was never made. Township trustees, too busy with personal matters, to attend to the taking of the census without compensation, simply made estimates. It is safe to say that these estimates were never too small. Seeing the evil which was naturally arising from this incorrect census, I, this year, acting on the advice of the attorney-general, ordered the census to be taken giving the name, age, parent or guardian and address of each child. I am pleased to state that I am of the opinion that the school census taken in August of this year is the most correct school census ever taken in Alabama.

The last legislature passed a law which we call the re-districting law. The object of this law was to provide for the formation of school districts with regard to centers of population and natural barriers. Until this law went into effect, school districts, with the exception of a few which had been created by special legislative enactment, had as their boundaries arbitrary township lines. The redistricting board, under this law, consisted of the county superintendent of each county, a member of the court of county of commissioners or board of revenue, and the county surveyor. This board was required to redistrict the county so as to form school districts in such a manner that no child would be more than two and one-half miles from a school house. This work was done in all the counties of the state except Escambia, Mobile and Baldwin. These counties had already been districted under provisions of special or local school laws.

The law provided that the qualified electors in each district so laid out should meet at a specified time and elect three trustees who should be householders and freeholders and residents of the district for which they were elected. The district board was required to meet and elect a president and secretary. The various district presidents met at the various court houses at the time specified by the law and elected a county board of education. This county board of education consists of the superintendent of education, who is an ex-officio member and executive officer, and four citizens selected from the county.

The county board of education has complete control of the schools of the county.

There is a law on the statute books requiring that teachers' institutes be held in every county of the state. The great majority of the counties hold from three to four institutes a year. These institutes, while they do a great good, are not meeting the purposes for which they were intended. In most instances, the institutes are held on Fridays and Saturdays during the school year and the teachers are worn out by the school room duties. In my opinion, it would be better to have several large institutes in different parts of the state, composed of the teachers in several counties, and employ for conducting such institutes expert conductors. The institutes should be held during the school term, and the teachers should be allowed to draw their regular pay while attending the institutes. Moreover, every teacher should be required to attend who has not a valid excuse.

In my investigation of educational work in other states, I have found that great benefit has been derived from requiring teachers to meet monthly in what is called reading circles. A light course of study of a general nature is prescribed, and the county teachers are required to meet once a month for the purpose of discussing the lessons which have been prescribed for the previous month.

A change for the better was made when the legislature provided for the monthly payment of teachers. Under the old plan teachers were paid quarterly. In a great majority of instances their salaries were small and their necessities required them to hypothecate their claims at an exorbitant rate of interests.

The average Alabama school house is not only a disgrace to the community in which it stands, but a disgrace to the state. As a usual thing, these school houses have been built without any regard to scientific arrangement, proper lighting and all of the things that go to make up a comfortable school house. Knowing that the redistricting of the state would require a great number of school houses, at the last meeting of the Alabama Educational association, I suggested that an appropriation be made for having made designs for school buildings from one to eight rooms. The association made the appropriation and a committee was appointed to secure the plans. The plans were made and the Alabama Polytechnic institute kindly furnished a thousand blue prints. These blue prints have been put into the hands of every county superintendent of the state and this office is sending them to any district board upon request. There is a healthy sentiment in the state in favor of better school houses.

The last legislature passed a law providing for the selecting and use of a uniform form series of text-books in the public schools of the state.

The books adopted were to be put in the schools on the first of September, 1903. As the contracts were made in July, and the publishers had to manufacture a great many of the books, there was slight trouble in the early part of the year in procuring the necessary text-books. That difficulty has been remedied, however, and I am inclined to feel that the plan is working smoothly.

After watching for two years from the standpoint of superintendent of education, the operations of the state law for the examination of teachers, I am more than ever before convinced of the wisdom of such a statute. Under this law, the standard of the teaching force has been raised at least fifty per cent. Until the passage of this law only a few of the more enthusiastic teachers gave any attention to the study of their profession. Under the present law, if a teacher expects to keep abreast of the times, and to hold desirable positions he must do as other professional men and women do—study.

As an evidence of the remarkable effect of this law, the state is absolutely unable to supply the demand for first and second grade teachers. A few years ago, I am informed, requests would come to the state department asking for teachers. The grade of the certificate held by the teacher was not taken into question. Now 99 out of every 100 requests that reach the office demand a first or second grade teacher.

A serious defect in the law, and one that should, if possible, be remedied, is the provision which attempts to prevent the examination questions from getting into the hands of applicants before the day of examination.

The state schools, including the State University, the Alabama Polytechnic institute, the normal schools, the Girls' Industrial school, and the nine district agricultural schools are nearly all in a flourishing condition. The last term of the university and of the Alabama Polytechnic institute, were the best in the history, and I am informed that, for the present scholastic year they have opened with greatly increased attendance.

The increased appropriation given to the normal schools by the last legislature has put them on a better financial basis and has enabled them to more nearly accomplish the work for which they were intended.

The Girls' Industrial school at Montevallo is doing, as far as possible, the work for which it was established. The lack of funds and of accommodations naturally hampered the school in its work.

The Institute for the Deaf, Dumb and Blind, located at Talladega, deserves consideration not only on account of the object for which it is intended, but on account of the superior work which it is doing.

A long step towards providing the state with competent teachers was taken in the establishment of a summer school at the University of Alabama. The first school held under this law was a distinct success, and the experience had by those in charge will contribute to the further success of the schools in the future. I am informed that more than three hundred and sixty enthusiastic teachers attended this school for six weeks.

During the summer there was conducted at the Alabama Polytechnic institute a very successful school for farmers. There were in attendance nearly 400 farmers who attended the session regularly for ten days. The very best talent that could be procured in the United States lectured to the farmers on various subjects connected with their profession.

ONE DUELLIST DEAD.

The Other Fatally Injured—Mob Threatens the Injured One.

Fred Tharpe, a contractor, is dead, and Frank Christian, contractor and painter, is dying in a hospital as the result of a fierce duel with knives at Macon, Ga. Tharp's daughter married Rafe Plunket, who was a stepson of Christian and his partner in business. Some time ago Plunket accidentally shot and killed himself. Since his death there has been some discussion between Tharpe and Christian as to the manner in which he was shot, and also on account of some family trouble. The fatal dispute was because of these matters.

Tharpe drew a knife and cut Christian across the stomach, whereupon the latter brought his own knife into play, caught his assailant by the hair and cut his throat. Tharpe died instantly and Christian cannot live.

The coroner's jury returned a verdict in the case, finding that the killing was justifiable homicide. A crowd of friends of Tharpe have marched to the hospital where his slayer lies wounded.

At 1 o'clock a mob composed of several hundred of the dead man's friends formed, and marching to the hospital, where Christian lies wounded, demanded to see him.

Dr. Elder, the surgeon in charge, asked if they were friends of Christian, and upon receiving a hot reply in the negative he drew his revolver and informed them that he would kill the first man who attempted to enter the hospital.

CHARTER REVOKED.

Chicago Federation Expelled by President Gompers.

Formal notice that the charter of the Chicago Federation of Labor had been revoked, and that the organization was expelled from the American Federation of Labor, was given to Secretary Nickels by telegraph. The telegram was signed by President Samuel Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, and was dated at Denver, where the members of the executive council of the federation made a stop on their way to San Francisco convention.

Street Car Collision.

Two cars on the Powderly-Bessemer line had a collision in West End, and one man was slightly injured as a result. The two cars were damaged, one of them seriously and the other only slightly.

The accident occurred while one of the cars was backing into a switch which it had passed. The other car ran into it.

FATAL WRECK.

Eleven persons were killed, several injured, two seriously, in a head-on collision between a Union Pacific passenger train, and a freight train, west of Azusa, Wyo.

FIRE AT KNOXVILLE

Destroys the Lawson-McGhee Library With Some 14,000 Volumes.

FIRE DEPARTMENT DISABLED.

Big Fire Sunday Injured Eight of Its Fighters and Others Suffered This Time

The Lawson-McGhee library, a 3 story brick structure at Knoxville, Tenn., was gutted by fire Monday afternoon, leaving no more than the bare walls standing.

On the ground floor of the building was a double store occupied by the Vance Furniture company. The second floor was devoted to the public library collection of about 14,000 volumes, and the offices of the Commercial club. On the third floor was the Knoxville Business college. The fire originated in the furnace and spread through the structure. Firemen saved the surrounding property only after a hard fight.

The building was valued at $20,000, and was given to the people in 1885 by Colonel Charles M. McGhee, of Knoxville, as a memorial to his daughter Mary Lawson McGhee, who died during that year. The property is held in trust by a board of trustees, which is self-perpetuating. The estimated losses are as follows:

Building $20,000, insurance $15,000; library $20,000, insurance $10,000; Vance Furniture company loss $24,000, insurance $11,500; Knoxville Business college loss $2,000, insurance 600. Total loss $54,000, insurance $37,000.

Captain Joseph Frazier of engine company No. 1, and Captain James Jones, of engine company No. 2, were overcome by smoke. Vernon Miller, a volunteer, was crippled for life by falling glass, his right hand being nearly severed from his arm.

The local department is badly crippled as a result of Sunday morning's fire and explosion at the Woodruff Hardware company store. Eight members of the department were disabled then three still being in a serious condition.

Japanese Prince Here.

Prince Fushimi, member of the Japanese royal household, and special representative of the mikado, accompanied by three of his countrymen and a retinue of servants, is on his way to Washington.

"There is no question of national importance, nor any phase of eastern conditions that I care to discuss," said the prince through his interpreter. He visits this country by order of the emperor with a double purpose, first, to deliver to the president a special message of good-will from the emperor of Japan, and second, to visit the world's fair at St. Louis, where Japan has a large exhibit.

No Money Needed.

In view of the published statement that Secretary Shaw would make a call on government depositories for a loan of twenty million dollars it can be positively stated that no such call in the immediate future is contemplated. There is at present no pressing need for such a call. Should it be made, the probabilities are that it will be some time during January.

Statesman Dead.

Henry Walton, a life senator of France, and known as "the Father of the French Constitution," is dead, says a dispatch from Paris. He was nearly 92 years old. Senator Walton wrote many historical works and was the author of the article in the constitution of 1775 relating to the election of the French president.

Steel Mill Resumes.

The seven-inch finishing mill of what is known as the lower plant of the American Steel Hoop company at Youngstown, O., resumed operations Monday. The Girard plant of the American Steel Hoop company, has been closed permanently and dismantled as a result of the long strike.

Stanley Made Trustee.

Acting Governor Cunningham appointed J. B. Stanley, of Greenville, as trustee from the Second district for the Old Soldiers' home at Mountain Creek in the place of Dr. Kendrick, deceased.

Gone to Supreme Court.

The case testing the constitutionality of the Greater Ensley act will come before the supreme court at its next session beginning Nov. 14. The bill was passed by the last legislature and almost since it became effective has been vigorously opposed by the citizens of West Ensley. The case was heard by both Judges Senn and Ferguson, of the Birmingham city court, and was decided in favor of the city.

Will Bore Again.

The New York-Alabama Oil company is moving its outfit at Hazle Green to a point a few hundred yards from well No. 3, and will drill another well. A government geologist recently examined the lands in that locality and advised the company to continue operations. So confident are these speculators that they will eventually find oil, they have bought another drill outfit and will sink two wells at a time in future.

Hay Will Remain.

President Roosevelt makes the announcement that John Hay will continue as secretary of state during the four years beginning March 4 next.

"You may positively state," were his words, "that Mr. Hay will continue as secretary of state up to the 4th of March, 1909."

The president was asked regarding other possible cabinet changes, but indicated that there was nothing to be said at present.

In sending General Grippenberg to command the new Russian army in the far east the czar has practically taken the chief command away from General Kuropatkin. While both generals have equal rank, General Grippenberg is several numbers the senior of Kuropatkin on the list of generals. As a result, when the two combine forces Grippenberg will actually command by seniority.

VARDAMAN'S PROCLAMAT[ION]

Setting Apart Thanksgiving [illegible] Touches Upon Political Ma[tters]

Governor Vardaman of [illegible] has issued his Thanksgiving proclamation setting apart November 24 [illegible] Thanksgiving day. The only part of his address which reminds one of the late republican victory is the part in which he says:

"Grave problems confront the people of Mississippi, together with those of the other southern states of the republic, and prescribed as they are in dealing with such problems by the organic law of the nation, which may be enforced by an unfriendly hand, it will call for wisdom, courage and patriotism of the highest order to meet the difficulties and [illegible] them. The right thing must be done but it must be done at the right time."

WARE RESIGNS

As United States Commissioner of Pensions.

Commissioner of Pensions Ware has tendered his resignation. He refuses to discuss his action in any way except to state that the newspapers of the country had been "[illegible]" him for the past two years.

It is believed that Commissioner Ware's action was not due to any suggestion that the severance of his relations with the pension office would be agreeable to the president. On the contrary, it has been no secret that Commissioner Ware soon after assuming his duties found the [illegible] of his office distasteful to him, and that this distaste steadily [illegible]. There is no intimation as to who his successor will be.

RIVER APPROPRIATION

Alabama Points Figure Largely in the Recommendations Made.

GEN. M'KENZIE SUBMITS REPORT

Money Wanted for Warrior River and Mobile Harbor Improvements. Amounts Required.

General A. MacKenzie, chief of engineers of the United States army, in his annual report to the secretary of war, presents an exhaustive review of the work accomplished by his corps during the fiscal year ended June 30th last, and submits estimates of appropriations required for the fiscal year beginning July 1 next.

The report of the chief of engineers gives the amount at $625,000 that can be profitably expended in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, for improvements in the Black Warrior and Warrior rivers. The estimated amounts required for construction of locks 1, 2 and 3 is $93,000.

The estimated amount required for the completion of the existing project in Mobile harbor is $641,250. The amount that can profitably be expended next year is $341,250. The estimated amount required for the completion of the existing project on the Tennessee river from Chattanooga to Riverton is $5,155,226. The sum of $585,000 can be profitably expended next year.

The report says that the seacoast defenses of the United States are now somewhat more than 50 per cent completed.

The estimate of the Mississippi river commission has been reduced by the chief of engineers to $2,575,000.

General MacKenzie states that the following amounts can be practically expended in the next fiscal year in the districts named:

Savannah harbor, Georgia, $225,000; Cumberland Sound, Georgia and Florida, $525,000; harbor of Key West, Fla., and entrance thereto, $50,000; harbor of Apalachicola bay, Florida, $50,000; Chattahoochee river, below Columbus, Ga., $60,000; Pensacola harbor, Fla., $100,000; Coosa, Oostanapua and Coosawatts rivers, Georgia and Alabama, $125,000; Pascagoula river, Mississippi, $200,000; Southwest Pass Mississippi, $1,250,000; mouth and passes of Calcascou river, Louisiana, $125,000; Ouachita and Big Sunflower rivers and Tchula Lake, Miss., $105,000; Cumberland river below Nashville, $300,000; Cumberland river above Nashville, $500,000; Tennessee river above Chattanooga, $50,000.

MINE SUPERINTENDENT SHOT.

W. S. Lang, superintendent of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company at Blocton, was shot and painfully wounded at Dagotown, a suburb of Blocton.

The ball entered Mr. Lang's leg just above the knee and ranged upward. It came out the fleshy part of the thigh, causing a severe but not necessarily dangerous wound.

It seems that Saturday afternoon three union miners managed to encroach on the property of the Tennessee company. Deputy Sheriff Colson started out to arrest one of the three men, and Mr. Lang accompanied him. Two of the three men were arrested, but the other escaped.

After Mr. Lang and the deputy had gone some distance from where they had hoped to catch the third man they turned around and started back to Mr. Lang's residence. At this time the shot was fired. The supposition was that the third miner did the shooting.

New Uniforms.

By direction of the secretary of war, orders have been issued carrying into effect the recommendations of the general staff, making changes in the uniforms of the army. The provision for substituting as ornaments the letters "U. S." instead of the coat of arms will take effect June 1, 1905.

THE OPEN GRATE

Responsible for This Child's Burning to Death.

A most deplorable accident occurred at Wyeth City Friday, in which the 5-year-old daughter of Robert Rainwater lost her life by being burned to death.

Mrs. Rainwater had left the child in the yard alone while she went a short distance away to get some water. During her absence the child went into the house and got too near the fire, when her clothes became ignited, the flames covering her little body in a short while.

As the result of a scientific experiment at a balloon ascension from the aeronautic concourse on the world's fair grounds the practicability and accuracy with which wireless messages could be received both as to altitude and distance were satisfactorily tested. More than twenty messages were transmitted from the world's fair wireless tower and received by the operator in the aerial craft.

NOVEMBER 24 NAMED.

By Governor Cunningham as Thanksgiving Day.

Acting Governor Cunningham has issued the following:

A Proclamation by the Governor:

In accordance with the usage and custom, and in obedience to the religious spirit of our people, and in acknowledgement of our obligations and gratitude to Almighty God, I, R. M. Cunningham, Lieutenant Governor and Acting Governor of the state of Alabama, hereby designate Thursday, November 24, 1904, that being the day appointed by the president of the United States, as a day of thanksgiving, benevolence, good will and in moral and lawful enjoyment.

Let us assemble in our respective places of worship, or at our family altars and as a people, and as families and individuals acknowledge our obligations to God, and express our thanks for his good providence in blessing our efforts to provide an abundance of the necessaries of life, for our good health and intellectual and moral progress and for His protection from famine, pestilence and all general disaster.

On that day let us thank God that there are so few examples of real poverty and distress in our state and let us remember those who are in want or distress, with donations from our abundance and with sympathy and encouragement.

Let us examine ourselves and if we have not fully discharged our duty to God, our neighbors, our state and our country, let us resolve to do better in the future to the honor and glory of God, to the help and happiness of our people and to the moral, intellectual and industrial growth of our state.

In witness whereof, I hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the state to be affixed at the capitol in the city of Montgomery, on the 12th day of November, 1904.

R. M. CUNNINGHAM,
Lieutenant and acting Governor.
By the governor, E. R. McDavid, secretary of state.

IN ANSWER TO PRAYER.

Jail Doors Flew Open Say Escaped Dothan Prisoners.

Jesse Barfield and Thad Pennington, white men sentenced Friday at Dothan to life imprisonment, for alleged murder in the first degree, broke jail. Complete and baffling mystery envelops their escape. Sheriff Walker says they were locked in a steel cage. The jail is a new one. The cell door was found standing open and the lock in good working order.

A report said in the day that Barfield had committed suicide at the home of his cousin in Headland by pulling the trigger of a shotgun with his toe. The sheriff went to the scene. Pennington left a note saying that the killing for which he was convicted was in self-defense. He says in the note that the sheriff was not to blame for the escape, but he was on his knees praying when the door flew open, as was the biblical case of Paul and Silas. Judge Pearce has taken the matter under consideration, but has made no decision.

SEVERAL HURT.

Misplaced Rail Sends Passenger Train Into Ditch.

The Southern railway's fast train for Brunswick and Jacksonville was ditched early Saturday morning three miles below Cochran, Ga. Seven coaches were overturned and thirteen persons were injured in the wreck, though none seriously.

The accident was caused by a misplaced rail, the spikes of which were either broken or had been removed. To the left of the track was a forty-foot embankment, and had the train gone down on that side it is probable that a great loss of life would have occurred.

Too Much Work.

Lack of officers for ordnance duty and the overtaxing of the naval gun factory continue to be the two most serious problems facing the bureau of ordnance, according to the annual report of Rear Admiral Mason, chief of ordnance.

HOME FOR SCHOOL TEACHERS.

Senator Redfield Proctor has announced that he will give $10,000 in cash and the house in Rutland, Vt., in which he was born, valued at $10,000, for the establishment of a home for indigent and worthy public school teachers who have passed the age of usefulness.

It is probable that this sum will be combined with a fund of $30,000 which was left by Lucy Ruggles, of Bennington, in the care of Charles H. Darling, assistant secretary of the navy, for the same purpose and that an additional amount will be appropriated by the state.

Soil Survey.

The party of the United States geological survey who have been encamped at Tuscaloosa just back of the University of Alabama buildings for the past week, who have completed the soil survey of the Brookwood quadrangle, have moved to Cottondale, where they are now encamped on another quadrangle. While located near the University of Alabama they compared notes with Dr. Eugene A. Smith, state geologist.

GEN. KUROKI KILLED

The Secret of His Death Has Been Kept Since October 4 ---Over a Month.

NODZU SUCCEEDS TO COMMAND.

Splinter From Russian Shell at Liao Yang Struck Kuroki—News From the Front.

Nemirovich Danchenko, a Russian war correspondent, telegraphing from Mukden Sunday, says the reports of the death of General Kuroki are confirmed. According to his version, a splinter of a shell struck General Kuroki, tearing out a portion of his breast and abdomen. He died on October 4 at Liao Yang, and his body was sent to Japan.

A rumor is persistently circulated that a kinsman of the mikado, Siaosandi, literally "little third prince," has been appointed to succeed General Kuroki, but the actual command of the army is entrusted to General Nodzu, who is reviewing operations.

"For the last week," says Danchenko, "we have not advanced at any point on the whole southeastern front, even a few versts further than we stood on October 5. On the contrary, at several places we have been obliged to retire several versts, but the present lines of defense must be considered permanent, in view of the strong fortifications constructed. The Japanese positions at several points are only 800 paces distant from ours, and must be considered to be definitely occupied by the enemy.

The latter's fortifications are acknowledged by all competent persons to be skillfully constructed. Their trenches in many places are so cleverly concealed, as not to be noticeable a short distance away, the earth removed being carefully thrown in front of the trenches. The general position causes a great tension on both sides.

"At army headquarters no news has been received from Port Arthur, but the absence of reports during the last few days makes it evident that the movement of one or the other Russian armies will be dependent upon the course of events there.

"On November 11 scouts on our right flank attempted to pierce the line of the Japanese fortifications, but were met with a stubborn resistance, and finding the enemy strongly reinforced, retired."

Rear Admiral Greve, the newly appointed commander of the port of Vladivostok, has arrived.

It is denied that the French press in Italy is again trying to interest the powers of intervention with a view of ending the Russo-Japanese war, and it is remarked again that any such action would be impossible until the belligerents were disposed to accept the good offices of one or more powers.

It is understood that arrangements have been completed for the floating of a loan of $250,000 in Berlin, of which German banks have underwritten three-quarters and Holland banks the remainder.

General Baron Kaulbars, recently appointed to command the third Russian army, has gone to Odessa, from which place he will proceed to the Far East November 25.

Soon to Be Lighted.

The Sheffield Steel and Iron company, controlled by a New York syndicate, is rushing the work on one of its four furnaces and will have it ready for the torch by the middle of next week.

Electric Lights.

Florence's electric lights were turned on Friday for the first time.

LOTTERY SCHEME.

The Chinese government is formulating a scheme of state lotteries for the purpose of wiping out the indemnities granted to railroad corporations. The prizes will aggregate $30,000,000 in gold.

WILL MAKE NO STOPS.

It is announced at the white house that the president on his approaching trip to St. Louis, would make no stops at other cities, either going or returning.

To Honor Kruger.

It is understood that King Edward has ordered that royal salutes be fired upon the arrival of the body of the late President Kruger at Capetown and Pretoria.

Bell Going Home.

The committee of the select and common councils of Philadelphia arrived Saturday at St. Louis to escort back to its resting place in Philadelphia the old liberty bell, which has been on exhibition in the Pennsylvania building at the exposition. On Wednesday exercises will be concluded in the nature of a farewell to the old bell, and it will start on its homeward journey.

ANNUAL ARMY REPORT.

There Are About 70,000 United States Soldiers Enlisted.

The annual report of Gen. F. C. Ainsworth, the military secretary of the army, the first issued from his office since its creation by congress at its last session, gives the total strength of the army at the close of the last fiscal year 3,871 officers and 69,946 enlisted men. The loss of officers from death, dismissal, retirement and other causes was 165. The number of enlisted men lost by death was 456.

A reduction in the number of malarial fever cases at West Point is attributed to an attack made on the mosquitoes.

The average cost of subsisting cadets was stated to be 64.3 cents, against 53.9 cents the previous year.

"This increase in cost," the report recites, "was partly due to the unusually high prices of all food supplies and partly to the maintenance of an extra table during the active athletic season and to the visits of instructions made by the classes during the year."

Of the 27,280 recruits enlisted during the past fiscal year 3,662 were foreign born. Complaints as to the number of unsatisfactory recruits are said to have been unusually numerous.

Speaking of the militia it is said very satisfactory progress has been made toward bringing the organized militia, respecting armament, equipment and discipline, up to the standard of the regular army. A total of 6,966 officers and 83,102 enlisted men of the militia organizations were present at the inspections.

In referring to the act of congress providing for a roster of officers and enlisted men of the Union and Confederate armies, the report says the responses of the governors addressed inviting their co-operation have been such as to assure the department that they fully appreciate the importance of the work and will co-operate heartily with the department in its efforts to give to the Confederate soldier the place that is due him in the proposed compilation.

On Half Time.

The Gadsden saw mill of the Queen City Lumber company, which has been idle for several months on account of the low stage of Coosa river, logmen being unable to raft logs, has started up on half time and will run this way until the river rises sufficiently to float down more logs. The stave mill in connection with the saw mill is running full time. The planing mill of the Kyle Lumber company at Alabama City, has also started up again after an enforced idleness of some two months, caused by the low water.

New Jersey Launched.

The battleship New Jersey, built for the United States government by the Fore River Ship Building company, was successfully launched Thursday in the presence of a large number of guests, including Governor Franklin Murphy, of New Jersey; Governor John L. Bates, of Massachusetts, and former Secretary of the Navy John D. Long. The battleship was christened by Mrs. William B. Kinney, daughter of Governor Murphy.

Medals Stolen.

A thief entered the Birmingham Athletic club and stole forty-two gold medals and two razors. Nearly all the medals were the property of Ed Warren and Sid B. Jones, and were trophies of victories on the track and field and gymnasium. Some of them were set with jewels. Their intrinsic value is about $500.

Going to World's Fair.

President Roosevelt has promised to attend the Louisiana Purchase Exposition on Saturday, the 26th of November.

Wyoming Injured.

Secretary Morton received a telegram from the commander of the monitor Wyoming saying that when she grounded in a heavy fog leaving Puget Sound, her starboard strake and several frames were injured and compartments were flooded. It will be impossible to determine the extent of the damage until she has been docked.

Judge Advocate General.

Major General George P. Harrison, commander of the Alabama division, United Confederate Veterans, has appointed Captain Daniel Coleman, of Huntsville, as judge advocate general with the rank of lieutenant colonel. Captain Coleman is commander of Egbert Jones camp of Huntsville.

The Same Members.

For the first time in a number of years Mississippi makes no change in the personnel of its delegation in the lower house of congress, all the members of the present delegation being returned.

101 Years Old.

A. J. Wideman is dead at New Market at the age of 101. The dead man was the father of twelve children, the youngest of whom is 22 years of age.

Secretary's Brother Dead.

Major Leonard Augustus Hay, brother of Secretary of State John A. Hay, is dead. Major Hay was seventy years old.

YARDS FOR REPAIRS.

Private Concerns Can Build War Vessels Cheaper Than Government.

Although recognizing the desirability of having some of the government yards equipped for building naval vessels of the largest size, Rear Admiral W. L. Capps, chief constructor of the navy, in his annual report says that "the repairing and overhauling of the fleet must at all times remain the most important work of the navy yards and in times of war their resources will be taxed to the utmost in performing such work. The navy is increasing as rapidly that ample work will be provided for the navy yards by the 'repairs and refits' alone.

Of the work on the battleship Connecticut, building at the New York yards, the chief constructor says that despite every effort to reduce the cost of this, the first battleship to be constructed in a government navy yard, to the most economical basis, "it can hardly be hoped that the work will be done as cheaply as when performed in private shipbuilding yards, whose rates of pay for nine hours' work are, in many cases, less than those being paid for eight hours' work at the navy yard in New York."

ANNUAL REPORT

Issued by the Auditor of the Postoffice Department.

The annual report of the auditor for the postoffice department shows that the fiscal business transacted through the postal and money order branches of the department during the last year was:

Revenue of the postal service, $143,582,624.

Expenditures of the postal service, $152,362,116.

Total amount of money orders issued:

Domestic, $283,452,373; foreign, $37,875,265.

Total amount of money orders paid:

Domestic, $285,100,020; foreign, $6,714,846.

The deficit in the postal revenues, therefore, was $8,579,492.

New Machine Shops.

The new machine shops of Strickland Bros. at Tuscaloosa is nearing completion, and will be in operation in a few days. The building is of brick, being 50x200 feet, and has a spur track from the Mobile and Ohio. It is being fitted up with the latest improved machinery and also has a fifteen-ton electric crane.

Over Thirty Thousand.

A corrected casualty list of the ten day battle of the Shakhe river issued by the war office places the total killed or wounded at 33,250, of whom 900 were officers. The first returns, it is explained, contained duplications, and some of the men were so slightly wounded that they returned to their ranks in a few days.

Coming Home.

Telegrams received from Bishop Charles B. Galloway announce his safe arrival at Vancouver, and that he will arrive in Jackson, Miss., in about a week. The bishop has been holding conferences in Japan, China and other oriental countries the past three or four months.

Orphanage.

The trustees of the Methodist orphanage, which it is expected to be moved from Water Valley to Jackson, Miss., and for which the required bonus of $10,000 was raised in a few days, have been to Jackson looking over the field with a view to the selection of a site.

Austria Pleased.

Emperor Francis Joseph has telegraphed to President Roosevelt his congratulations on the latter's electoral victory.

Hand Injured.

Erle Townsend, a young man about 22 years of age, happened to a very painful accident at Sylvania while engaged in adjusting a ripsaw. Some way his hand got too near the saw and was pulled in, and before he could extract it several of his fingers were cut off and his hand badly lacerated.

Japanese Colony Going to Florida.

Five Japanese, the advance guard of a colony of forty or fifty families, are on the way to Dade, Fla., where they intend to cultivate 67,000 acres of land. The colony will raise silk, cotton, tobacco and pineapples and experiment with them.

Mrs. Cleveland Acted.

Mrs. Grover Cleveland performed the ceremony of laying the cornerstone of the new building of the Hebrew technical school for girls in New York. Former President Cleveland acted as presiding officer of the exercises and delivered an address.

Whitecaps Indicted.

The federal grand jury has indicted eight Lincoln county, Mississippi, alleged whitecaps on the charge of driving negroes from a government homestead.

Reynolds Resigns.

Acting Governor Cunningham received and accepted the resignation of Louis H. Reynolds, of Chilton, as a member of the house of representatives.

And it's Judge L. H. Reynolds for sure. Howdy, Judge Reynolds?

Politics are out of date, let's all get down to business.

People who are supposed to know say that cotton will yet go up to 12 cents.

The Japs and the Russians kindly held up while the election was on, but are now getting ready to pitch in again.

Now that the election is over and the people have chosen their officers, a dispassionate view may be taken of the situation as it affects Chilton county. On the whole it was a clean campaign, the candidates on both sides respected themselves and each other. Except from one quarter there was little mud slinging, and The Banner is proud of the fact that none of it found a place in our columns.

From a Democratic standpoint, while only one of our county nominees was returned, the result may be looked upon as very satisfactory, almost a victory, a little extra effort would have made it one, in fact. The Democratic electoral ticket carried the county, all the judges of the supreme court, the chancellor of the district, the judge and solicitor of the circuit, the president of the railroad commission, all are Democrats, and the county treasurer also is a Democrat, truly the Democrats of Chilton have much to congratulate themselves upon. They may have wished for more, but are well satisfied with what they have.

That there were irregularities and some illegal votes cast is unquestionable. But there have been irregularities in former elections, and sometimes it is wise not to look for a strict compliance with all the points of law. The several years past it has been customary in the county to accept the returns on their face value and, providing the wishes of the majority could be fairly ascertained, not to be too exacting in looking into irregularities The position taken by the Democrats who were watching the returns was this: We know that irregular practices have occurred, we know that illegal votes have been cast, and if cognizance is taken of these facts we believe we have a safe majority. But if the official count shows a clear majority for the opposition we will abide the result and not press an investigation of these irregularities.

In this broad and liberal spirit was de[illegible] was made and accepted, and all that Democrats and Populists and Republicans alike ask and expect of the newly elected officers is faithful and efficient service, and there is no reason to doubt but we will get it.

We have just received a copy of The Southern Advertiser, published by G. C. Earle, of Birmingham, Ala. It is well edited, beautifully printed, and contains not only much of interest to the South generally, but its chief claim to recognition from the business men is the elaborate attention it gives to questions of advertising. Within its pages are examples of good and bad advertising—how to do the former and avoid the latter, what, when and where to advertise.

The subscription price of The Southern Advertiser is $1.00 per year, and every business man who is interested in the progress of the South should subscribe to it.

They will send a copy of the November number to any person who will cut out this article and send it with their name and address.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY.

To the Honorable T. Scott Sayre, Judge of the Fifteenth Circuit of Alabama:

We, the Grand Jury empaneled by your Honor, for the Fall Term 1904, of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, Alabama, beg leave to submit this, our final report. We have investigated 96 cases and we submit to your Honorable Court 55 true bills.

Through our committees, we have examined the books of the several county officers, as best we could for the limited time allowed us, we have found them neatly and correctly kept; we have also examined the bonds of the several county officers and find them to be good and sufficient. We find the office of Register in Chancery is nicely kept, though the several reverse indexes have not been properly kept, though they have the book for that purpose, we recommend that this be done; we also recommend that the Commissioners furnish this office with a filing case. We have inspected the county jail and report the same as having been neatly kept and the prisoners well cared for. The public roads have been reported in good condition, except mile posts and sign boards, which are very scarce and we recommend that our county commissioners look after this matter and put them in good condition.

Our poor house committee report to us that the poor house is well kept and the inmates are well pleased with their fare, more so than usual; there are twelve inmates at the poor house and twelve in the county that receive assistance from their relatives and friends

Respectfully submitted,
P. D. Wilson, Foreman.

The Grand Jury adjourned Monday evening. Bowen Jones made a good and efficient bailiff.

Billingsley.

Our little town keeps steadily growing, Mr. Sim Ramsey's new house is near completion under the skillful management of Messers. M. J. Marlor and Abbott.

Election day passed off quietly here. Teddy won, but not by our votes.

Rev. H. R. Schramm, of Deatsville, delivered an excellent sermon to an appreciative audience Thursday night.

Mr. Lush Wells and family have recently moved from Maplesville to our town, we extend them welcome.

Mrs. Joe Lewis and family of Rollins visited relatives here Sunday.

We are glad to learn Mrs. T. J. Baker is improving from a severe cold and fever.

Miss Mary Lou Marlor is confined to her bed with slow fever; we hope to see her out real soon.

Mr. Jim Boon, formerly of Billingsley, but now of Montgomery, visited here Sunday, he makes his visits quite frequent now, and from what I can learn he is planning to make our town minus one of our lovely young ladies.

Mr. Will Paul of Prattville, was in town Monday.

Mrs. Letcher of Riderville is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Gandy.

The infant son of Mr. and Mrs. B. McCarry is real sick, but hope it will be well soon.

We have won one of Verbena's fair young ladies, Miss Hortense Armstrong, as assistant teacher, also as music and elocution teacher.

Mr. Deramus of Haynes was in town Sunday.

The wedding bells will ring some day, perhaps 'twill not be long, so we hear in our town.

A Citizen.

A Good Complexion.

"Sparkling eyes rosy cheeks restored by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers," so writes S. P. Moore, of Nacogdoches, Tex. A certain cure for biliousness, constipation, etc, etc. Small pill—easy to take—easy to act. Sold by Upchurch Drug. co.

Best Salve Wrote.

"When once you understand the art of baiting in the great Bait lake of Utah it is the finest diversion on earth, but it is not apt to result pleasantly to the man who does not heed the advice of one experienced," said a citizen of Salt Lake City. "At any other baiting resort in the world the swimmer can play in the waves, dive and disport himself as he pleases, but not so in this wonderful sheet of water in the west and all on account of its extraordinary saline qualities. So heavily is it charged with brine that unless the bather protects his eyes, nose and ears from liquid contact he will receive such stinging punishment as will make him bitterly regret having entered the water. To get even a little of it in the mouth is cause for grief. But when he knows enough to protect himself in sensitive places he will admit that nowhere in the world is the bathing so free or so stimulating in its effects."—Washington Post.

DEATH OF Mr W. D. SARTOR.

A fine old gentleman passed away on Sunday night and Clanton sorrows for the loss of one of our oldest citizens. For many years Mr. W. D. Sartor has been a familiar figure on our streets, loved and respected as an upright, honorable man, one of nature's gentlemen. He had been in feeble health for some time and a fall a week ago hastened the end; like the gallant old Confederate veteran he was he answered the call calmly and peacefully. He was greatly interested in the organization of Camp John W. Sanford and the camp has lost one of its most gallant members. As a Mason he had taken a prominent place in that fraternity, and the Baptist church loses one of its consistent supporters. The funeral took place Tuesday morning, Rev. A. C. Swindall preaching the sermon at the house He was buried with Masonic honors, and one of the largest processions ever seen here escorted the body to its last resting place, there to await the final trump. Two sons and one daughter survive him, and with them mourn a large circle of friends. After 68 years of Christian life he has gone to his reward. Peace be with him.

Thousands Cured.

"DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of Piles. "I bought a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve on the recommendation of our druggist," so writes C. H. LaCroix, of Zavalla, Tex., "and used it for a stubborn case of Piles. It cured me permanently." Sold by U. Church Drug co.

Cross Roads.

As it has been some time since I have seen any news from this place, I will tell some of the events. The farmers are about done gathering. We have a lot of new neighbors moved into our community. Our sabbath school is still in progress. Our literary school is a good one under the careful management of our teacher, Miss Julia Parrish. Mr. Lee Cox has returned from the capital to attend the school.

We are glad to see Miss Della Foshee back at home again, she has been spending the past two weeks with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Burnett, at Elmore. She visited the capital city also.

Messrs. Joe Huckebee and Joe Thomas have been visiting the capital city. New Comer.

Proverbs

"When the butter won't come put a penny in the churn," is an old time dairy proverb. It often seems to work though no one has ever told why.

When mothers are worried because the children do not gain strength and flesh we say give them Scott's Emulsion.

It is like the penny in the milk because it works and because there is something astonishing about it.

Scott's Emulsion is simply a milk of pure cod liver oil with some hypophosphites especially prepared for delicate stomachs.

Children take to it naturally because they like the taste and the remedy takes just as naturally to the children because it is so perfectly adapted to their wants.

For all weak and pale and thin children Scott's Emulsion is the most satisfactory treatment.

We will send you the penny, i. e., a sample free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Trained to Orders.

Scottish highland retainers, when made to do duty as servants, are said to show a very stolid, matter of fact kind of obedience. A Mr. Campbell, a highland gentleman, visiting a country house, told Donald to bring everything out of the bedroom, meaning his personal belongings. But five minutes later he found all its movable articles—fender, fire irons and the like—piled up in the lobby, so literal was the poor man's sense of obedience to orders. And of this he gave a still more extraordinary proof during his sojourn in Edinburgh. When the family moved into a house there Mrs. Campbell gave him very particular instructions regarding visitors, explaining they were to be shown into the drawing room and using the Scotticism, "Carry any ladies that call upstairs." The first visitors were two women who came at the same time. Donald seized one in his arms, said to the other, "Bide ye there till I come for ye," and in spite of her struggles and remonstrances ushered the terrified visitor into Mrs. Campbell's presence.

Locusts That Bring Terror.

In South Africa locusts are not those solitary green insects that crawl lazily over the apple tree trunks and enliven the July nights with the buzz of their Lilliputian sawmills. They are big, reddish yellow grasshoppers, with long, strong, brown wings and two little millstones of teeth that will masticate anything that can be forced between them. They are neither solitary nor lazy. They are warriors, live and breed in camps millions strong and campaign in armies miles in extent. They fear nothing except an explosive noise, and their coming is the signal for an uproarious rattling of pans and a frenzied yelling among grown men and women that would put to shame the Yankee small boy on the Fourth of July. Poor, simple people that they are, their crops are their all, and it is a matter of life and death with them to keep off those terrible insects.—Century.

Odd Punishments.

In the reign of Queen Mary a man was pilloried in London for selling pots of strawberries, "the which the pot was half full, but filled with fern." Poor old Cheapside has doubtless seen many similar frauds. At the same period persons were often pilloried for selling bad fish, and the fish itself was hung around their necks. The public was thus allowed to avenge itself. A butcher who had vended diseased meat was made to ride around London, "his face toward the horse's tail, with half a lamb before and another behind and veal and calf bones before him on a pole, raw." His own meat, no doubt, and therefore not too savory. A similar punishment of riding round London in a cart was given to a certain person who had sold his wife to a butcher. Let us hope that this sale was purely matrimonial.

Simple Living.

It is not the aggregation of wealth which makes people happy, but the contentment found in the ways of a simple living. While luxuries increase, often thoughtlessly encouraged, the necessities of life are lost sight of. It is an important problem to solve what to do to help home building, though it takes no great calculation to find out the fact that 100 families in small homes of a thousand or two thousand dollars each are great consumers and producers of business and trade than one or two families with all their servants in a $100,000 mansion. Thorns, thistles and wild carrots will disappear from the fields and waste city lots if the idle land is utilized for garden or farm homes.—Hartford Times.

Kindliness Among Birds.

I have seen a little chipping sparrow make a business of feeding some half fledged robins. She watched for her opportunity, and whenever both parent robins were away from the nest she rushed in with her morsel. The robins resented her officiousness and hustled her out of the tree whenever they caught her there. I have heard of a wren that fed a brood of young robins in a similar way and of a male bluebird that fed some young birds that were in a nest near its own.—John Burroughs in Outing.

Badly Expressed.

The orator of the corner store was giving forth his views of a popular congressman whose death had been chronicled in the evening paper. "I tell you," he said gloomily, "he's going to be a loss to all that have known him or known of him. He has died, as he has lived, unanimously regretted."

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.
New Way of Using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. Arthur Chapman writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says: As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and put some upon the dummy teat the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child This they did and brought about a quick relief and cured the baby." This Remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

HOW AGGIE MAY WASHED HER SOUL.

A Human Little Tale of a Sensitive Child, Which Contains a Warning to Overzealous Parents.

By GRACE SALINGER.

I.

Nature seemed holding her breath while a hot sun shone relentlessly upon a sleeping farm-yard. The hush of a summer afternoon had settled over the meadows and over the orchard. In the garden the incessant humming of the bees seemed to mingle with the very stillness and to become part of it. Even the hens, tired of the daisies and the butterflies, had sought the shelter of the spreading trees, and lay chewing their cud, their great eyes looking into space with almost imbecile tranquillity. Peace, like an invisible, yet eloquent, presence, had settled over everything.

That is, over everything save the slight figure of Aggie May, flung in an abandon of misery beneath the apple-tree. Her small frame now convulsively with heavy sobs as they followed one another with trembling rapidity. Alas! Aggie May was learning the bitter lesson of repentance. She was experiencing her first great emotion, born of a series of emotions for in her grief was mingled remorse, horror, despair, misery and wide-eyed fear. A fear of something she knew not what, a complex element which had never before entered Aggie May's varied experiences of six years.

Aggie May had committed a terrible sin, and now she was reaping the "rest. She knew it, because her mother has told her so, and whoever heard of a mother telling a lie. If on Aunt Mag had said it she thought there might have been a mistake, but her mother—never!

And how she had said it! Aggie May's sobs gained new force as she recalled her mother's cold face when she had said, "Aggie May, what have you been doing?"

And Aggie May could feel again the sickening horror of detection. She surreptitiously put forth a small red tongue, which swiftly made the circle about two full rosy lips to gather in all telltale crumbs. And then, secure in her belief that she had well covered her tracks, she had answered unblushingly, "Nothing."

Aggie May's tongue was short, and sugar has such an unpleasant way of sticking to fat baby hands and fat baby faces.

Aggie May's mamma's face grew harder still as she uttered these awful words: "Aggie May, you will never go to heaven. You are no child of mine. You have violated every one of the Lord's commandments. He has told you not to steal, yet you have done it; he has said you must not lie, yet you are doing it. Do you think he is going to forgive you? No! He has punished you already. Come here."

In fear and trembling awe Aggie May stepped to her mother's side. Mrs. Sangster deliberately traced the outline of a word on the child's brow.

"Listen," she said; "this is what is written there. S-U-G-A-R. That spells 'sugar.' Aggie May, you have been stealing sugar!"

Aggie May stood confounded by the occult wisdom of her mother and a Supreme Deity. Her little childish soul thrilled with the horror and mystery of something she did not understand. Why this suddenly fallen thunderbolt, this swift retribution aimed by an unseen hand?

She had taken sugar before, but—but—she had never been detected quite in the act. She thought that must be it. God hadn't discovered her before. It had only been her mother; and her mother wouldn't do anything so terrible as to write awful words on her brow. She remembered now how her mother had said she was ashamed to let God know what a wicked child she was. Yes, undoubtedly that must have been it. But this conviction did not come suddenly to Aggie May. She saw it all much later through eyes blinded by tears beneath the apple-tree. Just then her mother's voice continued:

"All your life you will have that word written on your forehead. And ...e it will probably ...ed, sadly. Certainly Aggie May's mother realized the fearful extent of the calamity. Then she turned and cruelly left the room.

Aggie May stood in a dazed stupor for a moment, then she hastily climbed on a chair to look into the glass. She would convince herself of what was there. But her baby eyes could see nothing. She rubbed her brow thoughtfully with a fat forefinger, but the smooth velvet skin felt as usual to the touch. Then Aggie May admitted in her own mind that she was puzzled.

It was at this juncture that un Mag came in, and unconsciously settled everything. She found Aggie May with a very sugary mouth and tearful eyes before the mirror. In a minute her own keen eyes had grasped the situation.

"Aunt Mag," said Aggie May, "what do you see on my forehead?"

Aunt Mag looked straight at Aggie's May's mouth, and then she said, "Sugar."

Aggie May's eyes grew dark with horror. "Is it written in very big and black letters?" she asked.

"Very big and black," answered her aunt.

"Don't you fink it will ever come off?" queried Aggie May anxiously.

"I should say not," answered Mag emphatically. "It's so black."

Aggie May shivered. She slowly climbed down from her chair, her fat legs hardly bearing the weight of her trembling body.

"Oh, Aunt Mag," she pleaded, tearfully, "the dirt on my finger coming off when I washed it yesterday. Don't you reckon I can wash this off?"

"I don't know," said her Aunt Mag, thoughtfully. "This is not your finger, you know; it's your soul."

"But you said it was my forehead," said Aggie May, with a gleam of hope.

"It shines through," answered her Aunt Mag. "If you want to rub it off you'll have to wash your soul."

Aggie May turned her small face toward the open door. Here was a problem. She must think. Where was her soul?

Out there in the garden and beyond, everything spoke of the goodness of God. It was only here in this room, that a blackness brooded—the black words on a child's brow shining through from a child's soul, which must be cleaned. With a little quick breath of determination she raised her small clenched fist in defiance. Of what! An unseen relentless foe that hedged her in. Her mind was made up. She should defy God. She would wash her soul.

She ran quickly down the path, across the meadow, into the orchard.

Beneath the apple-tree Aggie May gave way to the full horror of her misery and despair. How could she reach her soul? Her hands moved restlessly over her chubby body. Where was her soul? She had certainly heard it mentioned before, but no one had ever located it exactly. It couldn't be in her stomach, she knew that, because hadn't Aunt Mag said the blackness shone through on her forehead? Certainly! Of course! How stupid she was! It was in her head, underneath her hair. But how was she to get at it?

Again the complication of circumstances appalled her. Clearly the first thing to do however, was to cut off her hair. After that she might scratch a little hole right back of the forehead and get it out. The operation sounded painful, and at heart Aggie May was a coward. She decided that to crop the golden tresses might be efficacious. After that she would go down and hold her head in the brook all day. Maybe the water would soak in. She started back to the house. Obviously the first thing to do was to get a pair of scissors and some soap.

Aggie May crept softly into her mother's room. It was empty, with her work-basket lying just within Aggie May's reach. She turned back to the orchard triumphantly. By night her soul should be clean.

Without regret, without remorse, Aggie May snipped diligently at her golden curls—the pride of her mother's heart, the pest of her own. If soul-washing included the joy of ridding one's self of long hair that would tangle, and would attract little boys like flies to molasses, she submitted cheerfully to the sacrifice.

Through the orchard, over the meadow, into the cool darkness of the woods Aggie May sped. The brook was deep in the heart of the forest, and she had never been there alone before, but she knew the way. Under the dim aisles of quiet trees the child ran swiftly, now in one direction, now another, until in a maze of bark and trunk she stood, a great fear rising in her heart. Where was she?

How long she had wandered about she could not tell, but the woods were growing strangely still and black with a solemn stillness and a brooding darkness that lent new strength to the child's fast-failing limbs. She was hungry and the chill breath of the forest was beginning to pierce her thin cotton dress. She wanted her supper and she wanted her mamma. But she went on determinedly. The brook must be found.

II.

Mrs. Sangster stood at the door, shading her eyes with her hand. "What can make the child so late?" she said.

Her sister glanced up from her work. "Perhaps she has gone to meet her father," she suggested.

There was a silence, finally broken by Mrs. Sangster. "I haven't seen her since nearly three o'clock, have you?"

Mag smiled as she suddenly remembered. "No," she said; "the last I saw of her she was making for the orchard to clean her soul."

"To clean what?" asked Mrs. Sangster.

"Her soul," repeated the younger woman. "She asked me if I saw anything on her forehead, and I said sugar. She seemed quite awed, and wanted to know if she could wash it off. I said it was on her soul, and she went out to clean it, I fancy. I guess she's all right," she ended, lightly.

But the mother was not satisfied. Suddenly she caught sight of a figure moving across the meadow. "No," she said; "there's comes Abe alone. Mag, something has happened to Aggie May."

She started down the path, and her sister rose, and reluctantly followed. She wanted to finish her sewing. The child was probably all right, and was doubtless playing somewhere about in the yard. It was tiresome of Flora to make such a fuss.

Mrs. Sangster answered only two words. "Aggie May."

"Where?" He caught her roughly by the arm, and she turned a white face toward him.

"Gone," she whispered, and their eyes met. Even Mag felt an electric shock of horror, and wished she had not been quite so hopeless about the sugar.

"Since when have you missed her?" asked the father, a tremor in his voice.

Mrs. Sangster shook her head.

"I last saw her under the apple tree at about three, I should say," answered Mag.

The three hurried to the spot, half expecting to find her at play. It was Aggie May's favorite spot to retire to play, to think or to pout. All the great crises of her life had been enacted here. But her swing hung limp and motionless.

Mr. Sangster turned to go, but his wife suddenly called him back with a piercing cry.

"Look!" she said. At her feet lay a heap of golden curls, and beside them, thrown upon the ground, lay a pair of scissors—her scissors.

"Indians," gasped Mag, turning white.

"Gipsies," ventured the mother. "Oh, Aggie May, Aggie May, where are you?" she called, wildly.

Mr. Sangster said nothing. He stooped, and gathered up the handful of golden hair, and crammed it in his pocket. Then he turned to his wife.

"I think, Flo," he said, gently, "you had better go home. I'll look for the child." There was a curious white line about his mouth.

"What! Go home when my child is perhaps dying?"

"Then, my dear, come quickly, for I think we are needed."

They crossed the meadow. In the open space it was still broad daylight, but in the forest beyond the shadows were already black.

"Mag," said Mr. Sangster, suddenly turning to his sister-in-law, "run and rouse the men, and get lanterns. We'll search the woods."

Mrs. Sangster shivered with fear—not for herself, but for her baby—but the two pushed rapidly on. Only to catch the fugitives before nightfall, for they had no doubt that the child had been kidnapped.

Suddenly the man stopped. In the fading light something white hung to an outreaching bush. It was a scrap of Aggie May's calico apron.

Mrs. Sangster caught it and kissed it. Again Mr. Sangster stopped. This time it was an open space of ground under the trees, where no grass seemed growing. He sank on his knees, his face close to earth. It was the faint outline of a child's footprints that he saw. He searched in vain. There were none beside them.

He turned to his wife. "It looks like she was alone," he said.

"What would she be doing in the woods alone?" she asked. Then she suddenly stopped. Across her mind flashed the conversation Mag had repeated to her. She had gone outside probably to wash off the sugar. "The brook!" she gasped, and they hurried forward.

They reached its banks, but all was peaceful and serene. The water gurgled and laughed in an abandon of glee; the current swept on until a sudden curve in its course lost it to view.

III.

Meanwhile Aggie May's little feet sped fast and faster.

"Hark! What was that?" A dragon was hissing close beside her. She sprang up and staggered on. Again an awful sound. She crouched behind a tree to listen. Tinkle, tinkle. It was like the ringing of fairy bells or the murmur of water over a bed of pebbles. It grew louder with every step, but it seemed more like water all the time. Suddenly the trees became less dense, and the light grew brighter as she neared the open space. She stood in wonder. It was not the fairies, after all. She had reached the brook.

She knelt down beside it. She took from her pocket the soap, and rubbed it carefully on the spot just behind her forehead. Her mamma would be glad to see her without that black word on her brow. The little shorn head bent low over the swiftly moving stream, and she caught the reflection of earth and sky in its dancing ripples. Suddenly she reeled, the earth slipped away, she felt the cold water grip her, and then with a cry she plunged head foremost into the current.

Some instinct of motherhood guided Mrs. Sangster's footsteps. The sound of Aggie May's voice reached her faintly at first, then louder, until it resounded through the stillness in frantic echoes. Following the sound, she plunged ahead, and arrived just in time to see a small hand flung out wildly from the middle of the brook, then speed onward.

It was not an heroic task to step in and rescue the fallen child. Mr. Sangster waded to the middle of the stream, and in a moment Aggie May was in her mother's arms.

Behind them, in the forest, lights were gleaming like fireflies, and the arched dome of the forest rang with shouts of Aggie May's name. She lay very white and scared, while the water trickled down in little rivulets from her limp arms and legs. Aggie May flung a dripping arm about her mother's neck. "It was very cold," she said, nestling closer in the protecting arms, "and the water getted in my froat, but I fink it must have comed off. They ain't no sugar on my soul now, is they, mamma?"

And Mrs. Sangster, with choking voice, answered, "No, dear; your soul is very white now."

Aggie May clapped her hands joyously. "I knowed it," she said. Then a quick shadow passed over her face. "It must 'a' been the soap, though," she said, "'cause I wasn't in the brook very long."—Woman's Home Companion.

A HAY FEVER ROMANCE.

"If you be mine!" the lover cried—
(They sat beneath a maple tree.)
And tender by the maid replied,
"Oh, Archibald! Kerchug! Kerchee!"

"I've loved you long," he wildly said,
"My heart doth ever beat for you."
The maiden shyly bowed her head
And softly murmured, "Ah, K-r-choo!"

"Oh, say," beseeched the ardent swain,
"If you will share my cottage snug?"
The damsel beat her head again
And coyly whispered, "Ker-choof-ker-chug!"

"I love you, too," she cried, "my own!
And I will share your humble cot."
The youth replied in burning tone,
"Oh, excuse me! Kerchug! Ah-whoof!"

The birds looked down upon the scene,
The waters rustled in the breeze;
And so they plighted troth, I ween,
And sealed it with a sanguinary sneeze.

JUST FOR FUN

Barnes—Was Bentley seriously hurt? Howes—Very seriously, was hit on the funny bone.

Harding—Is Boulder a man to be trusted? Stanley—Why, that's the only way you can sell him anything.

"Is your wife economic?" "Very. She can fix over a $10 hat for $15 so it will look just as good as a new one."—Puck.

Mrs. Fondmar—Don't you think baby grows more like me every day? Fondmar—Yes, dear, especially so since she began to talk.—Life.

"I want to get a divorce," she told the lawyer. "What has your husband been doing?" he asked. "Nothing," she replied.—Cleveland Leader.

"Poor old Versley died last night." "Indeed?" "Yes, he turned over and died without a struggle." "Well, he died easier than he lived, then."—New Orleans Picayune.

Harry—How is it you're not carrying a cane these days? Theodore—My dear boy, I don't feel equal to it. It's as much as I can do to walk without it, don't you know.

Kate—I suppose you consider yourself handsome? Grace—Oh, dear, no; but then it's just like me to think differently from everybody else. I am so eccentric, you know.

Hilda—I wonder why it is that sailor men are so profane? Uncle Henry—Why, don't you know? They learn it of the parrots in foreign lands. Hilda—There! I might have known.

Uncle John—Don't you think it rather extravagant in you to smoke such expensive cigars? Richard—It would be if I didn't make it up by economy in another direction—my wife's hats and gowns.

Dingus—Old fellow, it is the same old story. I'm in need of a little financial succor. Shadbolt—You'll have to hunt further. I am not the little financial sucker I used to be.—Chicago Tribune.

Fuddy—Dr. Pellets has had a long experience, but he never doctors himself. When he is under the weather, he invariable calls in another physician. Duddy—Apparently he draws the line at suicide.

"Don't you think he lacks aplomb?" asked Mrs. Oldcastle. "Well," replied her hostess, "I don't know, but at the dinner the other night it did seem to be as though he couldn't get enough peaches."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Fannie—And what did you say when he said you were the first girl he had ever proposed to? Blanche—I told him he was the first man who had ever proposed to me. And, do you know, I don't think he felt a bit flattered. Funny, isn't it?

Bickers—Hello, Welby! you didn't have to undergo an operation for appendicitis, after all? Welby—No; the doctors discovered that I was too poor to pay for it. So I had to get well without it. The fact is, there's no chance for a poor man in this world.

Giffe—What's your experience with street-car hogs? Spinks—I had one move up and give me the end seat this summer. Giffe—Mercy from politeness? Spinks—No; I think rather from prudence. You see, there was a shower beginning.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

"Anyway," said the Cheerful Idiot, as he looked over the Tired Citizen's shoulders at the picture of an Igorrotte dog feast, "that's one part of the canine they don't seem to fancy." "What's that?" asked the Tired Citizen, accommodatingly. "The pants," replied the Cheerful Idiot, with loud laughter.—Baltimore American.

Ma in High Favor.

General Ma's vigilance has earned him high favor at Court, says the London Graphic, and both the Dowager Empress and the Emperor have lately been showering upon him testimonials of their approval. The other day their Majesties sent him two pieces of the finest gauze to make a suit of summer clothes, a number of scented pouches and a heavily-gilded fan, on one side of which is a water color painting by the imperial hand of the Dowager Empress herself, and on the other some verses written by the Emperor, with the heading, "Yu Kuo Kan-ch'eng," which means "A Wall of Defense to the Empire." Attentions like these are rare in China, and the talk in Mandarin circles is now all of General Ma and his splendid future.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED "SLEEP AS GOD'S GIFT."

The Rev. T. A. Nelson, D. D., Delivers a Stirring Address on the Subject "Sleeplessness," With an Appropriate Text of Comprehensive Meaning.

BROOKLYN, N. Y. At the Second Presbyterian Church Sunday morning the pastor, the Rev. T. A. Nelson, D. D., preached on the subject, "Sleeplessness." He took for his text, Daniel ii, part of first verse: "His spirit was troubled and sleep went from him," and said:

That line of the poet Young, "Sleep is nature's sweet restorer," like every other true poet's saying, was inspired. Borrowing light on him who first invented a certain says Sancho Panza, in "Don Quixote," and Coleridge exclaims in the "Ancient Mariner," "O, sleep, it is a gentle thing." Tennyson speaks of the mystery of golden sleep," and what a mystery indeed it is. It is the most interesting and the most perplexing of all physical and metaphysical mysteries. The mother bends fondly over her infant in the cradle and wonders what it means—the harmless, painless lapsing of a little one into unconsciousness by. Those little hands, now so quiet, not so busy most of the time, how beautiful, and still they are now. Those limbs composed in attitudes of such unconscious grace, lying on the pillow, how hard it generally is to keep them in order during wakeful hours. And how unspeakably serious it is to think how far the child is now beyond our reach. Who is it, when the face of the mother fades from the vision, that takes its soul in charge?

But when a man keeps the spectacle is more ugly still. Think of Caesar on his couch, his sight and eyes closed, his vision lost, his brain unworking and still. Think of Alexander in the night, looking as he finely looked in the coffin, dead. Imagine how David felt when he saw Saul entering the cave. Think of Cicero fast asleep. Think of the sleeping Christ lying asleep in the midst of the tempest, as if He were resting in the heart of God. When Christ turns away from us with closed eyes there is always abundant opportunity for the storm. We are only at peace while He is watchfully with us. While He sleeps not only is the light withdrawn, but the darkness is felt to the utmost; life's ship is tossed with the storm and we are threatened with mortal danger. A sleepless Christ will do me no good. A painted Christ will not be of the vaguest service in my life. A wooden crucifix or ivory cruse will not help me. It must be a wakeful Christ with every energy astir; power in every look and movement; an actual, positive, real and personal Christ. We are mocked by His figure; we are saved by His personality. It is Christ, not in the temporary paralysis of unconscious sleep, but Christ astir in watchful omnipotence that I need. Unless we nightly sink into sleep we are not prepared to live, and anything over which we have control which prevents our sleeping in proportion to our need should be esteemed guilt before God. Since the strength of our life belongs to Him we are not at liberty to waste it. Nevertheless, in our day we live in such fashion that, like the eastern monarch, our spirits are troubled and our sleep departs.

This has come about sometimes from the haste to get rich. People rise early and sit up late in their eager pursuit of wealth, and when the jading day is done at last and they lay their heads upon their pillows, sleep may fly from them and they may seek it in vain. Now this is not a light matter. There are few things more dispiriting and truly exhausting than the loss of natural sleep, to count hour after hour in feverish wakefulness, seeking forgetfulness which will not come.

Now what is the root of all this distress? The physician will doubtless diagnose it as owing to unhealthy excitement of brain and undue sensitiveness of the nervous system. But in its last analysis you will find as a general rule the great cause of this weary wakefulness, anxiety and misery is simply want of faith in God. It is because we are not able, as we ought to trust ourselves and all that concerns us to a sure providence, and many of you know that it is mental anxiety that breaks your rest. It is because you are trying to bear the burden and build the house yourselves, to keep the city yourselves, that you have the anxious hours. It is because you will plan too far ahead instead of letting each day bear its own burden; because you will ask what is to become of you and your children if such and such an event takes place; because you will take the future into your own hands instead of leaving it to Jesus.

But why should we not have faith in God? If we had, many of us, would not we sleep? If, once for all, you have intrusted your soul to His keeping you are sure that all things will go well; that nothing can go amiss; that God will keep you, angels will guide your footsteps and the Holy Spirit will dwell within you from hour to hour. You will then lay your head down upon your pillow and rise again, with the morning light, refreshed.

After trying to explain away our weary hours of sleeplessness on the basis of physical infirmity, we have to confess that the real source is found in the things that prey on our minds by day and break our rest at night, and mixed with those anxious thoughts there are the thoughts that will intrude themselves of a more serious character. In the still, wakeful hours, even the most heedless one is forced occasionally to think of Him before whom we must surely appear and give account of ourselves. It is impossible, then, quite to suppress a question as to where the soul will be when the body shall be down in its little bed, when all earthly things have faded from us. But if you can truly trust that it is well with you, that amid your deep unworthiness you are simply believing on your Saviour and are striving to grow like Him; that your task is appointed you of God, however humble your sphere, it is large enough to achieve character, if you can always feel that Christ is near and ready to help; that you and those near to you are provided for by Him and that you shall never want; if you have once for all learned whether awake or asleep that you are the Lord's and that you shall live together with Him, then surely you may sink into untroubled rest and sleep a refreshing and peaceful sleep.

But let me come closer still to the experience of some perhaps among professing Christians. You know that healthful sleep is our most peaceful state. You see human nature in that state in which it is most thoroughly free from all annoyance and trouble, and that is a symbol of the province. "Thou wilt keep him in perfect peace whose mind is stayed on Thee." That is a wonderful promise, but there is no blinking the fact that comparatively few even among those who claim to be true followers, ever experience it in its fulness. As a rule it is far from being perfect. One of the ancient schoolmen wrote in summing up the chief characteristics of life: "I entered this world in loneliness; I have lived in anxiety; I shall leave it in fear." That about expresses the situation of many of you. Look at the faces on the street. Almost every one is careworn and anxious. There is no doubt that care sits heavily on mankind. What is wrong? Simply this: That while God has promised peace and is ready to give it it must be received by faith. It goes without saying that the amount of peace and quiet we shall experience will be in proportion to our trust in God. If we were really able to trust God with everything instead of doing, as most Christians do, never trusting God and more than they can help and never being quite sure as to what He may do; if we would cast our cares upon Him instead of bearing them ourselves what unspeakable peace we should enjoy.

But we have not quite got at the root of the difficulty yet. Doubtless many of you are thinking that if some particular thing which vexes you were out of the way you would be all right and your peace would flow as a river. No, that is not the trouble. It is not some petty vexation that constitutes the bottomless pit. If you probe your hearts deeper you will discover that the real reason is that you are not right with God. You have never truly and heartily believed in Jesus. You have thought a good deal about Him, but you have never come to the point of the decisive step, and until you do that you will never experience a true and abiding peace. Until you do that you are standing in opposition to Jesus Christ, and are trying to say very practically, "I will not have this man to reign over me." Then you can have no peace.

I am not speaking now to those who are in a state of conscious sin, but to those who are trying to lead a moral life, and who are not conscious of any special sin. Conscience is lulled to sleep. Then suddenly he hears, as it were, an infernal burst of laughter—laughter of the soul—and the soul rarely hears this innermost laughter more than once without hearing it forever. The character afterward falls asleep and dreams. He enters the town; he comes upon many men standing in various postures, silent and immovable, as if dead. In unspeakable terror he tries to flee out of the lifeless city, when, looking back, he is appalled to see the inhabitants coming after him. They overtake him and hold him and cry: "Do you know that you have been dead for a long while?" Now and then, in polite society, in select communities, even in the fellowship, unknown to us, but not unknown to God, one comes upon one of these dead men, who have heard the infernal burst of laughter, who mocks and defies God and insults divine mercy. There is such a thing as spiritual suicide. We sometimes by their action or non-action take the life of the soul; they are dead to repentance and to hope, and at last they are dead to God. Thus men drive God forever from their eyelids, like Macbeth. When once the conviction seizes upon the soul then farewell to slumber and peace.

God forgive me if I have spoken too plainly, if I have misrepresented the gospel of truth, but if I have been true to the word of God then let him that hath ears hear what the spirit says: "To-day, if you will hear His voice, harden not your hearts." Lay hold upon eternal life. Then you may lay down in sleep, since when you awake you shall still be with Him; and whether you wake or not, you will be the Lord's and His forever.

God's Overture to Us.

Jehovah is the unchanging God. To-day He answers our longing desires, saying, "There is a place beside Me." He would not keep us at a distance, but always wants us to nearness. That place is the place of understanding. You must see the picture at its right angle if you would know its meaning. So it is in life. History and experience have their dark problems. The stained glass window is a mystery when seen from within by artificial light. But when the sunlight streams through it and transfigures it, we read its meaning. So God would let His light fall upon our path, our experience, and reveal His purposes while passing through their ever-changing vicissitudes. It is also the place of His presence. Jacob is much slower to leave Bethel than he was to run into it. The thought of Esau filled him with fear. But he found "the place beside God," and said, "Surely the Lord is in this place." The experiences of life may not alter, but they are very different when we are conscious of God's presence amid them. It is the place of transfiguration. The unbroken calm of God's peace, and the assurance of eternal security and success take possession of the soul and the outer life responds to this inner possession. This reserved place is the waiting blessing is God's overture to us on the threshold of another year. May the Spirit help us to stand beside Him and accept this unspeakable gift.

Keep Moral Ideas Clear.

We need, above all things, to keep our moral ideal clear and high. "Woe unto him that puts light for darkness and darkness for light, sweet for bitter," etc. Yes, woe unto him that confounds moral distinctions. Not our patriotism or our friendship must blind us to truth. Not for ourselves nor our country nor any party may we condone sin or falsehood or meanness. If a prophetess, a chosen messenger of God, could go wrong, how much more we. Dean Hodges is just publishing a book on "The Human Nature of the Saints." A companion volume might be "The False Judgments of Christian People." Bias is almost irresistible. Anything helps on that which we much care for, are apt to praise without looking closely at its moral quality. So doing, we dim our insight, extinguish the light of truth kindled within us, and by and by we may find ourselves walking in darkness more than light, perishing, perhaps, as the Jews perished among the enemies of the Lord.

He Completely Satisfies.

God is love! God is light! This message is also the most personal truth of our own personal experience. Oh, for our home intent! We can not adequately describe this consciousness to a man who never possessed it than we can describe a foundling from a workhouse the mysterious power of maternity to a happy home. Yes, we have within us that which satisfies! He satisfies! He will satisfy the completely tender to the completely tender, to pleasure and to pain. Whatever the intellectual doubts may be, we have a heart to stand upon before our enemies and against above. Without Him our souls miss their best fruition and their truest perfume. He is our sweet savor. We know the unutterable love of God resting over us.

Birmingham the Coming Pittsburg

A FEW years ago lots in Pittsburg which sold for a few hundred dollars are now selling at fabulous prices. Birmingham is now following in her footsteps, she makes the Iron, she makes the Steel, she makes the finished product from a Corless Engine to a wire nail.

The growth of every city, town and hamlet in every state south of Mason & Dixon's Line means a corresponding growth to Birmingham.

This means that every suburb of Birmingham is reaping and will continue to reap the benefit of this great expansion.

Now is the time to get in on the ground floor on IVANHOE LOTS. Only a few minutes ride on electric car from the center of Birmingham—high, dry and beautiful. Prices range from $85 to $160. Terms: $5.00 cash and $5.00 per month. No interest. Titles perfect.

Send $5.00 and let us select you a good lot. You cannot lose on a proposition like this.

GOOD ROADS

Progress of the Idea.

THE wave of road improvement seems to be working in all parts of the United States. An Eastern man who has recently been on a trip through Texas says the enthusiasm with which the people have taken up the "good roads idea" is wonderful. In some counties they are in danger of "going wild" on the subject. Funds are being raised mainly by issue of county bonds.

In Pennsylvania, the State aid idea has taken firm hold. The plan just adopted is for the State, the county, and the township to co-operate in the work of building and improving the roads. The State is to pay two-thirds of the expense, and the county and township in which the work is done each one-sixth of the expense. The State has made available for this purpose $6,500,000 to be expended during the next few years.

The principle involved in the State aid plan is exactly the same as that involved in the scheme for national aid which has developed such popularity recently. The fundamental idea of both is that road improvement is not merely a matter of local interest and responsibility, but a matter of interest and concern to the whole people; or, to put it another way, road building is coming to be viewed as a species of "internal improvement," belonging in the same class as river and harbor improvements.

Another reason why National and State aid are becoming so popular is the realization that unless something of the kind is adopted, the burden of bad roads, like the poor, will be always with us. The bottomless roads of the country constitute a sort of "Slough of Despond," in which the people are destined to flounder until some one comes along to help them out. In fact the expense for improving the roads in many localities is a burden which the local population is wholly unable to bear. It is believed that whenever the State or the nation reaches out a helping hand to such communities, they will grasp it and bend all their energies to the great work of improving their highways, but they will never undertake the job without help from the outside.

The frequent rains have made the roads almost impassable in a majority of the local communities throughout the Eastern half of the United States. Perhaps this is one of the reasons why the good roads idea is uppermost in so many minds.

Ideal Earth Roadbed.

How may we, in a cheap and efficient manner, construct and maintain an earth roadbed? The plan is simple; too simple for ready acceptance, yet as efficient as it is simple.

A simple drag is drawn along one side of the roadbed at the proper time to smooth off the surface, filling the ruts and pushing the earth slightly toward the centre of the road and pressing it into all crevices. This is done after each wet spell, just as the surface is beginning to dry. This produces a smooth surface, the ruts and tracks are obliterated. The vehicles that enter upon the road go promiscuously over it, and compact the surface as completely as if it were rolled by a heavy roller. In fact, a wagon with 1¼-inch tires, giving six inches of impact upon the surface, and with a total weight of only 1250 pounds produces as great pressure upon the surface touched as a ten-ton roller. An ordinary two-horse wagon load would produce a pressure equivalent to a twenty-ton roller. The only question is, therefore, how much of the surface will be thus reached and rolled. Experience shows that in a roadbed kept smooth for a considerable period, say six months, every part of it gets its quota of rolling. Then, again, the smooth roadbed thus compacted sheds the water that falls upon it almost as easily as a shingle roof. Hence the chance for saturation is reduced to a minimum. It is stated that this compacted condition is destroyed by frost. But it should be remembered that the expansive force of frost is in direct ratio to the water content. A saturation of less than 15 per cent. would not when frozen exert expansive force enough to lessen materially the cohesive force or widen the interstices.

Roadways cared for in the manner suggested have remained solid enough for the past five years to bear up heavy traffic during every day of every year, the only mud being one or two inches on the surface, and that was quickly hardened after the rains and promptly smoothed, thus restoring its former fine condition. All kinds and sorts of clays and even sticky gumbo of the Missouri River bottoms have been successfully treated this way so as to remain good throughout the extraordinary wet season.—Good Roads Magazine.

Costly Greatness.

Mr. Prettyman, of England, in reply to a question of the government lately, stated that the average annual cost of maintaining in commission a first-class battleship of 13,000 tons is: Pay of wages of officers and crew, £40,360; victualling, £14,004; coal, £23,600; stores and repairs, £9348; naval ordnance stores, £5550—a total cost of £94,000, or $470,000.—Boston Globe.

WOMEN AWAKEN EASIER.

The Difficulties of the Hotel Clerk in Rousing Men.

"It is immeasurably harder to awaken men in the morning than it is women." George W. Collins, hotel proprietor, informs me. "A tap or two at a woman's door in the morning is sufficient. No matter how late she may have retired, no matter how exhausted she may have been, no matter how faint the 'yes' in answer to the knock, that comes from the bed, you can bank on it that within a half hour or so that woman will walk into the dining room bright-eyed and cheerful; but with a man—well, it's different.

"A man may leave a call for 7 o'clock in the morning with the warning that he must be up at that hour. A few minutes before 7 you detail a boy for the purpose and tell him not to stop pounding until the man awakes. The room may be on the top floor, but you can hear the thump, thump, thump on the door 'way down in the office. Does the man wake with a faint 'yes' and scramble out of bed? Not he. The boy knocks until his knuckles are sore, and then suddenly a stentorian voice roars from the room, 'Yes, yes, what in blazes is the matter with you? Do you think I'm dead?' The boy retires, turns in his report at the office and goes to ease his hand in cold water.

"Three hours later a swollen-eyed individual with wrinkles in his brow walks up to the desk. 'I thought I left a call here for 7 o'clock in the morning.' 'You did, and the bellboy woke you promptly at 7.' 'That's a little too strong,' is the answer, and after you've argued with him for half an hour you haven't convinced him that he was actually awakened as he had ordered. So it goes day after day. The women get up promptly in response to a call, while the men invariably turn over to have another nap."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WISE WORDS.

Laziness always lays the blame on luck.

God's designs promise us more than our desires.

If woman lost us Paradise, she alone can restore it.—J. G. Whittier.

I am always content with that which happens, for I think that what God chooses is better than what I choose.—Epictetus.

Intellect may give keenness of discernment; Love alone gives largeness to the nature, some share in the comprehensiveness of God.—John Hamilton Thom.

Without thought, grave, deliberate, self-conscious thought, life will run shallow in every channel. Every active duty needs to build foundations downward through habits of quiet thought.

It is an excellent plan to have some place to go to be quiet when things vex or grieve us. There are a good many hard times in this life of ours, but we can always bear them if we ask help in the right way.—Miss Alcott.

Let love not visit you as a transient guest, but be the constant temper of your soul. Let it pant in your heart, let it sparkle in your eyes, let it shine in all your actions and let there be in your tongue the law of kindness.

Why so Formal?

A member of the Metropolitan Club of Washington tells this story on General Miles:

The General was engaged in conversation with a number of friends in the billiard room of the Metropolitan when a man having a very slight acquaintance with General Miles approached. The man evidently had been drinking, for as he stepped beside the General he slapped him on the back and in a loud tone exclaimed:

"Well, Miles, old man, how are you?"

For an instant a frown shadowed the face of the officer; but it soon gave way to a quizzical look, so he replied to the offender:

"Don't be so formal, old chap! Why don't you call me Nelse?"—New York Press.

Dr. J. Samuel McCue, ex-mayor of Charlottesville, convicted of murder in the first degree, carries upward of $70,000 life insurance. Insurance men want to know whether the companies are liable in the event of McCue's execution.

Residents of Paonia, Colo., claim that the largest apple in the world was raised in that district this year. It is of the Wolf river variety and weighs 31 1-4 ounces.

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains, and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—MISS GUILA GANNON, 359 Jones St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.

It is clearly shown in this young lady's letter that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will certainly cure the sufferings of women; and when one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which we are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtue of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all; and for the absolute cure of all kinds of female ills no substitute can possibly take its place. Women should bear this important fact in mind when they go into a drug store, and be sure not to accept anything that is claimed to be "just as good" as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for no other medicine for female ills has made so many actual cures.

How Another Sufferer Was Cured.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I cannot praise your wonderful remedies enough, for they have done me more good than all the doctors I have had. For the last eight years and more I suffered with female troubles, was very weak, could not do my housework, also had nervous prostration. Some days I would remain unconscious for a whole day and night. My neighbors thought I could never recover, but, thanks to your medicine, I now feel like a different woman.

"I feel very grateful to you and will recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to all. It has now been four years since I had the last spell of nervous prostration. I only weighed ninety-eight pounds at that time; now I weigh one hundred and twenty-three.

"I consider your Vegetable Compound the finest remedy made. Thanking you many times for the benefit I received from your medicine, I remain, Yours truly, MRS. J. H. FARMER, 2800 Elliott Ave., St. Louis, Mo."

Remember Mrs. Pinkham's advice is free and all sick women are foolish if they do not ask for it. She speaks from the widest experience, and has helped multitudes of women.

$5000 FORFEIT if we cannot forthwith produce the original letters and signatures of above testimonials, which will prove their absolute genuineness.

Singing Fish.

The ucrevia, a little six inch chub variety of the lagoons of Italy, sticks its head above the water and sings a dainty song equal to that of some species of warbling birds. Trigla hirundo (the sea swallow) is known to every fisherman of the Danube and the Rhine by the peculiar grunting noise it makes. Trigla nolitans makes a whining noise like a puppy, while the ocievia gather in bands to hold regular concerts, which no doubt originated the fable of the sirens. Some naturalists have likened the note of the gurnard to that of the cuckoo. There are many different kinds of fish which give utterance to more or less musical notes. The maigre, a large sea fish, when swimming in shoals, utters a purring noise that may be heard from a depth of twenty fathoms. Lieutenant White, in his "Voyage to the China Seas," relates that himself and himself were extremely astonished by hearing certain murical notes from beneath and around the vessel. They were various, like the base notes of an organ, the sound of bells, the croaking of frogs and a pervading twang which the imagination might have attributed to the vibrations of some enormous harp. For a time the mysterious music swelled upon them and finally formed a universal chorus all round, but as the vessel ascended the river the sounds diminished in strength and soon ceased.—Home Magazine.

Real Turkish Coffee.

Here is a Turkish receipt for making Turkish coffee obtained in the Syrian quarter of New York, where the finest coffee in the world is sold at 5 cents a cup in restaurants which are exact duplicates of those in Smyrna and Beirut:

Put three lumps of sugar into a little pot, turn in the water and bring it to a boil. Then put in two teaspoonfuls of very finely ground Mocha coffee. As soon as the froth rises lift the pot and tap the bottom until the froth disappears. Do this three times. Then turn the coffee into delicate china cups, giving each cupful a share of froth.

The coffee should be freshly roasted and ground, and the grounds should be so fine as to pass the palate unnoticed. Turks always drink the grounds, considering them, indeed, to be the best part of a cup of coffee.

Not A Sick Day Since.

"I was taken severely sick with kidney trouble. I tried all sorts of medicines, none of which relieved me. One day I saw an ad. of your Electric Bitters and determined to try that. After taking a few doses I felt relieved, and soon thereafter was entirely cured, and have not seen a sick day since. Neighbors of mine have been cured of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Liver and Kidney troubles and General Debility." This is what B. F. Bass, of Fremont, N. C. writes. Only 50c. at Clanton Drug co., Upchurch Drug Co.

Society Enemies.

A leader of New York society said recently: "It is almost impossible to give a large dinner any more. There are too many feuds and quarrels, and women who hate each other are the cause of too much embarrassment to a hostess. Of course they try to gloss their enmity for the time, but the result is worse than open warfare. At one dinner a cabinet officer sat between two great women of fashion. He talked to one and then to the other and tried to draw them into a three cornered conversation. The women obstinately refused to exchange a word, and finally the man—and he was supposed to be a diplomat—introduced them. A chill followed. They had known each other for twenty years, had been friends for ten and loathed each other the other ten."

Three Black Fridays.

The American Black Friday was Sept. 24, 1869, when Jay Gould and James Fisk, Jr., attempted to create a corner on the gold market. The whole country was in a ferment for several days, but the day was saved by the report that Secretary Boutwell had thrown $4,000,000 on the market. The [illegible] Fridays are two—one the [illegible] which the news reached [illegible] that the young pretender Charles Edward had arrived at Derby, the second May 11, 1866, when the failure of Overend, Guerney & Co., London, the day before was followed by widespread financial ruin.

The Charm of His Hamlet.

Concerning Hamlet as played by the late Wilson Barrett a little story is told in the greenrooms where the actor was known. One of the ancients was talking of the Hamlets he had seen on the stage. "Well," he said, "I've seen dozens of 'em, but of all the hactors wot played Hamlet give me Barrett. He was always done ten minutes afore any of the others."

Storrs, a druggist, at 297 Main street, New Britain, Conn., says: "Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is giving such universal satisfaction and is so surely becoming the positive relief and subsequent cure for this distressing ailment, I feel that I am always sure to satisfy and gratify my customers by recommending it to them. I write this to show how well the remedy is spoken of here." Kodol Dyspepsia cure was discovered after years of scientific experiments and will positively cure all stomach troubles. Only Make a Bad Matter Worse.

Perhaps you have never thought of it but the fact must be apparent to everyone that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old fashioned pills only makes a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of a medicine. Try a 25 cent bottle of them. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

BILIOUSNESS AND CONSTIPATION CURED BY THEDFORD'S BLACK-DRAUGHT

Because the liver is a neglected people suffer with constipation, biliousness, headaches and fevers. Colds attack the lungs and contagious diseases take hold of the system. It is safe to say that if the liver were always kept in proper working order, illness would be almost unknown.

Thedford's Black-Draught is so successful in curing such sickness because it is without a rival as a liver regulator. This great family medicine is not a strong and drastic drug, but a mild and healthful laxative that cures constipation and may be taken by a mere child without possible harm.

The healthful action on the liver cures biliousness. It has an invigorating effect on the kidneys. Because the liver and kidneys do not work regularly, the poisonous acids along with the waste from the bowels get back into the blood and virulent contagion results.

Timely treatment with Thedford's Black-Draught removes the dangers which lurk in constipation, liver and kidney troubles, and will positively forestall the inroads of Bright's disease, for which disease in advanced stages there is no cure. Ask your dealer for a 25c. package of Thedford's Black-Draught.

Editor Banner: I take this opportunity to express my heartfelt gratitude to the good people of this neighborhood for the kindness shown to me and mine during the protracted sickness of my daughter, also during the sickness and death of my son-in-law. The good people of this vicinity will ever have a warm place in our hearts.

J. J. GRANT.

Maplesville, Nov. 21, 1904

Editor Banner—There is still great excitement here about the shooting of Mr. Davenport and until yet we haven't any sure track of the negro, Jim Harden, that did the shooting. Some think one thing about his whereabouts and some think another, and so there are none of us that know. It is Mr. E. G. Ensign's opinion that he is still around Maplesville. Mr Ensign has certainly taken an active part in trying to capture this negro. As Sheriff Morgan was in town early Saturday morning we hope and believe that he is going to make a greater effort to capture him and probably will bring him in soon.

The business of the Twin Tree Lumber Co. is on a boom; Mr. E. G. Ensign, the general manager, certainly is a fine business man. We also have a young man here, Mr. J. W. Mitchell, who came here and went to work as a common laborer and is now yard foreman, and carries his business on nicely. Also Mr. E. H. Huff, who came here and went to work in the planing mill as helper, is now planing mill foreman: and there is Mr. I. M. Tidwell, who came here two years ago and went to work as lumber grader and is now general manager of the lumber grading, stock shed and shipping department. We certainly do like to see young men build up and improve themselves this way.

Maplesville is a healthy little town and we have one of the best common schools in the country. Our teacher, Miss Celestia Dunlap, is an exception. OLD HUNDRED.

Rockymount.

Our school is progressing nicely, we have 31 students and expect more next week. We have on honor roll Misses Cora Green, Emma Lowery and Mattie Rodgers. Willie Lowery and Mike Harps made good in deportment last week; hope for more next time. Mr. George Wheeler is the teacher.

SUDDEN DEATH AT CLANTON.

On Monday morning Milton Frazier left the house apparently in good health to catch a horse in the lot, when he was seen to fall down and when assistance reached him it was found that he was dead. His horse had run away with him a few days previously and presumably he received some internal injury. He was a young man of about 22, well liked by his companions, who are saddened at his sudden death.

"In the midst of life we are in death," and when a bright young life is suddenly cut off we can only sorrow with the bereaved parents and relatives who mourn for their loved one.

The Best Liniment.

"Chamberlain's Pain Balm is considered the best liniment on the market, write Post & Bliss, of Georgia, Vt. No other liniment will heal a cut or bruise so promptly. No other affords such quick relief from rheumatic pains. No other is so valuable for deep seated pains like lame back and pains in the chest. Give this liniment a trial and you will never wish to be without it. Sold by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Maplesville.

Our town was honored by a visit and sermon from our most excellent preacher, Bro. Shores, who though superannuated, is working in the vineyard of the Lord.

Mr. McGuire is visiting his daughter, Mrs. Claughton.

Mr. Blalack is at home again from Selma.

Miss Lula Moseley of Orrville has been visiting her aunt here, Mrs. P. B. DuBose.

Little Miss Algia DuBose is at home again from a visit to her sister, Mrs. Fuller.

On the night of the 12th the clerk of the weather seemed to have missent a pouch of snow, as only a little sprinkle of it fell here during the night that none of the early birds got a glimpse of.

Beautiful Miss Colette Ricketts has returned from a visit to her aunt in Virginia.

Mr. Ensign and wife of Binghampton, N. Y., parents of our good citizens here of that name, have come with the family here to spend the winter.

Mr. John Ensign is off on a hunting trip in Marengo county.

Some of our best citizens have been considerably stirred up the past week with court doings. Our gratis advice (does not cost a cent, or your correspondent would not be so liberal with it) is to "Keep out of law and rainy weather."

Mrs. Evaline Bowline has gone to Selma to see her new grandson.

Dr. Frank DuBose and wife have been to Montgomery and are much pleased with their purchases.

Dave Garner and wife and beautiful little Clay of Selma are visiting Mr. Blalack's family here.

We have been having most delightful weather, bright and cool. Our beautiful Indian summer seems loathe to leave us this season.

Sincere wishes that this bracing cool weather will restore ye Editor to perfect health. SUBSCRIBER.

Bethsalem.

As we have not heard a word from this place we will give you some of the events of this place.

The farmers are about done gathering.

Prof. C. J. Eiland's school is progressing nicely.

Mr. Ben Downs and brother of this place happened to the misfortune of losing seven bales of cotton by fire last Friday evening.

We are sorry to learn that Mr. James Moore's baby is very sick. Mrs. Popwell is also sick.

Miss Nettie Hathcock spent Sunday at Mrs. Brigance's.

Mr. Wiley Friday and wife visited this place recently.

Miss Lizzie Brigance and sister Jessie, visited Mrs. Culp Sunday.

Rev. J. E. Moore filled his regular appointment Sunday and gave us an excellent sermon.

THREE OF THE GIRLS.

Maplesville School

We have a good school at Maplesville now, much to the delight of everyone. There are about sixty pupils on roll and they are all studying hard, from the tiny tots of six or seven to the bright eyed youths of seventeen and eighteen.

We have a good teacher, Miss Celestia Dunlap, whom everybody likes and we all like to come to school.

There have been a few funny things happened in school. A few notes have been found but Miss Celestia just came right down and said that note writing must be stopped.

Our school room is very small but there is room for all the pupils by putting three on a seat.

We want to make money to have the school room fixed up but the people of Maplesville don't take much interest in the school.

Shades Mountain.

After many days of sickness I take up my pen to write to the Banner. I can truly sympathize with you Mr. Editor, I know now what a hard time you had. I was taken sick on the 7th of July and am still confined to the house, but hope to be out soon. I wish to thank the good people of Shades Mountain for their kindness to me during my long spell of sickness. I can never forget them, they were so good to me.

Mrs. Elmore Dixon has returned from a visit to relatives in Chilton.

Mrs. H. Northcut of Chilton, has been visiting relatives on Shades Mountain.

Miss Francis Crenshaw of Verbena and Miss Alma Urquhart of Birmingham have been visiting Mrs. G. A. Northington's family.

Miss G. M. Brown has returned from a pleasant visit to relatives and friends in South Alabama.

Miss Fannie Haralson of Montgomery, who has been visiting the World's Fair, has stopped over on her way home and is visiting Miss Dollie Northington.

Rev. J. E. McLeod of East Lake has been called by the Summit church of Shades Mountain and will preach for us another year.

Mrs. Turner of Hartsell, is the guest of relatives here.

We were very sorry to hear of the death of Rev. A. L. Patillo and Prof. Armstrong of Verbena. They were two of Chilton's best citizens.

You do not know how bad I felt when I heard the Democrats in Chilton were defeated, but I can tell you that the Pops have elected some good men in Chilton. B.

EVERYBODY RECOMMENDS
Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic
AFTER USING IT.

Perote, Ala. May, 7, 1901.
I have not been without Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic since it was introduced in this section. I consider it the best all-round medicine I ever used, and I am glad to recommend it. A. B. LAKEY.

Opelika, Ala., May 12, 1900.
Having used Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic in my family and known of its use for a number of years, I take pleasure in recommending it as a valuable household medicine. Its efficacy as a dressing for wounds, burns, etc., is really wonderful; promoting the flesh and allowing it to heal without inflamation or suppuration. It is very popular wherever well known. J. F. PEARSON, Pastor Baptist Church.

Hurtsboro, Ala., May 9, 1901.
Too much cannot be said in favor of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic as a safe and pleasant family medicine. I keep it in my home all the time to use in case of accident or sudden sickness C. E. BORUM, R. R. Agt.

Tuskegee, Ala., May 15, 1900.
I have used Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic for wounds, burns, and other injuries with perfect satisfaction in every instance. R. H. MOTLEY.

Fitzpatrick, Ala, Feb. 16, 1901.
I cheerfully recommend Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic as a most excellent remedy for wounds and burns.

When farm roads are laid with steel tracks, making it possible to haul four times as large loads as at present; when rapid transit upon interurban lines, pure water and all that; what is the use of living, not staying, in the city? The deal to be realized in the future, in the city for business, the country for living.

The United States General Appraisers have recognized, officially, the medicinal virtues of dried lizards, which are in high repute among many Celestial residents of this country. Hing Lum Chon imported some lizards and Collector Stranaghan classified them as a medicinal preparation. Hing Lum Chon protested, and carried the case to the Board of General Appraisers. They confirmed the classification, and thus upheld Mr. Stranahan's title as an expert in the Chinese pharmacopoeia.

There is, mirabile dictu! an owner of a 31g twenty horse-power automobile in this city whose regard for human life is such that he declines to be his own chauffeur, says the New York Press. If any killing is to be done he does not care to have his hand on the steering gear. Not that he has ever injured a child, or even a cat or dog; but he is determined that every precaution shall be taken to prevent any accident to life or limb. Therefore, he hires an expert chauffeur and rides beside him.

An Indian judge was confronted recently by a docket having fifty-seven divorce cases. He was a hardened old jurist, but he was appalled. The result of his emotion was that he issued a letter stating that Indiana was cursed with the divorce evil, and recommending some very sensible changes in the divorce laws. In recent years Indiana has not been notorious as a rapid-fire divorce state, says the New York Tribune in commenting on the incident; but this may have been due to the unrivaled position in the divorce business attained by the Dakotas.

It is vitally important that railroad engineers should have accurate timepieces, is the opinion of the New York Press. One is seldom seen with an expensive watch, unless it has been presented to him by the company as a memorial of long and faithful service, or for some deed of heroism. A dealer tells me that the works in engineers' watches are of standard make, costing the uniform price of $19. The style of the case depends on the purchasing ability of the buyer, the price ranging from $2 to as many hundreds as one wants to waste on gold and gems. Most cases are silver. For many years the works were manufactured by a [illegible] west. Ere long wireless [illegible] will be used in engine cabs, so that the time all over the road will be the same to a fraction of a second. There will be fewer accidents then.

The late Senator George F. Hoar gave to young men this advice: "First—Do not hurry. For those that want to work well there is time. The wise disregard hustle and hustle and place thoroughness above speed. Second—Remember that there is something more to live for than money. Turn from the race after the world's goods, the mad fight for greed, to the love of the higher things. You may devote yourself to the practical arts, but remember that there is something nobler to human life. Third—I advise you to read some author every day. Read him so well, soak yourself so thoroughly with him, bathe in his wisdom so often that you will emerge from him as from a sparkling fountain of purity." Some one asked Senator Hoar what he would advise men to read. "Read the lives of Thomas Jefferson, Washington, Lincoln, Wendell Phillips, John Bright and Henry George and other men that have stood for something and meant something," he said.

GAS EXPLOSION

In Chicago Destroys Life and Property. Windows and Walls Wrecked Nearby

EIGHT ARE DEAD

And Several Injured By Gas Explosion in Chicago.

Many lives are believed to have been lost and a number of men were probably fatally injured in the explosion of five small purifying tanks. There were from twelve to twenty explosions.

It is reported that a brick building containing five tanks and twenty workmen completely collapsed burying the men and crushing them to death.

The explosions were so forceful that for a radius of half a mile windows were broken and walls of buildings thrown out of plumb. For fear that the explosions might continue and cause the explosion of the two big tanks which hold millions of feet of gas, no one would venture near the ruins of the plants.

Persons living in the vicinity deserted their homes and stores, left their stores, all fleeing with what valuables they could seize.

To prevent the explosion of the gas in the mammoth tanks, Superintendent Ralph Wells ordered the waste pipes opened. These pipes run outside of the plant and in a short time the big tanks were discharging the gas into the air. This was a dangerous undertaking, but it was chanced and proving successful, prevented a larger destruction of property.

JUBILEE EXPOSITION.

Movement Started to Hold One in Chattanooga in 1905.

At Chattanooga announcement is made of a formal movement to hold there in 1915 a world's fair to be known as the semi-centennial peace jubilee exposition, commemorating the end of the war between the states. It is stated that assurances of aid from the government and various organizations has been secured. The announcement explaining the nature of the exposition has this to say:

"Chattanooga is the geographical center of the scenes of the civil war; it was the most strategical point, and is immediately surrounded by some of the greatest battlefields of that war. With the great national interest that centers here, the United States government would no doubt contribute generously to such an exposition. It has had for years in contemplation the erection of a peace memorial arch at Chicago, which is to surpass anything of the kind in the world. This could be finished and dedicated in 1915."

Making Iron.

After being banked temporarily for several weeks on account of scarcity of labor and coke, furnace No. 4 of the Tennessee company at Robertstown was relighted Thursday. This makes two of the furnaces of the Bessemer division that are in operation and preparations are under way to relight Nos. 1 and 2 in the next few days.

Says They Are Forgeries.

Notes aggregating $12,000, on which appears the name, as maker and indorser, of Mrs. Fannie McCue, for whose murder former Mayor Samuel J. McCue, of Charlottesville, Va., is now under sentence of death, are due, and have been presented to the administrator of the estate, who informed the holder that the signatures were not made by Mrs McCue.

Cases Dismissed.

Cases of forty-three men who had been charged with complicity in the Independence depot explosion and the Victor riot of June 6 last, have been dismissed.

Since the election about fifty men who had been deported have returned to the district and have not been molested.

Call For Government Deposits.

Secretary Shaw has announced a call upon national banks holding government deposits to the amount of 25 per cent of their holdings, 10 per cent to be paid on or before January 15th next, and 15 per cent on or before March 15th next. This the secretary estimates will bring into the treasury about $25,000,000.

RUSSIAN NAVY.

To Be Completely Rehabilitated—Shipbuilding Interests Will Profit.

America is likely to profit both directly and indirectly from the execution of the large naval program which Russia is now elaborating.

The vital importance of the sea power has been Russia's bitterest lesson of the war, and the government is determined that the maintenance of the empire's position in the future as a first-class power will be impossible without an adequate navy.

If the losses the Pacific fleet has already sustained should be followed by disaster to Admiral Rojestvensky's squadron it will be necessary not only to rebuild the whole navy, but to increase its strength. Vickers Sons & Maxim and Armstrong, Whitworth & Son, limited, of England, have already made advances, but owing to the anti-English sentiment British firms are not meeting with a cordial reception. The disposition is to turn toward France, Germany and the United States, and a great plant at Libau or on the banks of the Neva, directed by American brains, and possibly an association of French and German enterprises, is one of the possibilities of the near future.

SYNOD ADJOURNS.

Will Build College at Once—Next Session at Montgomery.

The Alabama Synod of the Presbyterian church adjourned Friday after selecting Montgomery as the next place of meeting. The directors of the Synodical college which will be located at Anniston, were instructed to begin the erection of a $30,000 building at once. The board of directors of the college is as follows:

Dr. J. W. Stagg, Birmingham, chairman; Dr. D. N. McLaughlin, Anniston; Judge T. W. Coleman, Eutaw; Col. Caldwell Bradshaw, Birmingham; Hon. Frank P. Glass, Montgomery; T. C. Carmichael, Dothan; Hon. John B. Knox, Anniston; Capt. J. M. Elliott, Gadsden; Capt. W. P. Weatherly, Anniston; Rev. Neal Anderson, Montgomery; Rev. W. E. McIlwain, president ex-officio member.

Selma was released from subscription to the fund to amount of $5,000.

Fee System Scored.

Dr. Shirley Bragg, physician member of the state convict board, in his report to President Carmichael, says:

"The fee system, so far as the convict is concerned, is a blot upon the fair name of the state. Men, women and children alike are made to feel its withering blight. It does not spare the old man tottering on the verge of the grave nor does it respect the child scarcely old enough to leave its mother's care. Perhaps some day this will be changed and the county convict placed on the same plane with the state convict."

The county convict system is condemned. Many old decrepid men are sent to the convict camp he says that should be in poor houses, but neighborhoods must be rid of beggars and officials have their fees if it takes the last drop of blood from suffering humanity.

The conditions of the state convicts are reported good with the death rate low.

Duncan Petition Denied.

The supreme court denied the petition of ex parte Frank Duncan for writ of error, because there was filed with the papers no transcript of the record of the Jefferson county court. Duncan, who is under sentence of death, November 25 being the day set for his execution for the killing of a Birmingham policeman, made the plea before the criminal court of Jefferson county that certain errors had been made and he seeks a new trial as a result of these shortcomings alleged to exist, and also by reason of failure to have his case properly looked into when he escaped.

Cockrell to Succeed.

A reliable report says that the president will appoint Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, to the civil service commission to succeed the present democratic member, General John C. Black, who will be made pension commissioner.

Senator Cockrell was the only democrat who voted to confirm the nomination of General Leonard Wood.

Tear Down Chinatown.

With a capital stock of $25,000,000 a San Francisco company has been incorporated for the purpose of building a model oriental city on the bay shore at South San Francisco and moving the Chinese quarters to that place, and further to transform the present district known as Chinatown into a residence neighborhood.

Creosote Works Burned.

Wednesday night the Hattiesburg, Miss. Creosote works was completely wiped out by fire in spite of all efforts to save it. The loss was $20,000; $5,000 insurance. The fire was discovered too late for the department to be of much use.

Labor Federation.

Four hundred and eighty delegates, representing 2,400,000 members of labor unions, met Monday in Lyric hall, San Francisco, in the twenty-fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor.

E. W. Judd, now a resident of Everett, Wash., claims that it was in his parlor, near Ripon, Wis., that the formation of the republican party was decided upon.

UNCONSTITUTIONAL.

That is What Circuit Judge Decided Concerning the Dispensary Law.

APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

Uniontown Case May Create a Precedent That Will Affect Entire State.

Judge Daniel Partridge of the circuit court has been hearing arguments in the qu. warranto proceedings brought by E. H. R. Glass, Jr., of Uniontown, against the municipality of Uniontown requiring the latter to show by what right of law it conducted a dispensary.

The city, of course, set up that it was operating by right of law passed by the last legislature, and Mr. Glass, through his attorneys, attacked the constitutionality of the local law, setting up that sufficient notice had not been given as required by the constitution. The consolidated court bill of Jefferson was cited as a precedent the insufficiency of notice being that the substance of the bill passed was not set out.

Contrary to this the municipality set up that the supreme court had defined the meaning of the word dispensary, and when it was cited that the bill would provide for a dispensary the substance of the measure was immediately conveyed to every mind.

Judge Partridge held that the local law was unconstitutional, and therefore the city of Uniontown had no lawful right to conduct a dispensary. An appeal will be taken to the supreme court, now in session, and pending the decision of that tribunal bond will be given and the dispensary continued in operation.

The legal fight between Uniontown and Mr. Glass has grown out of the latter disposing of liquor in the city and having been arrested and fined in the mayor's court.

He appealed to the circuit court on the latter charge, and was dismissed by Judge Partridge owing to there being no law on the city statutes against his conducting the saloon. There are pending indictments against him in the circuit court which will be nullified should the supreme court affirm the decision of Judge Partridge, declaring the local dispensary law unconstitutional.

Kennedy's Staff.

Lieutenant-Colonel H. B. Kennedy, commanding officer of the third regiment, Alabama National guard, has announced his staff.

The order naming the staff is as follows.

Headquarters, Third Alabama Regiment, A. N. G.

Birmingham, Ala., Nov. 19, 1904.

General Orders No. 4—

The following staff appointments are hereby announced by the commanding officer, Third Infantry, A. N. G.:

Major and surgeon—Eugene Northington.

Captain and adjutant—Houston Smith, Oxford.

Captain and quartermaster—Arthur Welborn, Anniston.

Captain and commissary—Lacey Edmundson, Bessemer.

Captain and chief of ordnance—W. W. Smith, Decatur.

Captain and guard instructor—Earle Evans, Woodlawn.

Captain and inspector rifle practice—Cecil Lacey, Jasper.

Captain and assistant surgeon—Fred Boyd, Talladega.

Captain and assistant surgeon—M. J. Williams, Oxford.

Double Track.

West of Birmingham on the Southern railroad considerable double track is being constructed in the mining district.

The Southern is receiving new freight cars at the rate of forty a day, an order for 5,500 having been placed some time ago. Of this number ordered, 1,000 are to be steel cars.

Conant Appointed.

Luther Conant, Jr., of New York, has been appointed a special examiner in the bureau of corporations, department of commerce and labor. Mr. Conant has been for some years financial editor of the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin, of New York.

Postoffice Items.

A rural route has been ordered established December 15 at Coffee Springs, Geneva county, serving 432 people and 108 houses.

Postmasters appointed—Coal City, St. Clair county, Charles R. Fay; Maybrick, Etowah county, Mollie Gramling; Sepulga, Conecuh county, Thos. A. Jones.

The United States mails carry in a year 8,500,000,000 pieces of matter, at a cost of $150,000,000 and if the rural delivery service, which now serves one-seventh of our people at an expense of $22,000,000, were eliminated, the postoffice would be self-supporting.

The practice of naming horses after eminent persons is common in England and France, but in Russia it is considered disrespectful.

SOLDIERS' CLOTHING.

Widows or Corporations to Be Given the Work?

Gen G. W. Davis, judge advocate general of the army, submitted an opinion to Acting Secretary Oliver in regard to the legal points involved in the controversy over the award of the contract for making soldier's clothing at the Schuylkill arsenal, near Philadelphia, and the opinion was immediately forwarded to President Roosevelt for his information and guidance. The main question involved is whether the quartermaster general of the army is authorized to give this work to certain seamstresses in Philadelphia, widows and orphans of soldiers and sailors at the rate of 75 cents for each pair of trousers when the same work can be done by contract for 37 1-2 cents per pair, in view of the general statutes that such work shall be open to general competition and given to the lowest responsible bidder.

The opinion of General Davis has not yet been made public, but it is understood he holds that the materials should be purchased as other materials by advertisements and bids, but the manufacture of the article may be as the secretary of war in his discretion decides.

Fatal Row.

Tom Pace, a well known citizen of Sheffield, a man with a wife and six children, and an employe of one the furnaces, was shot and killed. Cal Byrd, a stranger, who resides in the Iuka, Miss., neighborhood, said to have done the shooting, made his escape. The tragedy occurred at a saloon and there were no eye-witnesses to it. The two men were in the rear part of the saloon and the barkeeper heard two shots fired, saw Pace fall. Byrd rushed to the door in which the bartender was standing, and commanded him to let him out or he would kill him.

Negro College.

It has been formerly announced that on Tuesday afternoon, November 29th, work will begin on the $200,000 negro college to be erected at Mason City by the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Education society. The society now has the funds in hand and it is expected that the work will be rapidly pushed to completion.

Bank of Cuba.

The Bank of Cuba has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state. The capital stock is $25,000, with $15,000 paid in. The place of business is Cuba, Sumter county.

Fatal Trolley Wreck.

At Chattanooga, Tenn., in a head-on collision on the Rapid Transit electric car line one man was killed and five persons were seriously injured.

The officials of the company say that the collision was due to the dense fog prevailing at the time the accident occurred.

Child Burned.

The three-year-old daughter of J. S. Norred, of Pineapple, came very near burning to death.

She was under the house and called to an older sister to come an extinguish the flames. Upon reaching her the older sister found the little one's clothing all ablaze. The family can not account for the fire unless the child had a match playing with it. The doctors think she will recover.

Another Judge Wanted.

Members of the Bar Association of Birmingham have adopted resolutions which call upon congress to pass a bill providing for an additional United States district judge in Alabama.

Rules to Respond to Eating.

Eat slowly, but not indifferently as to the food was not relished.

Do not put the knife in the mouth unless it is made to cut with.

Keep your elbows off the table, and do not sprawl upon the table when resting. Rest before you eat.

Do not pour your tea or coffee into the saucer, sip it from the cup instead.

Do not fold your napkin unless you are to occupy the same place for another meal.

Do not dip into a dish with your knife, fork or spoon. If the dish is not provided with either fork or spoon, ask for one.

If care is taken at home to observe these rules, there need be no mortification or embarrassment when dining with others.—Farmer's Guide.

"WHACKS"

And What They Mean.

When Old Mother Nature gives you a "whack" remember "there's a reason" so try and say "thank you" then set about finding what you have done to demand the rebuke, and try and get back into line, for that's the best place after all.

Curious how many highly organized people fail to appreciate and heed the first little, gentle "whacks" of the good old Dame, but go right along with the habit whatever it may be, that causes her disapproval. Whiskey, Tobacco, Coffee, Tea or other unnatural treatment of the body, until serious illness sets in or some chronic disease.

Some people seem to get on very well with those things for awhile, and Mother Nature apparently cares very little what they do.

Perhaps she has no particular plan for them and thinks it little use to waste time in their training.

There are people, however, who seem to be selected by Nature to "do things." The Old Mother expects them to carry out some department of her great work. A portion of these selected ones oft and again seek to stimulate and then deaden the tool (the body) by some one or more of the drugs—Whiskey, Tobacco, Coffee, Tea, Morphine, etc.

You know all of these throw down the same class of alkaloids in Chemical analysis. They stimulate and then depress. They take from man or woman the power to do his or her best work.

After these people have dragged along a time, they get a hint, or mild "whack" to remind them that they have work to do, a mission to perform, and should be about the business, but are lost along the wayside and become unfit for the fame and fortune that waits for them if they but stick to the course and keep the body clear of obstruction so it can carry out the behests of the mind.

Sickness is a call to "come up higher." These hints come in various forms. It may be stomach trouble, bowels, heart, eyes, kidneys or great nervous prostration. You may depend upon it when a "whack" comes it's a warning to quit some abuse and do the right and fair thing with the body.

Perhaps it is Coffee drinking that offends. That is one of the great causes of human disorder among Americans.

Now then if Mother Nature is good with you and only gives light, little "whacks" at first to attract attention don't abuse her consideration, or she will soon hit you harder, sure.

And you may also be sure she will hit you very, very hard if you insist on following the way you have been going.

It seems hard work to give up a habit, and we try all sorts of plans to discharge our ill feelings to some other cause than the real one.

Coffee drinkers when ill will attribute the trouble to bad food, malaria, overwork and what not, but they keep on being sick and gradually grow worse until they are finally forced to quit entirely, even the "only one cup a day." Then they begin to get better and unless they have gone too far they begin to set up some fixed organic disease and they generally get entirely well.

It is easy to quit coffee at once and for all, by having well made Postum, with its rich, deep, seal brown color which comes to the beautiful clear brown when good cream is added, and the crisp snap of good, solid nourishment there if the Postum has been boiled long enough to bring it out.

It pays to be well and have the good old Mother Nature then adds her blessings of many and various kinds and helps us to gain friends and fortune.

Strip off the handicaps, leave off the deadening habits, heed Mother Nature's hints, quit being a loser and become a winner. She will help you, be sure if you cut out the things that hurt you back.

"There's a reason" and a remedy, one.

MY THANKSGIVING BY THEODOSIA GARRISON

ILLUSTRATED BY HENRY HUTT

Oh, goodly fain who sing and say
Praise for the harvest laid away,
And raise glad voices on this day,
For your Thanksgiving,—
I, who was used to quips and pranks,
May I not humbly join your ranks—
I, who have greater cause for thanks
Than all men living?

You have but gathered for your store
The golden gain the Summer bore;
What though it brims your measure o'er
To overflowing?
This better harvest that is mine
Came not from tree or ground or vine,
Yet beyond riches is and fine
Above all knowing

For, look you, I have gathered in
The dimples of her mouth and chin,
The smile that it was hard to win
In all completeness,

The grayness of her eyes, the rare,
Exquisite tears that gather there,
The golden glory of her hair,
Her maiden sweetness.

Great be your gains at hearth and mart,
But better mine, who, for my part,
See the vast storehouse of my heart
Filled beyond measure.
Winter and storm may come apace
But I have gathered in my place
The tender beauty of her face,
To be my treasure.

So, goodly folk, may I not raise
My voice upon this day of days—
I, who have greater cause to praise
Than all men living?
I, who have sown in Love's glad Spring,
Have reaped all happiness, and bring
To my heart's home my harvesting
For my Thanksgiving.

A THANKSGIVING DINNER PARTY

By Bertha Esterbrooke Goodier.

"Jess an' me," began Larry proudly, "are goin' to have the best Thanksgivin' dinner you ever heard about. You just ought to see the things that come to our house this week. 'My Lady,' she sent it. She lives in a great big stone house down-town, an' I take papers there, an' Jess does sewin'."

"Thanksgiving dinner? Glory! What are you goin' to have?" asked one of the little group of eager listeners gathered on the broad stone curb in the crisp November sunlight.

"Oh, turkey an' cranberry sauce an' mince an' plum puddin' an'—an—everything," was the proud reply.

"Whoopee!" cried Billy Dornan, who was hopping about on one foot, while Tod Todd, the flower girl, who had fallen over on her crutch, begged, with eyes that were shining, "Oh, Larry, do say that again. It does sound beautiful!"

"Turkey an' cranberry sauce an' mince an' plum pudding," he repeated slowly. Then, for Jess had often told him that he must never talk too much himself, he hastened to ask, "What you goin' to have for Thanksgivin', Tod?"

The girl's eyes filled with tears as she looked away. "I guess we won't have much this year," she said, "just bread an' tea, an' maybe some meat or something."

Larry remembered suddenly that Tod's father had died a few months before. Of course, she wouldn't have much dinner. Why had he asked the thoughtless question and brought tears to those blue eyes? He looked about the little circle. Not one of them would have a Thanksgiving treat, of that he was sure. Poor little Sam, the cripple, would spend his pennies for a bowl of soup at one of the kitchens. Tod, the raggedest of all, a forlorn little foundling, who belonged to no one at all and slept in a great brick shed-alleyway along with tramps and thieves, would be glad of even a crust, while Billy Dornan, whose mother was in washing to fill the hungry mouths of the six little brothers and sisters, would be lucky if he got anything for himself. Larry's heart gave a thump as he looked at the faces about him, then thought of the great roast, its sides fairly bulging with good things. Why, perhaps not one of them had even tasted turkey, and he had had it many times before his father had died. A sudden thought leaped into his mind as he sat there. Well, why should he not? Jess, he was sure, would be very glad, for she had often told him that they must remember those poorer than themselves. Then, too, it would be such fun. "My Lady" had said she wanted the pretty white dress for Thanksgiving Day, because she was going to have a dinner party. Why shouldn't we have a dinner party, too?

"I tell you what," he cried, his bright eyes shining; "Jess an' me, we're goin' to have all those good things to eat, an'—an' we want you to come an' help us eat 'em."

It was not the polite form of invitation, but neither Sam nor Billy nor Maggie nor Spot cared for that. They all stood staring for a breathless moment, then they cried in one voice, "Oh, Larry, you don't mean it, do you? Honest? Hope to die?"

"Honest—hope to die if I don't," he said solemnly, and that settled the matter beyond a doubt.

When Larry had sold the last of his papers, he fairly raced to the tenement attic, where he and Jess kept house, so eager was he to tell the news of his dinner party. "My Lady, she's goin' to have one," he explained, "so I thought we would, too."

"Why, of course," agreed Jess. "There'll be enough for all, and Thanksgiving Day, like Christmas, comes but once a year, so we'll have just as good a time as we can." And then, like two children they were, they caught each other's hands and went dancing round and round the little room.

The next morning Jess was up bright and early, preparing for the event. Larry, after waiting to see the great turkey, its sides puffing with oyster dressing, reposing in the oven, caught up his cap and tramped down the stairs whistling as he went. He came back again just as the great clock in the church nearby was striking 1. This time he headed a little band and proudly he ushered his friends in. Each had made some small attempt at dressing up. Sam wore a new coat, Billy a flaming tie. Maggie Tod had bound back her brown curls with a bit of blue ribbon, while Spot, who owned nothing more on earth than the suit he always wore, had scrubbed his face till it fairly shone and even borrowed a broken comb to run through his frowsy locks.

"Well, how glad I am to see you all!" Jess cried, smiling a welcome from the doorway and looking "just too beautiful," Larry told her, in a pretty blue dress with a little frilled apron and a pink bow in her hair. "Come right in, you dear children," she went on; "dinner's on the table, and I'm sure you'll open your eyes when you see it."

And in truth they did. They stood about the table and stared with wide eyes at what they saw. A luscious brown turkey lay there before the little hostess. It looked so good that they gasped when she took up the carving knife and ruthlessly jabbed it beneath the crisp skin. And Maggie Tod wondered if it weren't wicked to eat anything so beautiful. On one side of the table was a pyramid of creamy potatoes, while on the other rose a trembling mound of jelly, in whose red depths the sunlight seemed to glow. A feathery bunch of celery adorned the centre of the table. Then, besides, there were mysterious covered dishes which might be containing other delicious things. It was quite as though a fairy godmother had come out of the story book and spread them a feast, they declared. There was not much talking at first. Every one was too busy with knife and fork, and Jess just kept insisting on second helpings all around. At last Spot, the first keen edge of his appetite somewhat dulled, leaned back in his chair and regarded the little company with a broad smile.

"Say," he began, joyfully, "I bet you they just have turkeys in heaven." And they all agreed that heaven without turkeys would be a very poor place.

Then the plum pudding, a wonderful brown ball, topped with a sprig of evergreen and all ablaze with a strange blue fire, came in. After they had tasted, smacked their lips and tasted again, they decided to amend their idea of future happiness, and added plum pudding to their sum of perfect bliss.

It was a very happy little group that went away down the narrow stairs, and a very happy boy and girl that sat, side by side, before the little fire, each living over again the beautiful dinner party which would soon be only a memory. At last Larry looked up into the sweet face above him and said:

"I wish all the poor boys and girls could have a lovely 'Lady' like mine, so's they could give dinner parties, too. But, then," with a sigh that seemed to come from the toes of his boots, "I s'pose they ain't enough to go round."—Detroit Free Press.

THE TURKEY'S THANKSGIVING TOAST

Louise Lewin Matthews.

I come, the monarch of the feast,
Before ye lords so gay,
On bended knee, without a head,
To grace this glorious day.
Be thankful all ye men so bold
And maids of dainty tire—
To grander feast did knights of old,
Nor ladies e'er aspire.
I ruled the fowls like any king;
My head was always high,
Until to grace this humble board
I laid me down to die.

Here's to the health of absent friends!
Here's to the ones most true!
A toast to those the future lends—
Long life to all anew!
Don't shed a tear for him who lies
Dismantled on his bier—
He gave his life without a sigh
And bade ye all good cheer!

EPITAPH.

He was a grand and tender bird;
The best of all was he.
And so with thankfulness we sing,
And hope for more to be.

Given a National Character.

It was largely through the efforts of Mrs. Sarah J. Hale that the Thanksgiving custom became universal throughout the United States. With commendable persistence she year after year importuned the Governors of States and Territories, urging that they appoint the last Thursday in November as a day of thanksgiving, so that the celebration might be given a national character. Mrs. Hale wrote President Lincoln, inclosing a copy of Washington's 1789 proclamation, and suggesting that he, too, proclaim a day of national thanksgiving. July 15, 1863, Lincoln issued a proclamation setting Thursday, August 6, as a day of national praise. Since then, with one exception, the last Thursday in November has been the day universally observed. It is, by the way, only a legal holiday in those States which provide for its legality by special statute. The proclamations issued by the President and the various Governors are not authoritative and the people can exercise the great American prerogative of personal choice in the matter.

The Old Home.

There, there, 'mid clustering leaves,
Glimmer my father's eaves,
And the worn threshold of my youth, beneath;
I know them by the moss,
And the old elms that toss
Their lithe arms up where Winds the smoke's grey wreath.
—Benjamin Busey Thielsler.

A THANKSGIVING INSPIRATION

HOW A PASTOR AND HIS YOUNG PEOPLE MADE TWO HUNDRED SOULS HAPPY

By Rev. Amos Taylor

It was in the early winter of '00. I had undertaken the pastorate of a small church in a country town in central New York, and was desirous of reviving the interest of a young people's club. Thanksgiving was approaching, and I was anxious the society should undertake something which would promote the spirit of the day. The county house, containing about 200 of the poor and insane, was located two miles from the town, and I conceived the plan of having our society give them a genuine Thanksgiving treat. At the first meeting of the society I made the suggestion. Of course, it interested the young people, but—then there came the difficulties. How could twelve or fifteen young people, poor ones at that, with a burden already too heavy to bear, contribute to the happiness of 200? Expense, labor, time—all the costly factors in such undertakings, loomed up, and though bright eyes sparkled and cheeks glowed at the thought, the young people sadly shook their heads, fearing the undertaking beyond their ability. I had, however, planned the matter in my own mind, and having faith that we would not be left to our own resources in the matter, I laid bare my plans, and finally, by vote, committed the society to the undertaking.

The first thing we did was to delegate a person to go to the village miller to secure 200 eight-pound paper bags, instructing him to make known to him, in detail our plans and purpose. The miller became interested immediately, and when the pay for the bags was tendered, he refused to accept it, saying: "No! no! I want a share in your work, and if I were a young person I think I would want to associate myself with a society such as yours." Next I went to the publisher of the village newspaper and asked him to print for us 200 slips of paper like this:

The Young People's Society —OF THE—
Helping Hand Church

IS desirous of giving the poor and unfortunate in our County Alms House and Asylum a Thanksgiving treat, and to that end are willing to be the almoners of the gifts of generously disposed persons. If you will kindly fill this bag with confectionery, nuts, foreign and domestic fruit or candies, we will see that they are conveyed to them. The bags and contents will be called for on the evening before Thanksgiving Day.

"Blessed is he that considereth the poor. The Lord will deliver him in time of trouble. The Lord will keep him alive and he shall be blessed upon the earth. The Lord will strengthen him upon the bed of languishing. Thou wilt make all his bed in his sickness."
—Ps. 41:1-3.

Of course, the newspaper man was deeply interested and glad to contribute the slips as his share toward the benefaction. The slips were then pasted upon the bags, and by the committee appointed for the distribution, left at the homes of those who had been selected. No consideration was given to either the denominational or the religious character of those solicited. Roman Catholics, Jews and infidels were asked, and responded generously. The entire population of the village felt the generous thrill and the happy glow. Two hundred households were made happy for days in discussing their contributions. When the bags were gathered together it was found that we had nearly half a ton of goodies for the poor people, and not one of the bags was found missing or returned empty. And what a revelation of the generosity and kindly sympathy of the people those bags were. Some of them were estimated as worth not less than $3. In them were oranges, bananas, apples, malaga grapes, figs, nuts, cakes, boxes of candies, cakes of chocolates, cough drops, chewing gum, booklets, fancy pictures and other articles.

"THIS WAS A SAD THANKSGIVING FOR ME, BUT THIS BRIGHT RAY OF SUNSHINE MAKES IT LESS DREARY."

These bags were carefully carried to the county house by a committee on Thanksgiving morning, and with the aid of the keeper, his wife, and the domestics, assorted and distributed. First, the bags were placed upon a large table and the contents assorted into baskets, pails and tubs. There were bushels of oranges and apples, more than a bushel of bananas, pails of grapes, nuts and candies and other things. Then 200 plates were spread along the sides of the long corridor of the hall, and one article from each was placed upon each plate, till the plates were heaping high and lusciously beautiful. Yet one-third only of the contribution had found place.

One hundred of these plates were taken into the dining hall of the institution, placed upon the tables, and then the aged inmates to the same number were invited to be seated. The members of the committee were then invited in and introduced by the keeper and given the opportunity to convey to them the greetings of the loving hearts which had inspired the kindly remembrance. After a few words by the pastor the responses began. One by one, beginning at the head of the table, and passing around it, the whole 100 gave oral testimony to their gratitude for the kindly consideration.

We sometimes say we cannot pray and speak in prayer meeting. If we were incarcerated in the poor house and some kindly friend remembered us, we would speak. Our tongues would not be tied. "God bless you, sir, the longest day you live for your thoughtfulness." "Say thank you for one to your young people, sir. I never saw such a spread in my life before." "I thank you, and our Heavenly Father for you." "This is a sad Thanksgiving to me, but this bright ray of sunshine makes it less dreary. I thank you." Such were the expressions of gratitude we heard. Some of them seemed like the welling up of the great frozen depths—the melting again into emotion of hearts that had become hard and flinty. The expression of their gratitude well-nigh broke our hearts.

"I NEVER SEED SUCH A SPREAD IN MY LIFE BEFORE."

After making the rounds of the hospital and the asylum, we took our departure, feeling that in addition to the blessedness of having remembered the poor, we had established a red-letter day in the history of the institution. The keeper, in a communication to our society many weeks afterwards, added to previous expressions of gratitude, the assurance that the event had caused a happy divergence in the thoughts of the inmates, and instead of dwelling upon their unfortunate condition, they had continually talked of the thoughtfulness of their friends. It ought to be added that our contribution provided the inmates of the institution with a tasty dessert after each Sabbath dinner till some time after New Year's, and also gave our feeble society the first spur of inspiration which lifted it out into larger and more active spheres of altruistic endeavor.

Weary and heartsick, hushing their desires
For homes and kindred far across the sea,
That, without fear or hindrance, they might raise
Daily to God their prayers and hymns of praise,
And walk His paths in all humility.
We knew thee first in sixteen twenty-one;
The shores of bleak New England claim thy birth;
And though thy cradle buried was in snow,
And chill November winds, with icy tone,
Hushed thee to sleep, yet now with joy and mirth
We celebrate that day of long ago.

SEASON OF GOOD CHEER.

Thanksgiving Day an Occasion For General Rejoicing.

Next Thursday, by proclamation provided, every civilized corner of this country will throb with the thanksgiving spirit and resound with hymns of praise for the bountiful blessings of the year. The most sober celebration on the American calendar, Thanksgiving is yet an occasion for general rejoicing and feasting, and it is always heralded with joyful anticipations. And this year's observance promises to be most heartily enjoyed by the great mass of people throughout the land.

It is an occasion that opens the great, broad heart of the country to the distress of the unfortunate, when the millionaire is (sometimes) thankful he has purse strings to unloosen, when the financially comfortable indulge in unusual luxuries, when one struggling tradesman is satisfied with a medium sized turkey, when the ragged child of poverty gets only a smell of the savory dishes of the day and philosophically murmurs that he is thankful to be alive. However, there are few unfortunates unprovided for on this festive anniversary. The inmates of hospitals, jails, poorhouses and other public institutions all fare generously, and even the homeless outcast renews acquaintance with edibles that have long been strangers to his stomach. Thanksgiving is a day for pleasant family reunions, when the widely scattered members of a once united household gather at bountiful dinners of roast turkey, plum pudding, mince and pumpkin pies, etc.

THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

HON L. H. Reynolds has sent in his resignation, which has been accepted, as Representative in the legislature from this county, and Chilton is now without a representative.

WITH pleasure we acknowledge the receipt of a catalogue and price list from the Thorsby Nurseries. Trees and plants propagated here at home must surely be better adapted to our soil and climate than those imported from other States, and we hope the Thorsby Nurseries will be liberally patronized by our people. It is a home enterprise and should be heartily supported. Mr. P. C. Smith, the proprietor, has given many years study to the growth of fruit trees and is an authority on the subject.

ASSISTANT State Examiner Gorman was in Clanton Wednesday of last week engaged in examining the books and accounts of the county officers, but for some unexplained reason his official report to the Governor has not yet been made public.

It has transpired, however, that his investigation disclosed the fact that $398.80 was due the State by Tax Collector T. J. Hubbard, who had made his final settlement with the State Treasurer some time ago.

It appears that this $398,80 was the amount collected by Mr. Hubbard in consequences of the raised assessments made by the Back Tax Commissioner, and which by some oversight had not been certified to the State Auditor, hence was not included in the amount demanded by the State, which was based upon the regular assessment.

The Examiner called upon Mr. Hubbard to pay the amount over to the State Treasurer and this, we believe, he did last Saturday.

Had there been no investigation by a State Examiner, what would have become of the $398 80 is an interesting question. Mr. Hubbard must surely have known he had several hundred dollars in his possession which did not belong to him and did belong to the state.

A Pretty Wedding.

With all the beauty and solemnity possible of a home wedding, in the presence of immediate relatives and intimate friends, the marriage of Miss Virginia Hand of Jemison, and Dr. John C. McLeod of Sylacauga, was solemnized Tuesday afternoon, Nov. 15, at 3:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother.

The [illegible] was decorated with [illegible] chrysanthemums and carnations, an immense bell of white chrysanthemums and carnations was suspended in the parlor, under which the bride and groom stood; the party entered the parlor to the strains of "Narcissus," attended by Mrs. J. D. Hand, a sister-in-law of the bride, as matron of honor. The Rev. I. Windsor performed the ceremony. The bride was handsomely gowned in white silk and lace, she wore a crown of pearls and carried a shower boquet of white carnations and ferns. Immediately after the ceremony the guests repaired to the dining room where dainty refreshments were served. Miss Hand is one of Jemison's most popular young ladies; Dr. McLeod is a prosperous young physician of Bay Minette. Among the out of town guests were: Mrs. J. M. Armstrong and Mrs. I. M. Franklin, of Bay Minette, Miss Pittus, of Tennessee; Mrs. C. V. Heath and Miss Minnie Maas, of Clanton; Miss Whatley, of Birmingham; Mrs. B. W. Silsbee, of Calera. Dr. and Mrs. McLeod left on the afternoon train for a few days stay among Dr. McLeod's relatives at Sylacauga.

Sarah Bernhardt's Tact.

An illustration of Sarah Bernhardt's wonderful tact is shown in the following incident: During a performance of "Andromache" the hoots and hisses of many of the roughest men in the gallery led to their being ejected by the soldiers on guard. But, deaf to the objections of manager and secretary, Mme. Bernhardt insisted on the men being sent for between the acts. So, freed from the hands of the police, the disturbers, to their surprise, found themselves in the beautiful, electric lighted, cream and gold rooms, redolent of the perfume of flowers, and faced by the lady they had insulted, looking beautiful in the glittering gorgeous dress of the eastern princess. "Messieurs," said Mme. Sarah, with gracious dignity, "I have sent for you to say that the police are not to molest you. You are to go back to your places, and you are permitted to hiss as much as you like." The rough and motley crowd left the room in amazement, and storms of applause burst from the gallery when the curtain fell after the next act.

Kerosene Oil.

A common kerosiene lamp, with its chimney of glass, its varied forms of beauty, its shades modified to every grade of vision and of taste, suggests the relation of man to light. The oil, natural, cheap, brilliant and volatile, was long known to civilized humanity as a crude outflow from the earth. It was not until about 1845 that the iridescent scum seen floating on the surface of a stream near Pittsburg suggested to thoughtful men to [illegible] greater supply. Indians came [illegible] distance and soaked it from the water with their blankets, which they wrung out into vessels in order to secure a quantity for some secret purpose. It was not until 1800 that it passed into common use. Since that time it has driven every form of wax, grease, fluid, camphene and whale oil lamp from the common use of mankind.

Great Guns of Old.

We are accustomed to think of large cannon as a very recent invention. Yet as long ago as 1543 a certain Ralph Hogge of Buckstead, in Sussex, cast large guns, and a pupil of his, Thomas Johnson, in 1595 made for the Earl of Cumberland "forty-two cast pieces of great ordnance of iron." These weighed 6,000 pounds—three tons—apiece, and, we are told, showed very fine, smooth workmanship. All the smelting was done with charcoal, of which it took three tons to smelt each ton of iron. Also all the ore was carried from the mine on pack horses, which took a load of about 300 pounds each. The immense amount of labor and consequent expense may be imagined.

The Horseshoe as a Mascot.

The superstition that associates the horseshoe with good luck is very old. It is said to prevail not only among English speaking people, but in all races of Europe and Asia. Antiquaries are undecided whether its origin has to do with the material from which the horseshoe is made or with its shape. Some writers on this subject have surmised that the lucky qualities attributed to the horseshoe were derived from its fancied resemblance to the halo pictured about the heads of saints, but this connection is highly improbable, as it is known that the superstition certainly antedates Christianity.

How Baraboo Got Its Name.

Indians gave Baraboo its name, but the word is not Indian. Baribeau or Baribault was the name of an old Canadian French trader who at the age of seventeen sought the then wilderness of Wisconsin to secure pelts for the Hudson Bay company and later for the American Fur company. He established a post where the town of Baraboo now stands. Being the first white man in those parts, the Indians named the place after him, but as they had not had the advantages of a French education could not get the pronunciation of the name nearer than Baraboo, and Baraboo it remains to this day.

Lone Star States.

In the course of conversation at a club the other evening a man referred to "the Lone Star State."

"What state do you mean?" he was asked.

"Why, Texas, of course."

"Well," he was told, "do you know that there are no fewer than five independent sovereign states which use a lone star on their national flags today? They are Turkey, Chile, Cuba, Liberia and the Kongo Free State."

A Black Eye.

In the treatment of contusions where there is extensive discoloration of the skin if olive oil be freely applied without rubbing the discoloration will quickly disappear. Absorbent cotton may be soaked in the oil and applied. If the skin is broken a little boric acid should be applied over the abrasion. A black eye thus treated can be made normal in a few hours, especially if the oil be applied warm.

She Had Cause For Fear.

"Mamma," said the cannibal beauty to her maternal ancestor, "I am really alarmed at Mr. Kinkey's intense passion for me."

"Why, my dear?"

"Only last night he declared I was sweet enough to eat."—Buffalo Times.

A Good Complexion.

"Sparkling eyes rosy cheeks" restored by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers," so writes S. P. Moore, of Nacogdoches, Tex. A certain cure for biliousness, constipation, etc, etc. Small pill—easy to take—easy to act. Sold by Upchurch Drug. co.

The expenses for one year at a leading Southern college will be paid for a bright, worthy girl of Chilton county Ala., who will secure for me one hundred and fifteen subscribers to my book, - "Lee and Longstreet at High Tide." The college expenses include board, books, tuition, laundry and incidentals. For the double purpose of giving the people the truth of our civil war history, and of extending a helping hand to the struggling ambitious girls of the country, I am pleased to place a year at college within reach of a girl of this county who desires an education earnestly enough to exert herself a little. Should the girl availing herself of this opportunity prove particularly deserving, I pledge myself to the endeavor to open the way for her to complete the college course.

The girl who is interested in this offer should communicate with me at once, and her communication should be accompanied by the endorsement of her county School Commissioner, the editor of this paper and the teacher of the last school she attended.

I would be glad to communicate with every ambitious girl in this county who is struggling to educate herself. MRS. JAMES LONGSTREET, Gainsville, Ga.

Thousands Cured.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve has cured thousands of cases of Piles. "I bought a box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve on the recommendation of our druggist," so writes C. H. LaCroix, of Zavalla, Tex., "and used it for a stubborn case of Piles. It cured me permanently." Sold by U church Drug co.

Did Him Good.

"I am sorry, doctor, you were not able to attend my supper last night. It would have done you good to be there."

"It has already done me good, madam. I have just prescribed for three of the guests."

His Punishment.

A Safe Rule.

When a man approaches you with a dead open and shut easy money proposition tell him gently that you are a charitable person and that out of the goodness of your heart you will let him keep the bonanza all for his very own.—Berkshire Eagle.

Caution.

Never give more than $5 to a fortune teller; otherwise you would get such good prognostications that you would not be able to sleep overnight, and you might have to go hungry the next day.—Illinois State Journal.

Loss of Flesh

When you can't eat breakfast, take Scott's Emulsion. When you can't eat bread and butter, take Scott's Emulsion. When you have been living on a milk diet and want something a little more nourishing, take Scott's Emulsion.

To get fat you must eat fat. Scott's Emulsion is a great fattener, a great strength giver.

Those who have lost flesh want to increase all body tissues, not only fat. Scott's Emulsion increases them all, bone, flesh, blood and nerve.

For invalids, for convalescents, for consumptives, for weak children, for all who need flesh, Scott's Emulsion is a rich and comfortable food, and a natural tonic.

Scott's Emulsion for bone, flesh, blood and nerve.

Indians and Cowards.

John Bradbury, who explored part of the Missouri river country in the early decades of the last century, tells of a unique Indian method of dealing with cowardice. The story is retold in the Early Western Travels Series, edited by R. G. Thwaites. Bradbury says: "In our walk we observed what on the first view appeared to be two squaws. I remarked that one of them had more the appearance of a man than a woman. I was then informed that it was a man and that there were several others in the village who, like the one we saw, were condemned for life to associate with the squaws, to wear the same dress and do the same drudgery. I now learned that when the Osages go to war they keep a watchful eye over the young men who are taking their first essay in arms, and such as appear to possess the necessary qualifications are admitted to the rank of warriors. But if any exhibit proofs of cowardice, on the return of the party they are compelled to assume the dress and character of women, and their doom is fixed for life and no opportunity afforded them to retrieve their character."

Mixed.

During a church convention in one of our large cities a lady well known as one of the prominent hostesses of the land was entertaining at her home a number of ministers, delegates to the convention. The second evening, being very tired, she proposed having two hours to herself while her guests were attending the religious meeting announced. One delegate, however, insisted on keeping her company. They sat for a time before the library fire, the minister talking on in a gentle stream, the lady growing more and more sleepy. A cricket was singing on the hearth, and presently a hymn from the neighboring church reached their ears. The clergyman, slowly rocking, slowly fitting the tips of his fingers to one another, commented:

How sweet the songs of Zion sound upon the evening air!

His hostess, almost asleep, was still responsive. She fancied he was referring to the cricket. "Yes," she replied; "I'm told they do it with their hind legs."—Harper's Weekly.

Aqueous Precipitation.

The general law of aqueous precipitation may be briefly stated. Whatever lowers the temperature of the air at any place below the dew point is a cause of rain. Various causes may conspire to effect this object, but it is chiefly brought about by the ascent of the air into the higher regions of the atmosphere, by which, being subjected to less pressure, it expands and in doing so lowers its temperature. These ascending currents are caused by the heating of the earth's surface by the sun's rays or, in fact, by anything which raises the temperature of the superincumbent air, and it is very obvious that the continual discharge of large pieces of ordnance will have a considerable effect in raising the temperature of the air lying on the earth's surface, which will ascend, expand and discharge in aqueous particles in the form of rain for the foregoing reasons.

Artemus Ward's Sarcasm.

Artemus Ward was traveling on a slow going southern road soon after the war. When the conductor was punching his ticket Artemus inquired, "Does this railroad company allow passengers to give it advice if they do so in a respectful manner?" The conductor replied in gruff tones that he guessed so. "Well," Artemus went on, "it occurred to me it would be well to detach the cowcatcher from in front of the engine and hitch it to the rear of the train, for, you see, we are not liable to overtake a cow. But what's to prevent a cow strolling into this car and biting a passenger?"

Eating One's Boots.

"Rawhide or even leather if boiled for hours will make nutritious soup," says a writer in Country Life In America on the subject of what a man lost in the woods may find to eat. "Many a man has bridged the awful gap by boiling his boots, whence the phrase to express the final extreme, 'I'll eat my boots first.' Mark Twain was once put to this final resort and recorded afterward that 'the holes tasted the best.'"

The Stomach's Lining.

How are children so often able without injury to swallow such sharp things as pins, needles, tacks and bits of glass? The secret as disclosed by a scientist of Vienna lies in the fact that, when a pointed or sharp edged body comes into contact with the lining of the stomach or intestine, the part touched contracts and puckers so as to thicken itself in that place. At the same time it withdraws itself in such a manner as to form a little pocket and gradually twists the object around so as to turn the edge or point away, pushing [illegible] along.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is Pleasant to Take.

The finest of granulated sugar is used in the manufacture of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it quite pleasant to take. Mr. W. L. Roderick, of Poolesville, Md., in speaking of this remedy, says: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy with my children for several years and can truthfully say it is the best preparation of the kind I know of. The children like to take it and it has no injurious after effect. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.
New Way of Using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Mr. Arthur Chapman writing from Durban, Natal, South Africa, says: As a proof that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a cure suitable for old and young, I pen you the following: A neighbor of mine had a child just over two months old. It had a very bad cough and the parents did not know what to give it. I suggested that if they would get a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, and put some upon the dummy teat the baby was sucking it would no doubt cure the child This they did and brought about a quick relief and cured the baby." This Remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

WARD AND SIMMONS

Lead Ticket for Mayoralty Contest in Birmingham Monday.

HEAVY VOTE POLLED.

The Second Primary Will Be Held Monday Next, Nov. 23.

After one of the most exciting and intensely interesting primary elections in the history of municipal politics in Birmingham George B. Ward leads the ticket for mayor by a large vote. Failing to receive a majority a second primary will be necessary to decide between him and Charles S. Simmons as to who shall be given the nomination.

Mr. Ward received 1,252 votes, Mr Simmons 745, Mr O'Neill 594, Mr Forney 172 and Mr. Crittenden 117.

Notwithstanding the rain and slush a total of 2,929 votes were cast, which is just 91 less than the number registered. This is considered the largest vote based on registration ever brought out in Birmingham. It is true quite a number of voters were registered on the day of the primary, but even this number, which is about 200, would not prevent the vote from being a record breaker.

The heavy vote was due largely to the exciting contests for aldermen in several of the wards, besides the numerous candidates for minor offices, who have worked for weeks to get their friends to the polls.

The vote received by Mr. Ward was surprising, as numerous even money bets had been made that the second primary would be between Simmons and O'Neill. Mr. Ward, however, developed great strength towards the close of the campaign, and before 9 o'clock yesterday morning other candidates knew that he would be the man they would have to defeat if they entertained hopes of winning.

According to the number of votes cast it would have been necessary for Mr. Ward to have gotten 1,465 votes to have received a majority, that being one more than half the number polled. Mr. Ward, receiving 1,252, lacked just 213 of having a clear majority.

Other than his statement given out early in the night that he believed he would receive 1,500 votes, Mr Ward had nothing to say. He will probably give out a statement today. His friends are very jubilant, and were predicting last night that there would be no second primary. They asserted the belief that Mr. Simmons would withdraw.

Henry H. Howze, manager of Mr Simmons' campaign, said:

"Of course, we are somewhat surprised at Mr. Ward's vote, but you can state that Mr. Simmons is still in the race and there will be a second primary. We are in the fight to stay and believe we will have a majority of the votes next Monday."

The other candidates had nothing to say concerning the result. The friends of Crittenden and Forney say that the small vote received by them was largely due to the fact that the other three candidates were considered in a close fight and that their friends believed that to make their votes count they would have to be cast for the three strongest men.

Hundreds of Men Will Resume Work.

Every idle coke oven in the Connellsville region owned by the H. C. Frick Coke company will be put in full operation this week. Orders to that effect were issued Monday. The company owns about 16,000 ovens in the region, and of this number about 4,000 have been idle for some time. Employment will be given to from 4,000 to 6,000 men.

Mine Purchase.

The Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company has purchased the dolomite quarry and works at Ketona, formerly the property of the Birmingham Mining and Contracting company, and will at once begin the enlargement of the works to increase the output of dolomite.

Something like $50,000 has been spent in the purchase and improvement about the works and it is expected that the needs of the company will be met easier now than before. There is much property in the neighborhood for development in the future.

New Industries in Mississippi.

Corinth—$35,000 chair factory.

Greenwood—$250,000 ice and coal company.

Indianola—$25,000 lumber company.

Jackson—$200,000 gas plant.

Jennings—Pipe line.

Sumrall—$20,000 saw mill.

Yazoo City—$10,000 brick and lumber company.

Church Burned.

At Indianapolis, Ind., the Meridian Street Methodist church was destroyed by fire Friday. Loss $75,000. Vice-President-elect Fairbanks and Senator Beveridge were trustees of the church.

For School Tax.

Marshall county voted for the additional tax for the public schools. Superintendent Hill is working hard to have all the counties adopt it.

SECRETARY TAFT.

Believed President Contemplates Appointing Him to Supreme Court.

The official announcement from Washington that W. H. Moody is to remain in the cabinet as attorney general practically completes the president's new official family. It is hoped by the administration that Secretary of the Interior Hitchcock will be elected senator from Missouri, so that there will be an opportunity to declare a vacancy in his position without embarrassment.

The cabinet will stand as follows:

Secretary of State, John Hay; secretary of war, William H. Taft; secretary of the navy, Paul Morton; attorney general, William H. Moody; postmaster general, George B. Cortelyou; secretary of agriculture, James Wilson; secretary of the interior, — —; secretary of commerce and labor, Victor H. Metcalf.

No southern man will get a cabinet position. The president, even if he were disposed to appoint a southerner to such a position, could find no available southern republican.

Secretary Taft is slated to succeed Chief Justice Fuller on the supreme bench. Justice Fuller has broken much in health since the death of his wife some months ago. He has already passed the retiring age limit, but all chief justices of the court have remained on the bench until death.

Deepening of Mobile Harbor Will Benefit Birmingham.

B. M. Allen, of the Birmingham delegation, who was elected president of the Outer Bar association at Mobile, speaking of the great project, says:

"The time has at length arrived when the growing need for a chapter and more direct outlet to the gulf of Mexico for the coal, iron, cotton and other products of the state must be met. But, in point of fact, the opening of Mobile bay to the entrance of the largest classes of vessels should be treated as a national rather than a mere state proposition. Its importance to the whole country cannot be better stated than it is in the following letter from Rear Admiral H. C. Davis, of the United States navy:

Tendered Revenue Cutter.

"Through the courtesy of the secretary of the treasury the convention and invited guests enjoyed the use of the large, handsome revenue cutter Winona for its trip down the bay to inspect the outer bar, nearly 100 persons being on board. Delegates from Demopolis, Tuscaloosa, Gadsden, Riverside, Mobile, Birmingham and other places were present, and evinced much interest in the project which means much for Mobile, for Birmingham, for Alabama, and, indeed, the entire country.

"No one could fail to be impressed with the evident advantages of Mobile bay, and I am now more than ever convinced that one of the greatest and most commodious deep harbors in the world is to be found in that splendid expanse in the lower bay, embracing upwards of five square miles of anchorage, ranging in depth from 30 to nearly 70 feet—a depth not equalled by any harbor south of Chesapeake bay.

Unanimous Sentiment.

"The unanimous sentiment of the convention, after seeing the bay and hearing the very able speeches on the subject by Congressmen Bankhead and Heflin, Judge Austill and others, was that we should appeal to the whole state to act together for this deep channel across the bar, regardless of any local improvement elsewhere. With this end in view, a strong delegation of leading business men from all over the state will soon be named to go to Washington and urge upon congress early in December the importance and need for this great work.

"I sincerely hope the men at the head of the great industrial interests of the Birmingham district will, in common with all our business men, give this effort their hearty support. If so, success cannot be doubted."

Circus Wagon Robbed.

The pay wagon of Forepaugh & Sells Brothers' circus was robbed of $30,000 at Tarbor, N. C. Every effort is being made by the authorities to apprehend the robbers, and several arrests have been made, but no trace of the missing fortune has yet been found.

Alabama's Big Cotton Crop.

Latham, Alexander & Co. estimate the cotton crop of 1894-1895 at 11,300,000 bales. They claim that the compilation is arranged from statements made by reliable and intelligent cotton correspondents in every cotton-growing county in the southern states. They place the Alabama crop at 1,150,000 bales, which is fourth in the list of cotton states. Texas and Indian Territory combined are to produce 3,200,000 bales; Georgia 1,550,000 and Mississippi 1,500,000. There are no other million-bale states. Alabama's last season crop was exactly 1,000,000 bales.

Judge Randolph Free.

Ex-Probate Judge F. C. Randolph, of Montgomery, was acquitted in one case and the solicitor nol prossed the other five.

This makes Judge Randolph a free man. He was indicted on the charge of embezzling about $30,000 from the state and county, but he had made a settlement in full with both.

There were thirteen indictments against him, but the others were nol prossed several days ago.

FARM AND GARDEN

THE SUPPLY OF POULTRY.

Notwithstanding the fact that all kinds of poultry and eggs are constantly increasing in price, the supply continues to grow also—and it is estimated that the supply in 1905 will be fully 25 per cent. larger than any preceding year. More of the products of the poultry yard are being consumed, and the demand keeps pace with the production.

The supply can never equal the demand, since modern poultry farming has taught us that at all times poultry and eggs can be produced for less money than beef, pork or mutton.

There is nothing that will ever take the place of eggs, and the demand for them will constantly grow greater.

Poultry flesh, in season, will likewise always be in demand, and we need never fear an over-production of either fowls or eggs. Look after your poultry and you will find the hens profitable.

SWEET MILK AND TANKAGE FOR PIGS.

I find that sweet skim milk from the separator mixed with corn meal and shorts or bran most excellent for pigs and young hogs, but I haven't enough of the milk and want to ask how a ration of tankage, corn meal and shorts or bran would do to supply the lack of skim milk to feed young hogs and pigs, and what proportion when mixed for feeding.—W. D. Severn, in Indiana Farmer.

—Replying to your inquiry of W. D. S., Macon county, Ill., I will say that a ration can be made of corn, shorts and tankage, which will be almost as satisfactory as one where milk is supplied. The ration should consist of five parts of corn, five parts of shorts and one part of tankage; as more fat is desired the shorts can be replaced by corn. There is nothing better than skim milk when fed sweet, but where the quantity is limited, tankage can be used as a substitute, as it is very rich in protein.—J. H. Skinner in Indiana Farmer.

FIRST-CLASS STOCK PAYS.

It costs no more on the farm to raise first-class stock than to raise poor or intermediate grades. This is an axiom. An axiom it will be remembered is a truth that does not need demonstration. Then if it does not cost more on a farm to raise the better class of stock the first thought in a stock breeder's mind should be improvement. This may, in some instances, be necessarily a slow process if one is limited somewhat in means. But persevere and start in a small way. One will learn gradually the best methods in feeding, breeding and general care. This will, when most needed, be a rich experience and with a start in stock of which one has a personal knowledge, much more can be accomplished than with several thousand dollars spent on a strange bunch of cattle. Decide as early as possible whether to raise stock for market or for milking and breed accordingly. A heifer with a thick neck and a tail bone that is too large had better be sold for beef—if she has a small tail bone and slender neck, keep her for a milch cow.—Cecil Abel Todd, in the Epitomist.

LATE MOULTING.

During the latter part of October we will find many hens only partly through the moult, and these are usually the lazy kind which stand idly around. The bustling, busy hen will begin to moult about the first of August, and by the middle of October she will have an entirely new suit of glossy feathers. In many cases she will continue to lay throughout the entire moulting season, and will keep it up all winter long.

The lazy hen, meanwhile, will stand around, and the first touch of winter weather will bring on an attack of cold, which frequently develops into croup.

This is the class which requires our attention, and they should have it before the season is far advanced.

They should be separated, and, if possible, given free range and be compelled to roam over the orchard or field. Make them scratch for bugs and grasshoppers, and they will gather material necessary for the growth of new feathers.

Green bone is excellent for moulting hens, but if this cannot be had give oil meal, sun flower seed, green clover and wheat middlings. Hens that have not completed their moult by the middle of November will not be likely to lay before March, so that we are forced to furnish a winter's feed and care and get nothing in return.

Don't trust to luck with your hens. Take good care of them and they will be profitable.

DEEP PLOWING.

I see so much said in regard to deep and shallow plowing, I will say I am an advocate of deep plowing, but am told here in Florida you must not plow deep, two to four inches being the proper depth. In Kentucky, where I learned to plow and have had plowing done for me many years, I have never yet seen the land broken too deep to suit me. In breaking, I use double disc breaking plows, with four good mules, all abreast and let the plow go down eight to ten inches and deeper if possible. I also use subsoil plows on some lands to go in bottom of the furrow and root up about four inches more. This breaks the hard pan that has formed from plowing the same depth so many years. I use the subsoil plow about every two to three years, and I find it makes a fine water bed, as it allows the water to go down and the moisture to rise where the land is broken through the hard pan. Furthermore, your land will not wash so badly if broken deep. Not in cultivating I want my first plowing of the corn to be the deepest, and get shallower as the corn gets older and the roots get longer. I do not believe in pruning corn. The weeder is a fine tool; when used at the proper time, it will kill more weeds than one would imagine. I try to keep the weeder and roller going with them and right back again thereby getting a fine dust coat all over the fields. I do not start in the spring to plow my corn three or four times and lay it by, but I plow every time it is needed. If I finish laying a field today and a hard rain should come tonight I scratch the top of the ground again to retain all the moisture possible.—Foster Threlkeld, in the Epitomist.

VALUE OF CLOVER AND COWPEA.

Nitrogen is to the soil in which our plants grow much what the oxygen of the air is to us, for without it the death of vegetation must ultimately ensue, says Connecticut Farmer.

For centuries farmers have known, says Scientific American, that different crops should be grown in the same field with each succeeding year. Some crops following clover and other plants were found to flourish admirably. Careful analysis by agricultural chemists have shown that the benefits derived by this rotation are due directly to the increased stores of nitrogen placed at the disposal of the benefited plants. It would necessarily have followed that plants of the clover type were able to render available nitrogen which would otherwise be unassimilated. Further investigation showed that this nitrogen was fixed in a manner entirely unsuspected, and that we need have no fear of the exhaustion of the nitrate beds which supply us with the chief ingredients of our fertilizers.

The Leguminosiae family of plants, such as clover, the cowpea and the soy bean, have well-defined nodules at their roots, highly charged with nitrogen and constituting the habitat of certain bacteria indispensable in nitrogen assimilation. Elaborate experiments proved that the destruction of these bacteria was equivalent to the destruction of life itself. Bacterial life, then and nothing else, contains the secret of nitrogen production. It having been settled with reasonable certainty that the fixation of nitrogen in the case of Leguminosiae is directly traceable to bacteria, the next investigation to be carried out had for its determination the life process of these bacteria—the conditions under which they thrive, the amount of light, heat and moisture that they require, the manner in which the plant appropriated the nitrogen brought to it from the air, and finally, the possibility of artificially stimulating plant life by inoculating soil with the bacteria.

These investigations have been carried out with striking success. At no very distant day the farmer will either inoculate his field with a culture of bacteria adapted to the crop he wishes to grow, or incorporate with his soil earth of a field where the crop has already been successful. The uncertainty of a good crop will then have vanished, and a farmer will be assured of the best obtainable crops from the seed which he has planted. Guesswork will have given place to absolute certainty.

Valuable Queen Bees.

Just as there are valuable strains in horses, cattle and other stock, so there are varieties of queen bees which are worth many hundred times their weight in gold. The most valuable strain is the Italian, and many Italian bee farmers demand and receive without question prices ranging from $50 to $200 for a single queen bee of a certain kind. Such bees are sent all over the world. The owner of a bee farm near Ottawa, Canada, goes to Europe annually and brings back with him bees of an aggregate value of thousands of dollars. He is enabled through the agency of an Italian firm to effect an insurance upon the most valuable of his queens.—Boston Transcript.

An Indian Coach for Carlisle.

For the first time in its history the Carlisle Indian football team this season will have a fullblooded Indian head coach and assistant coaches, with full authority to plan their own campaigns against the products of the white men's universities, in the persons of Edward Rodgers, head coach, and Frank Hudson and Bemus Pierce assistants. Never before have the redskins been trusted to do the brain work incident to the planning for a football season, and in the past their victories have undoubtedly been due to the careful coaching of such men as Glenn S. Warner, Cornell and Bull Hickock and McCormick, Yale.—Kansas City Journal.

COUNTERFEITERS FAIL.

ALWAYS MAKE ERRORS THAT ARE EASY TO DETECT.

Every Fraudulent Bill Bears Evidence That the Cleverest of Counterfeiters Is not a Good Mechanic—The Habitual Criminal is Never Thorough.

A new $100 counterfeit bill has been found in circulation at the Delmar race track. It is described as "wonderfully like the genuine," but in some respects crude and defective. This drawback is so perfectly characteristic of counterfeits in general as to suggest some reflections. One who finds pleasure or profit in speculating upon the reasons for things might employ a little time to advantage in considering why it is that the makers of counterfeit bills always fail in some important detail to imitate correctly what they seek to reproduce.

The making of a counterfeit which will deceive the least wary is a work of great labor and one which calls for high skill. The average of the work needs to be fully up to the standard of the original, which means that the engraver must be nearly if not quite as skillful as the men employed in the making of plates for good notes. He does not have to originate anything. Every detail has been carefully worked out for his guidance, and all that devolves upon him is to imitate what he is copying. That he can do this in most respects shows that he is equal to doing it in all respects. Why is it, then, that no counterfeiter has yet succeeded in making a bill which in some important and easily recognized detail is not so different can detect is as soon as he submits it to crucial examination?

from the one imitated that the expert

The answer is probably that men willing to employ their skill in criminal practices are temperamentally incapable of thoroughness. It would seem as if the financial backers of counterfeiting enterprises, in view of risks involved, would be critical of the work on the plates they are asked to approve and pay for. So far as the records show, however, the undetectable counterfeit bill has never been made. Probably it never will be. This must be explained on the assumption that counterfeiters, like other criminals, are clever only up to a certain point. They resent the requirement of patient industry. With this they can make honest and safe livings, and if the conditions of earning the dishonest dollar are the same as those of earning the honest dollar the former loses its attractions. The remarkable skill of the counterfeiter is shown in his ability to do part of his work so well that it is as good as that which he imitates, and sometimes better. The qualities which make him a criminal appear in his willingness to be careless with other parts, which stamp the whole with the proof of fraud. Whoever will take a counterfeit bill and compare it with an original of the issue imitated will have no difficulty in discovering the occasional slip of the burin, the occasional evidence of carelessness in drawing, of willingness to pass as "good enough" what is not good enough, or recklessness and indifference which show that the cleverest of counterfeiters is not a good mechanic.

The normal man can not understand carelessness of this sort, especially in matters which render futile the labor of months or years in the engraving of counterfeit plates and make detection as easy as it is inevitable. The conclusion would seem to be irresistable that the counterfeiter is born, not made, and that those who deliberately elect to follow crime for gain do so in obedience to a natural instinct, the result of a mental warp which unfits them for the self-restraint and patient industry of an honest career. Criminals often show evidence of astonishing cleverness, and it seems to the average man that their talents, if employed in honest labor, would make them conspicuously successful. The error of this assumption is that in any monotonous and reputable employment the man thus gifted could not, or would not, employ his talent, which is not of the kind which qualifies for honorable success. The police tell us that the habitual criminal is never thorough.—New York Times.

MAKING PETS OF HORNETS.

If Gently Handled, They Become Docile as Butterflies.

The female hornet has a rapid fire armament with a recoverable projectile. It uses it for both attack and defence, and with remarkable aim and efficiency. The first stroke of a hornet is as penetrating as an electric shock. At the base of its sharp sting there is a sack containing poison, which, when injected into the substance of its enemy, causes pain, swelling and discomfort—facts to which most persons are able to testify by experience. Should the injection be upon the end of the thumb or nose, or upon the tongue, there is danger from it. Strong ammonia applied to the wound is the best antidote. Yet the hornet, when treated politely and with gentle ceremony, is as docile as a butterfly.

In the mountains of West Virginia I had a wire flytrap which, by the seductive influence of molasses, persuaded the house flies infesting my stave built office to enter. Once within it, they remained incarcerated until hot water cured. For several days a very persistent black and white striped hornet amused me by its futile endeavors to seize flies from the buzzing horde of prisoners. At last it found its way in, and, to my astonishment, after capturing a fly t[hrough] way out. It had remembered the [lo]cation of its entrance even in the [co]nfusion of the chase. It did not paralyze its prey, as does the mud wasp, and [k]ill it speedily. It did not stop to eat a single fly, so far as my observation extended. It had a veritable [pa]ssion for the hand, and attended faithfully to [it]. Such gentleness excited admiration.

During one of its absences I put my hand over the trap entrance. Upon it had a piece of ripe [pe]ar. Upon the hornet's return it lit on my hand and ran confusedly over it, [so]on found to get under the cuff. Dangers. Failing it went to the [pe]ar and took a hasty meal. While it was eating I quietly moved my hand from the opening. After [pe]eping about the hornet entered and continued its raid.

After many days of [ob]servation I brought a comrade, and [pe]rsonally conducted a party of [fr]iends. Thereafter they always worked together. To be sure of this, by [ma]king approaches of an affectionate [na]ture was enabled to stroke them while [lu]nching. I marked them both with a spot of red ink. Many [su]bsequent experiences convinced me that [th]ese hornets work in pairs, like detectives. Several other hornets from the same nest visited the case, tried to enter, but found the problem too much for them. In no instance did the pair for these instruction or pay any attention to them. They all partook of [th]eir luncheons freely and in harmony, [th]e favored pair guarded their [pr]ovince. Were they selfish? Did they [re]ceive special plaudits at the home nest for their phenomenal success in the [fu]ture? Or were they simply [tr]ained by hornet manners?

I grew fond of these winged [vi]sitors. I introduced them to my [fr]iends, by placing [th]eir sweets upon them. They learned to come to me after they had escaped the trap of prisoners, and [th]ey became very companionable.

Following the direction of their home flight, and noting the [ne]arest trees, their nest was easily found, hung on the end of a branch of a [cu]rtain rhododendron. The glossy [ev]ergreen leaves overhanging it were [ma]terially in their position, but were so [ar]ranged into the outer layer of paper [en]closing as to give the nest [ad]ditional concealment. Whether this was [in]tentional or not, or whether the [ha]bit simply became an obstruction as the [ne]st was increased in size by [re]mantling the inside and building on the outside, I do not know, but the evidence was in favor of engineering reason, intention, rather than accident. Hornets were the first makers of wood pulp for paper manufacture. They make it from wood and [ol]d fibre, and there are both foresight and economy in tearing out the inner sides of their nest to make room for larger tiers of cells in which to rear their young, and in using the material to enlarge the nursery.—The Farm and Fireside.

"Yankee Trick" in Paris.

The "confidence trick" is [kn]own here as the "vo' a l'Americaine," and when a Frenchman is the victim of a transatlantic republic is anathematized for introducing it to France. Yesterday, however, Parisians had a laugh on their side when they read the report of a case in which an American, named Somber, from Boston city, had suffered at the hands of three English exponents of the art. The American put up at a first-class hotel near the Gare Saint-Lazare, and there, over the dinner table, made the acquaintance of three young men, who told him they were university "undergrads" over for a holiday. Cards were exchanged, and in the morning they all went out to "see the sights," and afterwards sat down in a well-known cafe, where they soon became very confidential. They had visited a music hall during the evening, and had there admired the dexterity of a conjurer with a hat. One of the Englishmen said he could do a trick or two, and jokingly suggested that Somber should put all his money into the hat, he beginning with £600 in notes. The others followed suit, the American parting with £540, and the "conjurer" rose and walked rapidly out. A minute later another of the "undergrads" said, "He's a long time gone with the money," and went to the door, whence he returned, saying he thought the hat had been robbed. The three then went to go to the police station, but on the way there the remaining two Englishmen found pretexts for disappearing, and the American was left alone to mourn his lack of "cuteness," and to make up his mind to be more careful in future.—London Globe.

The Koreans' White Dress.

As the Koreans are obliged to wear in white for three years for the case of death and as once there died within ten years, by which mourning was imposed on the nation, the majority of people rather to dress continually in white in order to avoid the great trouble involved by repeated changes of clothing. The women make their garments, and every time they have been washed they are entirely taken to pieces and beaten for hours with wooden paddle in order to give the metallic gloss which is considered particularly beautiful.

Small ties of hand-embroidered handkerchief linen complete the French turnovers of that kind.

Yokes of all shapes are very popular, even in the shirtwaists.

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Peruna medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.
Yours very truly,
W. M. Lord.

It will be noticed that the ex-Governor says he has not had occasion to use Peruna for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold.

Using Peruna to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments.

This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do—keep Peruna in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house.

Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Chronic Catarrh."

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

FIRE AT WORLD'S FAIR

Destroys Missouri Building—Two Persons Overcome—Valuables Lost.

The Missouri state building was destroyed by fire, resulting from an explosion of the hot water heater in the basement.

The flames shot up through the rotunda, and the north wing of the cupelo were a mass of flames within ten minutes after the explosion. The principal loss is in the contents of the building. It contained thousands of dollars' worth of furnishings, the most valuable of which were portraits of all former Missouri governors.

The fire was spectacular. Sparks were carried over the United States government building, and as far as the liberal arts palace. Bucket brigades were hurried to the roofs of these buildings to prevent ignition.

Mr. T. Davis, president of the Missouri world's fair commission, was in the building when the explosion occurred.

"The fire seemed to rise in an instant," he said. "I seized a few things and ran through the building sounding the alarm. The buildings with all its furnishings cost in the neighborhood of $224,000. There was not one dollar of insurance. If we had endeavored to sell the building we could not probably have raised more than $50,000."

Mrs. Bell Small, one of the hostesses, rushed into her apartments in the building to secure some valuables. A fireman found her lying on the floor overcome with smoke.

J. P. Nixon, of Lebanon, Mo., an attache of the building was overcome by smoke while securing some property.

After the flames were under control and had been sufficiently extinguished to admit the firemen entering the building, the south wall fell and buried Lloyd Randolph, driver of a fire engine, and Frank O'Connor, another fireman. Several escaped by a small margin.

Battle With Mosquitos.

The French steamship Provincia from Sabine Pass, Texas, for Hamburg, has her captain disabled, her first mate so ill he was sent to a hospital and several of her crew suffering severely on account of an encounter with a huge swarm of mosquitos which settled upon the Provincia's deck while the ship was in the gulf.

Captain Courtade's right arm is useless, and Mate Vincentelle, in addition to hundreds of of mosquito bites, is suffering from a bronchial disorder.

The crew of the ship fought the insects for hours with smoke and improvised fans. Almost every man on board has a swollen face and lacerated arms.

Forest Fires Raging.

Forest fires which originated in the vicinity of South Park, ten miles south of Louisville, have spread to an alarming extent, and the entire population of the neighborhood, including women and children, has been pressed into service to fight the flames.

Stock Show.

The eighth annual exhibition of the Alabama Poultry and Pet Stock association, to be held at Birmingham on December 6, 7, 8 and 9, promises well.

Arrangements are already being made for the shipment of many chickens, pigeons, rabbits and other pets to Birmingham. The Commercial club has secured a rate of one and one-third cents per mile for persons coming to the exhibit, but so far no rate has been secured for fowls.

KNEW HE WAS A BIGAMIST.

Wife Makes Statement Saying That Her Husband Had Two Wives For Sixteen Years.

Mrs. Matilda Conklin, the first wife of Dr. Conklin, who died suddenly in Farmington, Ill., last election day, made a statement in which she declares for the past sixteen years the doctor has lived in an open state of bigamy.

She says that during this time both his families in Farmington and Peoria were aware of his relations with others. Mrs. Conklin says that she was married to Dr. Conklin forty years ago and that sixteen years ago her husband married a woman named Herron in Farmington. Since that time Dr. Conklin has contributed to the support of his family in Peoria and at numerous times seen his children by his first wife. Mrs. Conklin declares that she is his only legal wife and she will fight for the estate

FIGHTING AT MUKDEN.

Baltic Fleet to Go to Vladivostok Instead of Port Arthur.

It is reported that a battle between the two armies before Mukden is in full swing. The Russians, according to General Kuropatkin's report, are pressing the Japanese left, while a very significant movement of the Japanese is reported at Sintsintin, forty-five miles east of Mukden.

A special correspondent says the battle has begun, and that the thunder of the guns is unceasing.

In the absence of all reliable news the expectations regarding Port Arthur being captured have so far subsided that the possibility of the garrison making a last stand against time at the Golden Hill and Tiger's Tail is dismissed.

Russian officers say the Russian second Pacific squadron will not be handicapped should Port Arthur fall. The squadron will go to Vladivostok even in the event of Port Arthur's holding out, because there is better accommodation at Vladivostok. Small hopes are entertained for the relief of Port Arthur.

FIRE AT EUFAULA.

Destroys Harding Block—Loss Estimated at $110,000.

The entire Harding block, one of the chief sections of Eufaula, was totally destroyed by fire Saturday night. The flames originated in the Pecree Furniture company. With almost incredible rapidity they spread and in the course of a few moments the entire block was a seething mass of flames. The losses are estimated at about $110,000, half covered by insurance.

The destroyed buildings are: The Darling undertaking establishment, Crawford's bowling alleys, Fay's grocery, Fay livery stables, the armory of the Eufaula guards and the Pecree Furniture company.

MISSING PURSE

Causes Filingo f Two Suits in Limestone County.

At Athens J. A. Roads has brought charges against Morris Hull, his friend, for the alleged theft of his pocketbook containing some $200. Several days ago, while driving Hull, Roads lost his pocketbook and money. Roads says that he knew that Hull took the pocketbook from his trousers pocket, but believed he was playing a practical joke. When the book was demanded, however, Hull denied any knowledge of it. In counteraction of the charges of Roads, Hull has filed suit for damages against his accuser.

Run Over and Killed.

Jimmie Frank Gorum, son of James Gorum, living near Opelika, was accidentally run over by a wagon and killed. The boy ran out of the school yard as his father was driving past, Lon Jemison, a cousin, driving immediately behind.

The lad attempted to catch on to his father's wagon, but was waved off by Mr. Gorum. He paused in the road and the mules trampled him down, and the wagon following passed over his body, crushing out his life.

Statue of Frederick the Great.

Hailed by a military blare of twenty trumpets, the bronze statue of Frederick the Great, presented to the American people by Emperor William was unveiled Saturday afternoon by the Baroness Speck Von Sternburg, the wife of the German ambassador. The ceremony was marked by great miles of display. The statue was presented on behalf of the emperor by his personal envoy, the German ambassador, who made a brief address.

Big Building.

President Murray, of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, announces that his company will build a two million dollar office building in Baltimore.

"Women who work, whether in the house, store, office or factory, very rarely have the ability to stand the strain. The case of Miss Frankie Orser, of Boston, Mass., is interesting to all women, and adds further proof that woman's great friend in need is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered misery for several years. My back ached and I had bearing down pains, and frequent headaches. I would often wake from a restful sleep in such pain and misery that it would be hours before I could close my eyes again. I dreaded the long nights and weary days. I could do no work. I consulted different physicians hoping to get relief, but, finding that their medicines did not cure me, I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it was highly recomended to me. I am glad that I did so, for I soon found that it was the medicine for my case. Very soon I was rid of every ache and pain and restored to perfect health. I feel splendid, have a fine appetite, and have gained in weight a lot."—Miss FRANKIE ORSER, 13 Warrenton St., Boston, Mass.

Surely you cannot wish to remain weak, sick and discouraged, and exhausted with each day's work. Some derangement of the feminine organs is reponsible for this exhaustion, following any kind of work or effort. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you just as it has thousands of other women.

The case of Mrs. Lennox, which follows, proves this.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Last winter I broke down suddenly and had to seek the advice of a doctor. I felt sore all over, with a pounding in my head, and a dizziness which I had never experienced before. I had a miserable appetite, nothing tasted good, and gradually my health broke down completely. The doctor said I had female weakness, but, although I took his medicine faithfully, I found no relief.

"After two months I decided to try what a change would do for me, and as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was strongly recommended to me I decided to try it. Within three days I felt better, my appetite returned, and I could sleep. In another week I was able to sit up part of the day, and in ten days more I was well. My strength had returned, I gained fourteen pounds, and felt better and stronger than I had for years. I gratefully acknowledge its merits. Very sincerely yours, Mrs. BERT E. LENNOX, 120 East 4th St., Dixon, Ill."

Armour's Revenge.

One of Phil Armour's $25,000 men went into business on his own account on one occasion and built up a powerful opposition house. The man had remarkable ability, but his career shows that he had not Armour's conception of things nor his loftiness of character. And it shows, too, that despite his long and intimate association with his old employer the seceder had not thoroughly appreciated the quiet power of the originator. X, for we will call him so, rose to prosperous heights and then was seized with the desire to be thought a greater man than his old chief, against whom he began operations in the chosen way of corners and similar financial exercises known to the street. He said one day, "I used to work for Phil Armour, but before long Phil Armour will be working for me." He thought he had the old man squeezed, as the word goes, but Armour proceeded at 9 o'clock one morning to convince the complacent gentleman that he was sadly mistaken. By noon there was a rushing fall in prices, and the once jubilant merchant was a bankrupt. With the news he also received from Mr. Armour the offer of an instant and friendly loan of $500,000 in cash.

An Archbishop's Wit.

Archbishop Ryan once concluded a brilliant defense of the Irish cause when a listener shouted:

"But the Irish are guilty of treason!"

"Perhaps," replied the archbishop, "but please remember that what is treason elsewhere becomes reason in Ireland because of the absentee."

A Runaway Bicycle.

Terminated with an ugly cut on the leg of J. B. Orner, Brook Grove, Ill. It developed a stubborn ulcer, yielding to doctors and remedies for four years. Then Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured it. It's just as good for Burns, Scalds, Skin Eruptions and Piles. 25c. at Clanton Drug co., Upchurch Drug Co.

Misplaced Devotion.

She was tall, with wavy brown hair and rich, deep brown eyes, just like all brunettes in novels. He was undersized and impecunious, but impressionable and ardent. They lived at the same boarding house for a time. With her he was sentimental, tender, earnest, also inclined to be rash and extravagant with his small earnings in bringing gifts of candy and the like. It is whispered that in a moment of recklessness he bought her two ice cream sodas in succession. But this could never be verified. Circumstances over which she had no control caused her to leave the boarding house without bidding him goodby. Carelessly, too, she neglected to leave her address. He applied to the boarding house mistress in grave distress of soul.

"Do you know" he asked "where Miss Jones has gone?"

"Now, look here, Mr. B——," the kindly woman, "let me advise you not to worry too much about Miss Jones. She's engaged. Didn't you see that ring?"

"Engaged!" he gasped, backing toward the mantel and blindly grabbing at a bunch of cattails for support. "Engaged, did you say? And, great heavens, she let me buy her peanut brittle!"—Brooklyn Eagle.

Complicated.

Thingumbob—My wife has got into some sort of scrap with the neighbors, and I can't tell whether she's in the right or not. McJigger—That ought to be easily determined; there are two sides to a quarrel always— Thingumbob—Two sides? Huh, there are about a dozen sides to this quarrel.—Exchange.

A Heavy Load.

To lift that load off the stomach take Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat. Sour stomach, belching, gas on stomach and all disorders of the stomach that are curable, are instantly relieved and permanently cured by the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. S. P. Starr, a druggist, at 297 Main street, New Britain, Conn., says: "Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is giving such universal satisfaction and is so surely becoming the positive relief and subsequent cure for this distressing ailment, I feel that I am always sure to satisfy and gratify my customers by recommending it to them. I write this to show how well the remedy is spoken of here." Kodol Dyspepsia cure was discovered after years of scientific experiments and will positively cure all stomach troubles. "To be forced to get up early," says a physician, "grinds the soul, curdles the blood, swells the spleen, destroys all good intentions and disturbs all day the mental activities. Criminals are always recruited from the early rising class."—London Chronicle.

A Merger.

"Colonel never resigned, did he?"

"No; he just merged into the office, an' to this day they can't tell the difference 'twixt him an' the weather boardin'."—Atlanta Constitution.

Only Make a Bad Matter Worse.

Perhaps you have never thought of it but the fact must be apparent to everyone that constipation is caused by a lack of water in the system, and the use of drastic cathartics like the old fashioned pills only makes a bad matter worse. Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets are much more mild and gentle in their effect, and when the proper dose is taken their action is so natural that one can hardly realize it is the effect of a medicine. Try a 25 cent bottle of them. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Weak Hearts

Are due to indigestion. Ninety-nine of every one hundred people who have heart trouble can remember when it was simple indigestion. It is a scientific fact that all cases of heart disease, not organic, are not only traceable to, but are the direct result of indigestion. All food taken into the stomach which fails of perfect digestion ferments and swells the stomach, puffing it up against the heart. This interferes with the action of the heart, and in the course of time that delicate but vital organ becomes diseased.

Mr. D. Kaubie, of Nevada, O., says: I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

Kodol Digests What You Eat

Wine of Cardui Cured Her.

213 South Prior Street,
ATLANTA, GA., March 21, 1903.

I suffered for four months with extreme nervousness and lassitude. I had a sinking feeling in my stomach which no medicine seemed to relieve, and losing my appetite I became weak and lost my vitality. In three weeks I lost fourteen pounds of flesh and felt that I must find speedy relief to regain my health. Having heard Wine of Cardui praised by several of my friends, I sent for a bottle and was certainly very pleased with the results. Within three days my appetite returned and my stomach troubled me no more. I could digest my food without difficulty and the nervousness gradually diminished. Nature performed her functions without difficulty and I am once more a happy and well woman.

"The Half was Never Told."

There are people who believe the world is just entering the millenial reign of Christ, and that a wonderful age of progress, both material and spiritual, is about to be ushered in, preceded, however, by ten or fifteen years of the most intense strife and anarchy. They believe that the earth and the great bulk of humanity, both present and past, will, during the next thousand years be restored to the perfection which six thousand years ago was exampled in the Garden of Eden.

They reject the idea of eternal torment, claiming it to be unscriptural; asserting that only those who are guilty of sinning wilfully against the fullest light (information) are to be considered incorrigible; these, and these only, are to be destroyed in the second death.

They believe that God has for six thousand years been allowing man to gain a sad experience with sin, and that he will during the next thousand years (the millinnium) restrain sin, that man may see righteousne s in all of its beauty, and witness the blessed results of its reign. Having had six thousand years experience with sin, and one thousand years experience with righteousness, man will be well prepared to make a wise choice as to which he will serve, and then be tested by the loosing of Satan to deceive those who during this long period shall have failed to become well grounded in Godliness. Those being thus deceived will go down into the second death from which there will be no ressurrection. But space will not permit a rahearsal of all the peculiar views of these people. Come and hear a discourse along these lines on "God's Eternal Purpose." If you are seeking the truth, you will be amply repaid for all time and effort by attending. Undenominational. Seats free. No collection. Meeting place three miles east of Randolph, on Jemison and Randolph road December 10 and 11.

Thorsby.

Last excursion day added to our town over 30 newcomers

Rev. Lively held services in town the evening of the 18th.

The united Norweigian Ladies' Society met with Mrs. Doll on the afternoon of Nov. 25. Mr. Guy Gerald is P. M. pro tem.

The residence of Rev. Engh is occupied by Rev. Aggis.

Thanksgiving night the public school hall was the scene of a very interesting entertainment, conducted by Misses Shivers and Gerald, who, with their pupils, won fresh laurels. It was a pity there was not sufficient room for the large audience.

Mr. Geo. Freeman and Dr. Junkerman went to Hubbard last Sabbath.

A few of our young people enjoyed a convivial dance at Clanton, Thanksgiving night.

The Norweigian Ladies' Society meets with Mrs. Wambem on the afternoon of Dec. 1.

Rev. Moses is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Soberg.

Postmaster Riggins and two sons have removed to Arkansas. Mr. J. Bice is now postmaster at Thorsby

The entertainment by Prof. Reake was not sufficiently advertised to bring a full house, the night of Nov. 26.

The fruitgrowers held an important meeting Nov. 28.

Shoults.

We are glad to say that we all have had some rain this week.

Mr. Edgar Gentry and family have moved in our community.

Mr. A. D. Latham has returned from Montevallo where he visited his uncle's home.

We are sorry to say that Miss Fannie Hicks is on the sick list this week and hope she will recover. She is attending the Montevallo school.

Mrs. O. A. Latham has gone to Charlston, Miss., where she and her husband will make their home.

Rev. P. G. Maness will talk on the World's Fair next Friday evening at the Shoults school house.

Mr. Allen Lawrence and Mr. Howard Shoults are very well pleased with their school.

We are sorry to say that Mr. J. S. Bearden has moved to Selma. His many friends regret to loose him.

Thanksgiving day has passed, and it passed off well with us. Our teacher preached us a sermon on the lights, sunlight, mind light, and spiritual light. He also gave us a lecture on the Mammoth Cave of Kentucky, as he saw it.

Just such moving I never saw before, I don't think people will get done moving by Christmas.

Our farmers are hustling around preparing for another year, it is nice to see people so busy.

The depot at Lawley was broke open last Monday night by unknown parties, tickets, money drawer and $5.00 in money is missing.

Primary report. Splendid: Fay Hicks, Vergel Kelly, Inez Hicks, Roy Lawley, Sam Johnson, Lena Walker, Armour Woolley, Bessie Hall, Maurice Woolley, Wilder Shoults.

Excellent: A. C. Maness, Gertrude Woolley, Eddy Ellis, Lee Lawrence, Ola Kelly, Nora Wallace, Mattie Lawley, Allen Lawrence, Walker Shoults, Audie Ellis, Jeff Ellis, Willie Walker, Bert Walker, Rena Kelley, Fanny Johnson, Cleve Latham.

TWO PRIMARY GIRLS.

Pinedale.

Please allow us a small space in your paper to say that our school is progressing nicely with more than 50 pupils in attendance.

We have organized a dramatic club in our school and will give an entertainment in the near future.

Some of our boys went to the river last Thursday, bringing back some squirrels, and reporting a good time in general. We learn that one youngster from our neighborhood fell in with some ruffiians while there, and owing to their cowardly acts "fared but slim."

Prof. Gragg has made arrangements to have Mr. Lyon, the photograper, with us next Friday.

Success to our school and the Banner. W. W. JONES, JR.

Head About to Burst From Severe Bilious Attack.

"I had a severe bilious attack and felt like my head was about to burst when I got hold of a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Selma's Big Cotton Receipts.

Selma, Ala.—The steady marketing of the cotton crop of the current year is causing the receipts of this city to climb up towards the 100,000 bales mark rapidly. During the three months that have about passed of the present year the receipts here have been 75,651 bales less than was received in this city during the entire of last year.

Mr. R. C. Atkinson and several other gentlemen of Canton, Mass., passed through the city yesterday on their way to the home of Mr. J. F. Milhous, near Orrville. The gentlemen are interested in the company that several months ago purchased from Mr. Milhous his cement deposit on Bogue-chitto creek and it is thought that their visit is for the purpose of winding up a few minor details preparatory to the beginning of erecting a plant for the purpose of manufacturing cement.

Million Dollar Company.

Mobile, Ala.—A million-dollar loan has been floated by the National Mahogany company of Mobile, Cincinnati and New York, all the bonds of the company being accepted by a New York trust company, official notice to that effect having been received here. The company operates extensively at this port in the mahogany trade of the republic of Cuba and Central American ports and controls a large number of vessels.

The loan floated is for the purpose of extending the business of the company and the increasing of shipping facilities at this port, contract having already been let here for the construction of large wharf property on the river front at Three-Mile creek. The company also contemplates the building of shipping facilities at Cuban and Central American ports and other improvements for which the million-dollar loan is negotiated.

L. M. Moragues, vice-president of the company, left Saturday for New York to sign the bonds.

Express Company Lost.

Dr. Clarence J. Owens was allowed full damages of $1,500 in a decree handed down by Judge Coleman in the Anniston city court Saturday. The decree handed down by Judge Coleman decides the case of Dr. Owens against the Southern Express company, which has been pending in the court for several weeks. The suit was brought for $1,500, and the full amount was allowed. It was for the loss of a manuscript of a text book which Dr. Owens had spent three years in preparing and had frequented the best libraries of the state on many occasions to secure data for this work.

The book was to have been published by Editor Gonzales of the Columbia, S. C., State, and was interrupted by his tragic death at the hands of Lieut.-Gov. James H. Tillman.

Roosevelt's Plans to Reduce Tariff.

President Roosevelt is convinced that the time for tariff revision has come. He will not deal with the question in his regular annual message, but will probably embody his views on the subject in a special message. In the event that congress does not touch the tariff at its regular session, the president, if he finds his views represent those of the people, will call congress in extraordinary session next March for the avowed purpose of revising the tariff.

Prior to election the president did not think it wise to discuss tariff revision, for the reason that he believed his ideas would be misinterpreted and the business interests of the country would be alarmed. One of his reasons for wanting the tariff question taken in hand now is that he feels it should be well out of the way before another presidential election draws near.

Fire in Tenement House.

New York—Fire in a five-story flat at No. 5 East One Hundred and Fifteenth street has thrown thirteen [illegible] into a panic. Adolph Burkhardt, 65 years old, father of a vaudeville actress, was so severely burned that the physicians in Harlem hospital, where he was taken, have no hope of saving his life. Burkhardt lived with his daughter-in-law on the third floor and all were in bed when the fire started. When they were aroused the flames were leaping up the stairs cutting off escape by that means, and Burkhardt clad only in a night robe, ran into the hallway. He was found there by persons who discovered the flames and climbed up the fire escapes to alarm the sleeping inmates.

When the firemen reached the house every window was crowded with figures attired only in night robes, while a chorus of shrieks went up from the women and children, many of whom wanted to jump. Extension ladders were quickly raised and all were saved, the only person injured being Burkhardt.

THE JAP AND HIS HORSE.

EXCEL ALL OTHER SOLDIERS IN PATIENT CARE OF MOUNTS.

The Japanese Soldier's Love of His Horse—Cavalry of Nippon, Where up to 1867 Horses Were Unknown, Have Proved Very Effective in the Present War.

The Japanese cavalry was generally criticised at the outbreak of the war because of the poor quality of the horses Japan had been able to secure. Horses were unknown in the old Japan and are practically unused there now. But the Japanese cavalry has done pretty well, after all. The soldiers take care of their horses. Writes a field surgeon in the Independent:

"About a week ago I came upon a company of men who were engaged in transporting supplies for the army. The march was beastly, the weather was vile and the roadless country was the worst of all. The horses were tired. Depend upon it, the men were quite as tired as the horses. As soon as they came to a halt I saw a number of these fellows rush with their own canteens in the direction of a little stream of water.

"'Why don't you lead your horses to the stream?' I asked one of the horsemen. What he said was simply this: 'Why? Why, dear sir, these horses have made many miles over the country where they are two barbarous to have roads. They are tired, and we are running to [illegible] some water for them.' And these men, like mad, fetching water, fodder and what little green vegetation there could be found.

"And these men, after fetching food and drink for the horses, after comforting them with all kinds of caresses, these, tired men turned in and took to cooking beans in iron pots. Ask them why it is when they are so thoroughly tired, while their stomachs are empty and their legs are aching under them, they should take the trouble of cooking dry beans which are not meant for their mouths. In explaining this matter to a friend of mine, I heard one of these transport men say: 'You see, sir, green feed—I mean too much of it—is not always good for the horses. Sometimes green feed and a strange climate make a rather rock combination for the poor horse, and then you know these Chinese beans are not the softest things that you could bite, and Heaven knows these horses of ours have enough trouble without swallowing these beans green and uncooked.'

"No sooner are they done with their duties toward their horses than you find these good horsemen of ours rolling themselves up in a blanket and throwing themselves as if they were so many sacks of potatoes, down anywhere at the feet of their horses, and pull for all they are worth for the land of sleep. I came upon a soldier the other day. He was trudging along a dusty highway and crying like a child. I laid my hand upon his shoulder and asked him, 'What is the matter? Are you wounded?' Startled at first by the touch of my hand upon his shoulder, but in a second recognizing that I was nothing more than a surgeon, he shook his head, without saying a word. Then he went on crying as bitterly as ever. Naturally, I questioned him as to the reason for his grief. All the answer I received was a series of sobs, which were more heartrending than the ones that had shaken his body, and, always weeping, he struggled on.

"At last he tried to say something, but could hardly say one word. His sobs broke even one word into so many pieces that I was obliged to sharpen my wit and sense pretty keenly in order to catch the meaning of what he was trying to say. I fancied that he said something about his horse. 'What about the horse?' I asked. He was overwhelmed once more with his grief, with his tears and with his heartrending sobs. It was very pitiful, and the sight of him touched my heart to such an extent that I was voiceless for many minutes. As soon as I regained my breath, with a hard-heartedness that passes all understanding, I persisted in saying, 'What did you say was the matter with your horse?'

"'D-d-d-dead!' he at last managed to blurt out, and once again he was overwhelmed by the storm of tears and sobs that seemed to rend him into a thousand pieces. I do not know why I did not laugh outright. Perhaps his grief was too overwhelming, and there is that dignity that always belongs to the expression of sincere human emotion.

"I have seen many a soldier burying a hundred of his dead comrades after a fight. I have never seen such an overwhelming expression of grief as was shown by this lonely fellow, who had lost his horse and refused to be comforted."

IN A SUBMARINE BOAT.

Morgan Robertson Describes a Unique Experience—Safer Than on the Surface.

A descent in a submarine is not as harrowing an experience as might be imagined, writes Morgan Robertson in the World's Work. At first thought, two distinct forms of death present themselves to the mind—suffocation and drowning. But there is less danger of drowning than there is in a surface craft of the same size; for the submarine, strongly built to withstand a calculated pressure at 350 feet depth, cannot spring a leak from any accident less than a collision with a stronger craft—which can be avoided by diving deep enough. As for suffocation, that fear disappears when the mind dispassionately considers the forty cubic feet of air, compressed to a pressure of 2,000 pounds to the square inch, and carried in tanks conveniently distributed about the boat's interior.

Most of the perils incident to a seafaring life are avoided in the submarine. Yet there are dangers and inconveniences, of course, peculiar to this mode of navigation, that do not pertain to surface craft. Aside from the nervousness that one feels at first when inclosed in an air-tight cylinder with several feet of water over head, there are no bad sensations to afflict one. You are practically in an engine-room, with the smell of oil and gasoline in your nostrils and the buzzing of a motor in your ears. While the boat is on the surface, you can feel the motion of the waves and hear the wash of the water; but not when it is submerged. There is no sinking sensation, such as is felt in an elevator or on a toboggan. A depth dial will tell you how deep down you are, and an inclination dial will apprise you of the angle at which you are diving or rising; but aside from the vibration of the motor, you feel nothing, except, perhaps, in a heavy sea. Then, as the submarine, whether submerged or not, is tossed about, and lifted up and down by the passing waves, there is a feeling of lateral pressure, such as comes to you in a swing. This is rather remarkable, since you feel no "vertical" sensation.

There are rules to be observed. You must sit still in the place given to you; for, should you wander around, you would bring trouble to the mind and profanity to the speech of the man at the horizontal steering gear. In the Lake type of boat, two men can walk forward and walk aft without disturbing the trim more than a few degrees, but, in the short, more mobile Holland type, this is not practicable. You must not smoke; for there are gasoline fumes, and "battery gas" about you, and a lighted match at the right spot and moment might cause an explosion that would overcome, by internal pressure, the 350 pounds of external resistance in the stout steel walls of the hull, and you might not live long enough to be drowned. You cannot enjoy the scenery of the sea except through a limited periscope, but you may eat hot meals cooked on electric stoves, and read fine print under as good electric light as you have on shore. Should water come in through a leak or a carelessly opened sea-cock, and overcome the 300 pounds reserve buoyancy, you have a means of escape denied to you in the closed compartment of a surface boat.

SPIDER VENOMOUS AS RATTLER.

Smithsonian Expert Gives Bad Character to Common Insect.

That the one poisonous insect of North America is a little black spider, plenty of whose species are found in Washington, D. C., and whose bite is nearly as bad as that of a rattlesnake, is the assertion of C. F. Schwartz, one of the entomologists of the Smithsonian Institution.

"The noxious insect in question," continues Mr. Schwartz, "is so different in appearance from any other spider that there is no mistaking it. It has a globular shining body, devoid of hair, black in color, and usually with a red spot.

"The investigation into all reported fatal or harmful results from the bites of spiders which the Agricultural Department has been conducting for the last fourteen years has led to the determination of one instance in which the bite of this black spider, whose scientific designation is latrodectus mactans, has resulted in the death of the victim. This case was that of a child about two years of age, who was bitten upon the lip, and there is no doubt that the death of the child a few hours afterward was the result of the bite.

"This spider is chiefly a menace to persons handling old wood, as it is usually found under logs and in woodsheds. I would undertake to go out now and find a dozen specimens in an hour.

"Frequent reports have been received at the Agricultural Department of fullgrown persons having been killed by the bite, but it has been impossible to fully vertify these.

"A farmer in North Carolina sent an account not long ago of one of his laborers being killed by the bite of this spider. He described the symptoms exhibited by the victim, which were similar to instances recorded in Southern Europe, where this spider is known by the name of 'malmignatte.'—Philadelphia Record.

Black Chipmunks.

I have lived in a chipmunk region all my life, and have never seen a black one, yet black ones do occur. I have just received a photograph of one seen in the Catskills, and a correspondent at Bath, N. Y., writes me of one she has seen there for two seasons, says John Burroughs, in Outing. I have not yet heard of a black red squirrel, though black gray ones are occasionally seen. Black woodchucks and black foxes are probably the result of the same law of variation.

The maneuvers of the First Army Corps, British army, came to an abrupt close in the middle of the "campaign" the other day, because the funds of the commanding general had run out.

By Lord Kitchener's orders soldiers who fall victims to phthisis are now sent home from India.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "FREEDOM IN CHRIST."

The Rev. Edward Hunting Rudd Shows How Faith Unfolds Itself in Many Forms of Christian Experience—Repentance, Growth and Service.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—The Rev. Edward Hunting Rudd, pastor of the First Congregational Church, Dedham, Mass., preached Sunday morning in the Tompkins Avenue Congregational Church to a large audience. His subject was "Freedom in Christ," and the text was from John i. 13 and 14: "But as many as received Him to them gave He the right to become children of God, even to them that believe on His name: who were born not of blood nor of the will of the flesh nor of the will of man, but of God." Mr. Rudd said:

Can I do as I please? Or must I will to do as another pleases? Am I a free agent or are limitations placed upon me? Is liberty unrestrained freedom, or am I the more truly free when my actions and words are controlled by divine laws imposed willingly upon man by his own enlightened self?

To answer these questions intelligently, clearly and helpfully takes us at once into that field of Christian sociology and of the interrelation of man with man and of man with his God which so engages the attention of men everywhere to-day. The place and duty of the church is very clear. It is to show men in the spirit of candor, of sympathy, of open mindedness, of tolerance that the word of God gives us great fundamental teachings by a master thinker and reasoner, who was divine and who claims the right to influence men. The so-called great problems of labor and capital will find a permanent solution only by the arbitrament of the Man of Galilee. But it is your duty and mine to remind ourselves and others that according as we square ourselves with the requirements of God in Christ shall the problems of life be met and be grappled and worth while results be achieved.

We are here to-day to ask entrance into the light. We are here to know more truth, so that truth may make us free. We long to know how to be happily and contentedly free. To have our freedom so used that everywhere men shall recognize it as the article they wish and, possessing it with us, we shall together make men strong. Bearing one another's burdens we shall surely fulfil in part the law of Christ. The gospel of St. John, simple yet profound, shows us how to gain freedom in Christ. It reminds us what is so necessary to recall in this easy going, non thinking age, viz., that in no real and permanent sense are men children of God until Christ has made them such by vital union with Him. That we have no right to call ourselves children until God Himself transfers that right to us by an act of will and obedience on our part, so recognized by Christ, who has in the very process of our obedience done His part. To claim the friendship of another is not to possess it. To say of Christ and our relations to Him, as we say of some well-known people, "Oh, yes, I know Him well; He is a warm personal friend," when in reality little more than a formal introduction has been given, is in essence to know only about Him, and that in a formal sense, instead of being divinely commissioned by the living holy spirit of God to be a "child of God" and an heir with Christ to eternal life. Manifestly, then, this is an important matter to us all—even to the careless, thoughtless ones who make up a part of every audience. Have we any right to call ourselves "children of God?" And if we have, what has God, by His regenerating spirit, done in us?

It was our New England poet, Lowell, who said:

The thing we long for—that we are
For one transcendent moment.

But even the poet fails to be true to fact unless we have such a definite, genuine faith in God's power and willingness to give us Himself and to make us sons and daughters of the living God, that we receive Him and by that act avail of Him as our Saviour not only for one transcendent moment, but for all the moments for the rest of time, and in that act we are born of God, and by that act we are given the right to become—aye, to be begotten as children of God.

Almost immediately in this sublime, scholarly and heart searching gospel of John, that great disciple, speaking the words of Christ Himself, begins by dividing mankind into the same two divisions which are represented in this audience, and in every audience, viz., those who have received Him and those who, though they were His own by creation, received Him not, by a regenerating faith. And I want just now, if possible, to avoid abstruse, mose covered theological terms and phraseology, and to clothe these burning issues in simple, clear Bible language, but none the less to remind ourselves that many of us are longing to get out into the open sky, in some of the old fashioned, necessary doctrines of the word of God. We have gotten some of the choicest and most essential statements of divine truth beclouded, and we are not quite sure where we are. May God's spirit enlighten and allay doubt and uncertainty on these truths this day, and allign us all in the comforting strength of His own worship. And I frankly believe, my brother man, we cannot be satisfied in this sublime hour by turning to the poets, much as they will uplift and rest us. Even though you turn to Emerson, who has been so exalted and almost deified by some in New England Unitarianism and ask him about man, and in one place he will tell you: "A man is the whole encyclopedia of facts. The creation of a thousand forests is in one acorn, and Egypt, Greece, Rome, Gaul, Britain, America, lie folded already in the first man." Yes, potentiality lies enfolded, but naught else can bring it to surface and to living power save the touch of Christ the Redeemer of Manhood. Nor does the statement of Carlyle satisfy me, for you recall in his essay on "characteristics," he says: "Man stands in the centre of nature; his fraction of time encircled by eternity, his handbreadth of space encircled by infinitude." I say this cannot satisfy you, for you long to know how you can best live and expand, while you are in this "centre of nature," and where and how you are to spend eternity. And you turn to that beautifully human and real poet, Robert Burns, and remember with him "That man's a man for a' that," and here you feel that you may be arguing in a circle, and if Burns had only known more of the Man of Calvary, he would have been saved many of the sins which blighted his whole life. Or you may stand with that dear English poet, Gray, as from afar he beholds Eton College and exclaims, "Ah, tell them they are men," and those words and this poet's longing, more nearly voice your own soul's wish, and you add, "Ah, tell them of the Man, who became flesh and dwelt among us, that He might redeem men for Himself." It is to this Incarnate word that we must turn if we are to be enlightened and satisfied. And few passages in God's word speak out more hope and immediate blessing than the text: "As many as received Him, to them gave He the right to become children of God."

But some one asks, what is the process by which this is done? And I reply in the continuing words of this same verse: "Even to them that believe on His name." But what is it to believe on His name? What is faith? And we reply with Buxton: "Faith is the filial, trustful relation, which the whole man, intellect, heart and will, sustains toward the Lord Jesus Christ." Christ said to His disciples, "Come ye after Me, and I will make you [illegible] of men." They [illegible] intellect and will accepted [illegible] Christ to have the right and [illegible] to communicate to them [illegible] God. Disciples of Him who [illegible] there as there Redeemer. And [illegible] had given Him that simple confi[illegible] proved it openly by obedience [illegible] mand of public confession of [illegible] glad and willing to be known [illegible] lowers and co-workers, at that [illegible] here they given the right to be [illegible] dren of God. Then were they [illegible] of blood, nor of the will of the [illegible] of the will of man, but of God. [illegible] witnesses of their faith and [illegible] attested in various ways. To them [illegible] tion in Christ was equipment for [illegible] to others. They did not doubt [illegible] the personality of Christ, but [illegible] loved Him. Your child loves and [illegible] in you where he obeys you. Christ [illegible] great captain of righteousness [illegible] won to follow Him. "If ye love [illegible] things, happy are ye if ye do them." [illegible] means more than mere intellectual [illegible] to the doctrines and teachings of [illegible] for this may remain only [illegible] not pass into feeling and action.

You recall the searching words of [illegible] speaking to the intellectual [illegible] Pharisees in Matthew vii. 21: "Not [illegible] he honoreth Me with their lips, but [illegible] heart is far from Me. But in vain [illegible] worship Me, teaching for doctrines [illegible] commandments of men." And [illegible] when He was speaking to this same [illegible] terrace of the intellect and [illegible] the strict letter of the law He asked, [illegible] why call ye me Lord, Lord' and [illegible] the things which I say?" Again [illegible] then Christ was eager that men [illegible] give honest, hearty assent to the [illegible] of discipleship. He then presented [illegible] tual freedom, personal liberty. But [illegible] mere exercise of faith was not enough. [illegible] Christianity is something larger and [illegible] than even the genuine exercise of [illegible] in the person and work of Christ.

Faith unfolds itself in many forms [illegible] Christian experience and action, which are embraced in "[illegible] growth and service." When [illegible] wrote to that little band of men and [illegible] us who had experienced their faith in [illegible] personal Christ, he bade them "grow [illegible] in all things into Him, who is the [illegible] even Christ." But lest there may be [illegible] among us this morning who, in [illegible] this whole matter over, do not find [illegible] difficult to believe this Divine [illegible] God, but who do not quite appreciate [illegible] relation of a man to his sin, to his [illegible] tures, his deliberate acts of wrong [illegible] is it necessary to repent? And what [illegible] repentance? "Except ye repent," [illegible] John the Baptist. Manifestly it is necessary. And what is it? "It is a [illegible] change of the entire thinking, [illegible] willing man; and involves as its [illegible] enlightenment, contrition and [illegible] prayer for pardon and peace, [illegible] rest and endeavor after new [illegible] Look at these for a moment. [illegible] ment! This is the work of the [illegible] Ghost. It was not until the prodigal [illegible] came to himself that he started on [illegible] wondrous pathway to life. [illegible] Enlightenment as to his own [illegible] sin and consciousness that a father [illegible] awaited his return. My brother, [illegible] things are uncertain, pray for [illegible] ment and He who in the [illegible] proclaimed Himself to be the [illegible] men will reveal the path to [illegible] and confession. "I have sinned [illegible] heaven and in Thy sight" was a [illegible] ing confession and prayer. It [illegible] that faith in the Father's love [illegible] and ashamed for its past ingratitude [illegible] that heart cry for pardon we [illegible] receiving Christ, and because He [illegible] ing had the right to be a son of God, [illegible] repented and God by His divine [illegible] generated.

There are others here to-day who admit the truth of much that I say, in whom and about whom there are obstacles which you have not the [illegible] and the determined patience to [illegible] Some of these obstacles are the [illegible] sin in the soul, for, like St. Paul, you find a law that "when you do evil is present;" a false pride in own personality and achievement, there are not a few of us, with "I." Then that I am not as other men, tendencies; the environment of [illegible] interests and friendships, and the [illegible] cerity of many professing Christians, how many of us does this latter [illegible] Nevertheless, not a few are enabled rise above these obstacles and become [illegible] of God.

Again I ask the initial question of [illegible] message, can I do as I please? Or must I do as another pleases? And I [illegible] an honest study of the New Testament will show us that the only freedom [illegible] is comprehensive is the freedom [illegible] erty which God gives to our whole [illegible] when we have accepted or received [illegible] Son Jesus Christ to be our Redeemer [illegible] Master. May you this day, my [illegible] seeking friends, find the Christ of [illegible] sacrificial love, represented in this [illegible] blood, and receiving Him by [illegible] called children of God, and if [illegible] then heirs, heirs of God and joint [illegible] with Christ, if so be that we suffer [illegible] Him, that we may be also glorified together.

Every Man a Painter.

"Paint me a picture," said a [illegible] teacher to his favorite pupil. "Paint me a picture," said the student. "I cannot paint a picture worthy of such a name." "But do it for my sake—for my sake," was the response. The student went to his task, and after many months of labor returned to the master and said, "Come and see." When the curtain fell on the greatest picture of the age were [illegible] them, "The Last Supper," of Leonardo Da Vinci.

"Paint Me a picture," says the Divine Master to every Christian worker in the community. Do not say that you cannot paint for His aid is promised you. "Paint the picture of consecrated service," "Paint it for My sake." And in the coming time, as we walk the corridors of the [illegible] perchance we shall see on its [illegible] our pictures of consecrated efforts, and shall be to the honor of that name [illegible] is forever best, because it shall have been "for His sake."

Have Faith in God.

Phillips Brooks declared we must strive to see the loving hand of God in every trial and sorrow. He once expressed this thought in the following lines:

"What shall I do with this sorrow?" God has sent me?" "Take it up and bear it, and get a strength and blessing out of it." "Ah, if I only knew how! If there was in it, if I only knew how, to help me, then I could bear it like a man." "What shall I do with this heavy cross?" "Do it, and grow by it." "Ah, yes; if I could only see that it would make me grow!" In both these cases do you not see that what you are lacking is not more faith, although you may think so, but sight? You want to be able to see the blessing in the sorrow, the [illegible] in the hard and hateful task. Then you will say, not, "I see that it is good for me, for God must have sent it," but "I know that it is good for me, and so it must be good for me."

Little Aid on the Sunday.

A religious man can [illegible] help in regard to his religious [illegible] streets to-day because everybody [illegible] ing to and from their business [illegible] little is thought of their character. The streets are pure, but some of the people who walk upon them are not. [illegible] are impure.—Rev. Herbert [illegible] Beverly, Mass.

Always With God.

Never attempt one duty [illegible] you may attempt many [illegible] Chinese.

Notes From the Conference.

Talladega, Ala.—The North Alabama Methodists held a great mission anniversary service Saturday night. Bishop A. W. Wilson was the first speaker.

He dwelt largely on the motive in missionary work, declaring it was in obedience to the king. His disciples are impelled by love to Him.

He said that the rescue of the foreign embassy at Pekin during the Japanese-Chinese war was due to the few Christian missionaries there, and that it was one of the finest tests of Christianity since the days of the apostles.

Bishop Wilson has impressed every one as a man of great learning and a preacher of unusual eloquence.

He was followed by Dr. W. R. Lambuth, of Nashville, secretary of the mission board, who spoke most interestingly of Brazil as a mission field. Dr. Lambuth has recently returned from a visit to that country.

Speaking of its great material resources he said that one acre of ground would produce two and one-half bales of cotton, also it had the second largest gold mine and second largest diamond mine in the world. Nine-tenths of the coffee consumed in the United States comes from Brazil.

Sunday Bishop Wilson preached at the First Methodist church, and Dr. G. W. Young, of Kentucky, at night. All the other churches were supplied with preachers.

At the Methodist church, following Bishop Wilson's sermon, fifteen deacons, who had been elected, were ordained.

The coference selected Athens as the next place for meeting.

A memorial service was held Sunday afternoon in honor of the late Revs. Z. A. Parker, R. A. Timmons and P. K. Brindley, who have died since the last conference.

Gompers Again President.

San Francisco, Cal.—Samuel Gompers was unanimously re-elected Saturday president of the American Federation of Labor, except that Vice-President Burger of Milwaukee, in the convention voted in the negative and asked that his vote be so recorded. Gompers was given a great welcome when he retook the gavel. He promised the delegates to try to do more for the labor movement in the future than he had done in the past. Secretary Frank Morrison and Treasuer John B. Tennon were unanimously chosen to serve another term.

The following eight vice-presidents were re-elected:

James Duncan, John Mitchell, Jas. O'Connell, Max Morris, Thomas I. Kidd, D. A. Hays, Daniel Keefe, and William Spencer.

The American Federation of Labor voted to meet next year in Pittsburg. Pittsburg was selected by a large vote over St. Louis, Toronto, and Niagara Falls.

Million Dollar Bank for the South.

Memphis, Tenn.—The Commercial-Appeal says:

A new bank with a capital stock of $1,000,000, to be known as the Bankers' Savings Bank and Trust company, will be organized in this city within five months. It is to have the active backing of at least three hundred banks in Tennessee, Mississippi and Arkansas. Already more than $700,000 of the stock has been subscribed. The proposed bank is intended to do away with the necessity of calling upon New York and financial houses annually for securing money to finance the cotton movement in this region. The names of the promoters are withheld for the present.

Russian Jews Coming to America.

Copenhagen—Herr Gludestadt, a well known banker, and other prominent Jews, have formed an organization to assist the Russian Jews in emigrating to America through Danish ports. Funds are being collected to facilitate their passage and give the emigrants a start in life on their arrival at their destination. It is estimated that fully ten thousand of these emigrants left Denmark during the present year. The traffic is becoming so large at Scandinavian ports that the Hamburg-American Steamship company is arranging a new service to Copenhagen, Gothenburg, Christiana and the western coast of Norway, supplementary to its regular service to America.

Automobile for War Use.

Chefoo—General Kuropatkin is the possessor of a new twenty-horse power automobile with which he is able to rush at high speed from one part to another of the line, twenty-five miles long, according to M. Ravecor, who reached here today from Mukden. Ravecor spent three weeks with Kuropatkin, who wished to secure twenty automobiles specially constructed to carry ammunition.

Sending Celestials Home from Fair.

Two hundred and fifty-one Chinese arrived from the St. Louis fair today in charge of an immigration inspector and a strong guard. They were immediately transferred from Oakland mole to the steamer Coptic, which sails Saturday for transportation to China.

In most persons the left foot is larger than the right. The left shoe usually wears out first.

THE WEATHER BUREAU

Great Value of Its Work. Exposure of So-Called Long Range Forecasts.

There is no branch of the government service that has been of greater practical utility to the great industrial interests of the country than the Weather Bureau. There is hardly any branch of industry that is not more or less influenced by the weather, but to the agriculturist, the knowledge of coming weather changes is of vital importance.

The forecasts are now so widely disseminated through the press, and by mail, telephone, and telegraph that they are available to nearly all those to whom the information is of benefit.

As the demand for this valuable information has increased, through the increasing accuracy of the official forecasts, numerous so-called "long range" weather forecasters are endeavoring to take advantage of the public, with their claims that they can foretell the weather weeks, months, and even years in advance.

Public Warned.

It is only recently that the Weather Bureau officials and other reputable scientists have attempted to controvert the harmful effect exerted by the "long range" weather prophets, but it seems that the claims of the "weather fakirs" have reached that stage when it is considered proper that reputable scientists should warn the public of the fallacy of such unreasonable guessing as marks the work of the almanac and other systems of "long range" weather prophecy.

Long Range Forecasts of No Value.

Section Director Frank P. Chaffee, who has charge of the climate and crop work of the Weather Bureau in Alabama, with headquarters at Montgomery, furnishes the following in connection with the above:

"After over 30 years careful research by the specialists of the weather bureau, during which time the forecasts of the bureau for 36 to 48 hours have steadily improved, until they now average about 85 per cent verification, it must be admitted that, so far, no system of 'long range' forecasting has been developed that is of any practical use to the public.

Fraudulent Claims.

"Most of the so-called 'long range' forecasters know that their claims are fraudulent, and they are systematically fooling that portion of the public which pays any attention to their prophecies. It would indeed be a blessing if any system should be devised by which the weather of a coming season could be foretold. If this is ever accomplished, it will not be by such blind guessing methods now in use by 'long range' weather guessers, but by a comprehensive study of weather records of long periods.

Honest Deceivers.

"Some of the 'long range' weather prophets may be honest, and really think they have discovered physical laws controlling weather changes, which have not yet been disclosed to reputable scientists, who have made meteorology a lifetime study. The weather fakirs have all kinds of systems, but none of them can withstand honest investigation."

"The great majority of their prognostigations are based on the law of averages, or a regular recurrence in weather changes, while, in reality, it is seldom that average weather conditions occur; others claim a system of cycles, some cycles within cycles, and many of the weather quacks invoke the aid of celestial influences in their calculations. Their so-called forecasts are so vague and indefinite that they claim verification on almost any weather that occurs. They harp on their occasional hits and never refer to their universal misses.

Legitimate Forecasting.

"The Weather Bureau has a large number of well equipped stations distributed over the entire country. At all of these stations observations are taken exactly at the same instant, at 8 a. m. and 8 p. m., 75th M. time. By means of a cipher code and a thorough arrangement of telegraph circuits, the reports from all stations have been collected at a number of centers with in about 40 minutes after the instruments were read. These reports show the temperature, weight, direction, and velocity of the air, kind, amount, and movement of clouds, the relative amount of moisture in the air, etc.

"The reports are charted at the various centers and show an instantaneous survey of the weather conditions over the entire country. Now, by comparing the maps from day to day, and watching the inception, development, and movement of storm areas, it is possible to forecast the weather ahead of these storms, from 24 to 48 hours, with a considerable degree of accuracy, the accuracy depending greatly on the skill and experience of the forecaster. This method should certainly appeal to the public as much more reasonable than the attempt to forecast storms that have not yet begun to form.

"The public, which pays for the weather service, is entitled to the most accurate weather forecasts that can possibly be made. The Weather Bureau takes the public into its confidence and candidly admits that, at present, weather forecasts can not regularly be made for even a week in advance, with such a degree of accuracy as to make the information of any value. It does claim, however, that it is possible to make reasonably accurate forecasts of the weather from 24 to 48 hours in advance, as is shown in the Bureau's daily work, which is continually being placed before the public, and which has become of such acknowledged value to the various industries of the country.

"Now, if the Weather Bureau with its vast system of observations and reports, its over 30 years experience in weather forecasting, its highly trained experts and specialists, admits that it cannot make 'long range' forecasts with sufficient accuracy to justify their being given to the public, it would certainly seem that the public should appreciate the utter fallacy and worthlessness of the almanac and other [illegible] of so-called 'long range' weather forecasts, which many would-be prophets are endeavoring to foist on the public notice."

Chicago to Have a Great Subway.

The Chicago Subway company, with a capital stock of $50,000,000 and composed of men who represent 90 per cent of the railroads having Chicago terminals, was organized a few days ago and took over the $30,000,000 company here which has built fifteen miles of freight tunnels under the city's streets. The vast tonnage of the railroads represented by the financiers in the new corporation will be diverted into the company's tunnels, which are already under every street in the business district of Chicago.

Apparently in connection with the mammoth deal Sir Ernest Casset, the financial adviser of the king of England, was in Chicago recently with Jacob Schiff, head of the international banking house of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., who is heavily interested.

Men who will enter the directory Harriman, the principal factor of the Harriman, the principal favtor of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific and big factor in the Alton and Illinois Central railroads; James Stillman, president o fthe National City bank of New York, and a factor in the control over large numbers of great eastern and western systems, notably the Chicago and Northwestern and Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroads, and Jacob Schiff, of New York, a member of the Wall street firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., and a big factor in the Pennsylvania system.

The subway company has taken over it is officially announced the entire stock of the Illinois Telephone Construction company, 66 2-3 per cent of the stock of the $30,000,000 Illinois Tunnel company and stands ready to take over all remaining stock of the tunnel company at the terms on which it acquired the two-thirds.

The Illinois company will remain the home operating corporation, but owned by the Chicago Subway company of New Jersey.

The deal guarantees the immediate use of the tunnels by the railroad interests concerned, and promises speedy relief for Chicago from the present congestion in terminal railroads in the downtown district.

The new owners will extend and improve the system, and as far as possible the steam railroad freight of the Harriman-Stillman-Schiff and other trunk railroads will be transported through the underground system.

Hot Race for Georgias Governor.

Clark Howell, editor of the Atlanta Constitution, has announced his candidacy for governor of Georgia to succeed Governor Terrell two years hence.

This announcement followed by a few days that of J. H. Estill, editor of the Savannah News. Both of the gentlemen are prominent in the state, and the race will be a red hot one. Both have had considerable dealings in politics heretofore as well.

Steamship Lines Quit Rate War.

A confirmation of the rumors current during the past few days that the rate war between the continental steamship lines had been settled was had when the Cunard line issued a circular raising the rate from $17 to $33. Some of the other lines have already gone back to the rate which prevailed before the war.

Cotton Mill Status.

The cotton mill situation has not [illegible] at Fall River, Mass. Some of the mills report small gains and two secured a good working force. Union leaders say no union help is at work.

At a recent meeting in New York it was decided to preserve the grave of Joseph Rodman Drake by establishing a public park at Hunt's point.

COTTON CONVENTION.

Governors of the Cotton States Will Each Appoint One Hundred Delegates.

Shreveport—In order to systematically defend the cotton crop and the industries dependent upon it, a national cotton convention has been called to meet in Shreveport, December 12th, 13th, 14th, and 15th, 1904. The governors of the cotton states are each appointing one hundred delegates. The various cotton exchanges and associations throughout the country have been asked to send representatives, and no pains will be spared to make this national cotton convention a medium through which a definite campaign against the weevil will be organized, and the nation's greatest crop protected.

The weevil in this past season, spread by natural migration as much as 50 miles north and east into previously uninfested territory, and in a few years will, if unchecked, extend its invasions to the northern and eastern limits of the cotton belt. To delay an intelligent and united action against the foe, will mean financial embarrassment to the cotton farmers and to the industries they support.

World's Visible Supply of Cotton.

New Orleans—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton, made up from special cable and telegraphic advices, compares the figures of this week with last week, last year and the year before.

It shows an increase for the week just closed of 215,896, against an increase of 156,063 last year and an increase of 78,490 year before last.

The total visible is 3,874,07[illegible] against 3,658,182 last week, 3,342,[illegible] last year and 3,259,754 year before last.

Of this the total of American cotton is 3,226,078, against 3,129,182 last week, 2,847,996 last year and 2,780,754 year before last and of all other kinds including Egypt, Brazil, India, etc., 548,000, against 529,000 last week, 495,000 last year and 479,000 year before last.

The total world's visible supply of cotton, as above, shows an increase compared with last week of 215,896 an increase compared with last year of 531,083, and an increase compared with year before last of 614,326.

Of the world's visible supply of cotton, as above, there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and continental Europe 1,392,000, against 1,087,000 last year and 1,420,000 year before last; in Egypt 149,000, against 150,000 last year and 152,000 year before last; in India 187,000, against 130,000 last year and 138,000 year before last, and in the United States 1,646,000, against 1,376,000 last year and 1,550,000 year before last.

West Point Defeats Navy.

The Annapolis eleven failed to score in the gridiron battle held in this city Saturday, West Point winning by a score of 11 to 9.

An immense crowd witnessed the game. This was the last big game of the season.

From the standpoint of foreign exchange the cotton crop is much the most important crop raised in this country. Notwithstanding the large increase in the consumption of cotton in the United States—the cotton spindles in this country having increased from 19,000,000 to over 22,300,000 in the last three years—close to 65 per cent of the cotton crop raised in this country every year is exported. The average annual percentage of the domestic product exported from 1879 to 1883 was over 67 per cent. The average amount exported from 1890 to 1902 was 64.53 per cent. These figures show that while the consumption of cotton in the United States is rapidly increasing, the largest part of the crop is still exported.

The value of our cotton exports is very much greater than the wheat and corn exports. The agricultural department estimated that of the 670,000,000 bushel wheat crop of 1902 there was exported 202,900,000 bushels. Even at 90 cents a bushel price than was received the value of the wheat exports in 1902 was only $182,600,000. The wheat exports in 1903 were very much smaller. Should the cotton crop prove to be larger than 11,000,000 bales, or the price average more than 10 cents a pound, the value of the cotton exports will be correspondingly larger. It is perfectly safe to say that the value of the cotton exports this year will amount to something like 2 1-2 times as much as the value of the wheat exports.

The decline in the foreign exchange market which occurs regularly every fall, and the imports of gold from Europe which are almost always made at that season of the year, is largely due to the enormous amount of cotton bills which come into the market during September, October and November. During these three months last year something like $203,000,000 of cotton bills came into the market.

Tall Building Is Opposed.

The proposition to build a twelve-story office building on the space now occupied by the fountain in the public square at Montgomery has aroused the women of the city, and they made a warm protest at a meeting of the council committee Saturday. There is almost general opposition to putting the building on this spot.

THANKSGIVING is past and Christmas is just ahead and between the two we are all having a good time.

PRESIDENT Roosevelt purposes making a tour of the Southern States, and when he comes he will meet with a cordial welcome, whatever his private opinion on the race question may be.

SOME anxiety is being felt at the price of cotton going down below 9 cents, but the best posted men declare it is bound to go up again after the rush is over.

THE Supreme Court is now in session and will probably pass upon the validity of the act creating the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit, comprising the counties of Montgomery, Chilton, Elmore and Autauga, next week. It will be a relief to litigants and prisoners to know when the next term of circuit court is to be held, and the decision of the Supreme Court is awaited with great interest.

THE Northeastern Chancery division is at present well off for Chancellors, and in Etowah county two chancery courts have recently been held. Chancellor Richard B. Kelly declines to vacate, claiming that he is entitled to hold over until next November, and Chancellor W. W. Whitesides, who has just been elected, maintains that he is the duly qualified judge to preside over this chancery division. It is another legal knot for the Supreme Court to untie.

SATURDAY has become regular market day at Clanton, and scores of buggies and wagons fill the hitching places, while crowds of people throng the streets and stores, keeping merchants and clerks busy all through the day. It has been very noticeable this fall the large number of people who come to Clanton every day in the week, but Saturday is the day for a crowd, All our merchants express themselves well satisfied with the business they have been doing this season.

JUDGE of Probate Lewis H. Reynolds entered upon the duties of his office on Monday, and we hope the county will continue to prosper under his administration. It looks quite like old times to see Mr. Henry Honeycutt as clerk in the Probate office.

On the same day Mr. S. W. Collins took possession of the office of [illegible] Circuit Court, and began [illegible] career.

County Treasurer W. T. Callen will assume the responsibilities of his office to-day, Thursday, when Mr. Dake will turn over the books and accounts to him.

THE BANNER is proud of the number of advertisements our Clanton merchants place before our readers and call especial attention to them this week. It is a good showing for the town, speaking well for the enterprise of our merchants, who are making special efforts to meet the holiday trade. It is a good showing for THE BANNER, proving that those who have goods to sell are pleased to tell our 1300 subscribers of the fact and unite them to visit their store. When you are trading with them, please mention that you had seen their advertisement in The Banner—it will please the advertises, it will please The Banner, and it will please you to do a pleasing act.

Kopicville.

Though we were snowed under in our last election, have very sensibly decided to laugh and quit crying at our misfortune.

Several most patriotically observed Thanksgiving day as commanded by our beloved President. All partook of turkey and everything good to eat that they could get on that day. Our most excellent teacher, Miss Celestia Dunlap, gave a holiday and she, with Mrs. R. D. Martin's family, dined with Mr. Glover.

Mrs. Parnell had friends to assist in eating a fine turkey thanksgiving.

Mr. T. U. Crumpton celebrated the day by moving into his elegant house.

Mr. Bryant Crawford is fortunate in securing the services of Miss Stewart in the post office work.

We are pleased to see our gallant young friend, Henry Damsky, from Birmingham, on the street in perfect health.

Mrs. White, aunt of Mrs. Evelyn Bowline, is visiting her. She is often saddened to think she is the last living one of the large family of the Lenoirs.

Mr. Green of Randolph has moved his family here.

Mr. Burrell Poshee has just completed his beautiful storehouse and opened his brand new stock of goods that they say he is selling dirt cheap.

Dave Garner of Selma [illegible] his family here at Mr. Blalack's and they returned home with him.

Rev. Nelson kept his last appointment here with a most excellent temperance sermon. His health is improved, but still uses his crutches.

Mr. Gore has been to Brierfield on business.

Our old friend, Mrs. Waterworth has visited friends here.

We had a most delightful shower lately, succeeded by a cold snap with bright sunshine, giving our farmers time to finish scrapping. Farmers are in fine spirits and there is not much changing of homes, our houses are always occupied.

Fight Will Be Bitter.

Those who will persist in closing their ears against the continual recommendation of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, will have a long and bitter fight with their troubles, if not ended earlier by fatal termination. Read what T. R. Beall of Beall, Miss., has to say: "Last fall my wife had every symptom of consumption. She took Dr. King's New Discovery after everything else had failed. Improvement came at once and four bottles entirely cured her." Guaranteed by Clanton Drug co.; Upchurch Drug co. Price 50c, and $1.00. Trial bottles free.

The Great Christmas Number of the Montgomery Advertiser will be a marvel of Southern journalism. Bigger, better, brighter, greater, grander than ever. The whole a work of journalistic splendor exclusively the result of energy and brains of Alabamians for Alabamians. Just think of more than 75 pages for 5¢ and every page a feature by itself. On account of the great cost, this magnificent edition will be limited. To make sure of getting a copy order in advance from your news dealer, or send cents in stamps with your order to circulation department, The Advertiser, Montgomery.

Revolution Imminent.

A sure sign of approaching revolt and serious trouble in your system is nervousness, sleeplessness, or stomach upsets. Electric Bitters will quickly dismember the troublesome causes. It never fails to tone the stomach, regulate the Kidneys and Bowels, stimulate the Liver, and clarify the blood. Run down systems benefit particularly and all the usual attending aches vanish under its searching and thorough effectiveness. Electric Bitters is only 50c, and that is returned if it don't give perfect satisfaction. Guaranteed by Clanton Drug co., Upchurch Drug co.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER.

"Blest the ship for home, hope, shake out every sail,
Strike long the billows, merry blows the gale,
Captain, work the reckoning, how many knots a day?
"Round the world and home again, that's the sailor's way

Another Clanton boy who is serving Uncle Sam in the navy is Eugene Stewart, at present studying aboard the ship "Kentucky" at Brooklyn. Soon he will be on the rolling doop, and in the lone hours of the night, as he paces the deck in his watch, his thoughts will turn to the good mother and dear sisters at home. No matter where they roam, the heart of the wandering boy will ever soften at the memory of the good women he has left behind, who, while they miss the bright face of the boy, and patiently await his return, offer up their prayers for his safe home coming.

"O, hear us when we cry to Thee,
For those in peril on the sea;
From storm and tempest, fire and foe
Protect them wheresoe'er they go"

And so it is, whether at home or abroad, the good women influence all of our lives, and happy is the man who is blessed and comforted by their presence. The sunshine of life is in woman's smile, and dark and gloomy is existence without it. But the theme is an endless one and I must conclude with one more quotation. Here's to;

"The wind that blows, the ship that goes,
And the lass that loves a sailor."

Thought His Gas Bill Too Big.

Mr. Peck had an enormous gas bill after he had had a gas stove one month. Protest to the gas company brought no explanation, so he went to the cook Bridget for an explanation and opened the subject with "How do you like the gas stove, Bridget?" "Sure, it's foine. I haven't had to light the stove but once since it came."—Boston Christian Register.

Alchemist's Alloys.

The alchemists of the middle ages were incessantly occupied with the endeavors to transmute metals. Many alloys were known to them which are lost to us, and their recipes contain many useful hints worthy of the attention of modern scientists. There is a curious book in the Bibliotheque Nationale entitled "Liber Sacerdotum" ("The Book of the Priests"). It is supposed to have been written by the Jewish priests, but probably dates from the eighteenth century. Here is one of the curious recipes contained in this book: Mix a quantity of iron filings with a quarter of its weight of red orpiment. Press the mixture in a linen cloth, inclose in a smelting pot and leave it for a whole night in a heated furnace. Next add some oil and natron and just as much copper filings as there is iron. Melt all together and the result will be a fine material for hammers.

WEEDS

Consumption is a human weed flourishing best in weak lungs. Like other weeds it's easily destroyed while young; when old, sometimes impossible.

Strengthen the lungs as you would weak land and the weeds will disappear.

The best lung fertilizer is Scott's Emulsion. Salt pork is good too, but it is very hard to digest.

The time to treat consumption is when you begin trying to hide it from yourself. Others see it, you won't.

Don't wait until you can't deceive yourself any longer. Begin with the first thought to take Scott's Emulsion. If it isn't really consumption so much the better, you will soon forget it and be better for the treatment. If it is consumption you can't expect to be cured at once, but if you will begin in time and will be rigidly regular in your treatment you will win.

Scott's Emulsion, fresh air, rest all you can, eat all you can, that's the treatment and that's the best treatment.

We will send you a little of the Emulsion free.

Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy.

Billingsley.

As I could not possibly be with you all last week, will ask for a seat among you all again.

We had an excellent Thanksgiving sermon last Thursday a.m. at the M. E. church, by Rev. Abernathy, presiding elder, and had conference in the afternoon.

Among our out of town guests were Misses Gatie and Lula Sims, Essie, Bessie and Pearl Durbin, Orabelle Jones, Allie and Alma Edwards, and Messrs. J. Sims and G. Durbin of Fairview.

Mr. J. C. Moore of Montgomery visited relatives and friends here Thursday.

Mrs. J. R. Langly and little son, Cecil Earl, and Miss Myrtle Cooper are visiting in Montgomery this week.

Mrs. Carter is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Parnell, at Riderville this week.

Miss Gena Moody has returned to her new home at Matthews after visiting her sister Mrs. H. A. Askins, much to the regret of her many friends she gained during her short stay.

Mr. Peyton Patillo of Verbena visited our town on Sunday last.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Felton visited friends at Milton on last Saturday.

From what we can learn I think one of the Maplesville boys is about to get his business in a jam, you had better watch out "Bob."

Our school is progressing nicely, with about 25 new scholars the last week, we have a large school in our town.

Mrs. Letcher has returned to her home at Riddersville accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. W. A. Gandy.

Mrs. W. L. Lawrence is on the sick list this week. We have lots of sickness here but under the skillful management of our three physicians they soon recover.

I believe this is all the news except hog killing is all the go with us here. Best wishes for all.

A CITIZEN.

Beware of Counterfeits

"DeWitt's is the only genuine Witch Hazel Salve" writes J. L. Tucker, of Centre, Ala. "I have used it in my family for Piles, Cuts and Burns for years and can recommend it to be the best salve on the market. Every family should keep it, as it is an invaluable household remedy, and should always be kept on hand for immediate use." Mrs. Samuel Gage, of North Bush, N. Y., says: "I had a fever sore on my ankle for twelve years that the doctors could not cure. All Salves and blood remedies proved worthless. I could not walk for over two years. Finally I was persuaded to try DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, which has completely cured me. It is a wonderful relief." DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cures without leaving a scar. Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

Malay Superstitions.

You can scarcely ever get your money from a Malay on Friday because Malays believe that if they pay their creditors on a Friday they will be overtaken by penury. Malays never shave or cut their nails on Saturday or Tuesday because these are unlucky days, and if they do part with their hair or nails on these days they believe that they will be always in trouble or will die quickly.

Absentmindedness No Crime.

Judge—Not guilty! Why, the policeman says he actually caught you with your hand in this man's pocket.

"Mebbe so, your honor. But once I had a coat of the same pattern, an' I'm a little absentminded at times. Fact, your honor."—New York Times.

Deceived.

Ethel—You say Algy has been deceived by a young woman. Did she lead him on to think that she loved him? May—Oh, no! She let him believe she didn't care a rap for him, and then when he carelessly proposed she accepted.

The Dearest the Best.

One soon finds that inexpensive things or persons are bad, incompetent and, in the long run ruinous at any price.—John Oliver Hobbes in London Mail.

Luck evens itself up, but is sometimes very slow about it.—Atchison Globe.

No More Suffering.

If you are troubled with indigestion get a bottle of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure and see how quickly it will cure you. Geo. A. Thomson, of Spencer, Ia., says: "Have had Dyspepsia for twenty years. My case was almost hopeless. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure was recommended and I used a few bottles of it and it is the only thing that has relieved me. Would not be without it. Have doctored with local physicians and also at Chicago, and even went to Norway with hopes of getting some relief but Kodol Dyspepsia Cure is the only remedy that has done me any good, and I heartily recommend it. Every person suffering with indigestion should use it." Sold by Upchurch Drug co.

Notice of Final Settlement.

State of Alabama, Chilton County.
In the Probate Court of Chilton county, Alabama.

In the matter of the Estate of Olaf Olson, deceased. Charles Olson, Administrator.

Notice is hereby given that Charles Olson, Administrator of the Estate of Olaf Olson, deceased, has this day filed in said Court, his statement, accounts and vouchers for a final settlement of said Estate; that Monday, the 5th day of December, 1904, has been set as a day for auditing and stating said account for final settlement. Any and all parties at interest may appear on said date and contest said settlement, if they see fit.

Witness my hand this the 16th day of November 1904.

Notice of Application to Sell Lands.

The State of Alabama, Chilton County. Probate Court.

To Roberta A. Mullins, Aurora J. Campbell, Thomas A. Curry, Mary A. Curry and Roberta J. Curry, the said Mary A. Curry and Roberta J. Curry being infants under the age of fourteen years and being maintained by, and in charge of their father, Thomas A. Curry, all of whom the above mentioned parties reside in the County of Chilton and State of Alabama, and Joseph W. Johnson who resides in the city of Chattanooga, county of Hamilton and State of Tennessee.

You and each of you will take notice that Tipton Mullins, as Administrator of the estate of William G. Johnson, deceased, has filed his application in said Court for a sale of the lands described in said application, belonging to the estate of said decedent, for the purpose of paying debts upon the ground that the personal property of said estate is insufficient for the payment of the debts thereof, and the 5th day of December, 1904, has been appointed for the hearing of said application, and you will appear before said Court on said 5th day of December, 1904, to contest said application, if you think proper.

Let this notice be published in The Banner, a newspaper published in Chilton county, Alabama, for three successive weeks beginning on the 17th day of November, 1904, and copies of each issue of said paper containing this notice be sent by mail to said Joseph W. Johnson.

Witness my hand this 24th day of October, 1904.

Ashburnham, Ontario, Testifies to the Good Qualities of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy:

ASHBURNHAM, Ont., April 18, 1903.—I think it is only right that I should tell you what a wonderful effect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has produced. The day before Easter I was distressed with a cold and cough that I did not think to be able to take any duties the next day, as my voice was almost choked by the cough. The same day I received an order from you for a bottle of your Cough Remedy. I at once procured a sample bottle and took about three doses of the medicine. To my great relief the cough and cold had completely disappeared and I was able to preach three times on Easter Day. I know that this rapid and effective cure was due to your Cough Remedy. I make this testimonial without solicitation, being thankful to have found such a God-sent remedy. Respectfully yours,

Will Now Try to Starve Out the Russians.

Rome—Giornale D'Roma has a dispatch from Tokio reporting that the general attack on Port Arthur fortifications which began on the night of the 26th, have been partially successful. Forts Ehrlenagshan, Rastorhiung and Maickbujama have been destroyed, but the Japanese attacks on Sungshan and Vikwan and probably Kuekawan forts were repulsed.

The total Japanese losses reported are nearly seven thousand. The correspondent adds that possibly the attack will not be renewed, but the Japs tacks. Many of the Japs had their town until the Russians are forced to capitulate by lack of food.

A correspondent with the Russian forces in Manchuria sends the following interesting particulars of the use the Russians are making of electricity as a defensive weapon.

At Liao Yang says the writer, all the way round the Russian defense were stretched electric wires with high pressure currents. In some cases they were fixed among barbed wire entanglements in such a way that it was impossible to distinguish whether the wire was "alive" or not. The effect of these wires was terrible. As the Japanese, armed with wire cutters burst into the network, blue flickers sped along the wires, and dozens of the enemy tumbled over, dead or insensible. The ignorant Russian soldiers imagined that heaven had sent down lightning to blast the heathen," and taking it as an omen, stood steadfast in the face of terrific attacks. Many of the Japs had their flesh badly burned, and others without any trace of injury lay writhing and groaning.

A Boy Hero.

St. Petersburg—After General Stoessel, Nikolai Suyeff, aged 13, is the hero of Port Arthur. According to the Russian press, Suyeff has pierced the Japanese lines, carrying dispatches to Kuropatkin, no less than four times. Suyeff is a lad of good education, the son of an engineer, and grandson of an English woman named Graves. During his third return journey he was captured by the Japanese, who spared him a spys death owing to his youth. On the night following his capture he shot his guard, mounted upon a cavalry horse, and made a dash for freedom. At 3 oclock in the morning he rode up to the outworks at Palichwan with a Jap bullet through his shoulder.

Suyeffs method of escaping capture was to hide himself by day and crawl through the investing lines by night. His first exploit was to walk from Port Arthur to Taschichao, then in Russian hands, passing Japanese troops no less than eleven times. On another occasion he acted as spy, penetrating the Japanese lines and bringing back the breech-block of a gun as proof that he had done so. Kuropatkin has decorated the boy dispatch rider with the Order of St. George, and General Stoessel has specially reported his services to the czar.

Rome—A message from Tokio says bitter cold prevails throughout Manchuria. The cold is especially intense about Shakhe river, where the armies of Field Marshal Oyama and General Kuropatkin face each other. Five of General Kuropatkins sentinels have been frozen to death at their posts.

Russia to Sign Treaty.

[illegible]—Russia has accepted [illegible] of the United States to conclude an arbitration treaty on the lines of the American-French treaty.

An Election Probable.

Huntsville, after spending several months as superintendent of roads for Madison county, Maj. W. P. Gorman has come to the conclusion that the country must either have a bond issue to raise the sum of $100,000 or allow the pike system to go to ruin. Major Gorman stated that the amount appropriated each year for repairs is utterly inadequate, leaving aside the matter of constructing new roads that are demanded. He will urge the county commissioners to issue bonds to save the county's extensive system of pikes. The people of the county will probably be called upon to decide the matter in an election.

Mississippi's Cotton Crop.

Jackson, Miss.—The cotton crop in Mississippi, except in the delta section where a bale to the acre is the rule, instead of the exception, is practically picked and most of it is ginned and marketed. The fall has been the very finest for harvesting crops that was ever experienced in the South. The price has not been as high as the farmers hoped for, but they have been satisfactory.

Confidence Expressed.

"The Russian troops have the best of spirits and have unlimited confidence in their leaders. They expect Kuropatkin to attack during the winter. The Russian forces now number 300,000 men. The cavalrymen from the Don district are superior to their Siberian comrades. The former are intelligent, brave and active and have fine, powerful horses.

"There are only a few hundred wounded at Mukden and 20,000 wounded at Harbin.

"I came out on the Siberian railroad, which seemed to be doing its tremendous work smoothly. The warehouses along the railroad between Mukden and Harbin are full of supplies which are almost untouched as up to the present the army has subsisted chiefly on the country.

"The handling of the Russian artillery is improving while the Japanese artillery fire seems less effective. Originally the Russians did not conceal their artillery, which the Japanese quickly disabled. Now the Russians handle and conceal their guns with perfect science.

Faith in Port Arthur.

"The belief is general at Mukden that Port Arthur will hold out until relieved, no matter how long the much expected Russian second squadron may take in reaching the far East.

"General Kuropatkin is not talkative. His only reference to the war was:

"The war is progressing as I wish."

"He still lives in his railroad car and the light in his office is burning night and day. It is commonly stated that the general never sleeps. His officers are not surprised at being called to a conference at any hour of the night. The generals only relaxation is at dinner time, when the officers who are his guests number scores. Wine is plentiful, but Kuropatkin drinks mineral water. Every Russian officer seems to have an unlimited supply of money, the government being lavish in its expenditure.

"It is my opinion that Kuropatkin will never retreat from Mukden until defeated decisively, and I think that the next battle will be a Russian victory."

Mukden, Nov. 28.—On his first trip in the new automobile, Kuropatkin's only comment was: "I have the advantage of General Shafter."

The Chinese now regard Kuropatkin and his machine with superstitious awe, believing the latter to be an atrocious power of the specimen of the "foreign devil."

Mr. Kevoir said: "The two armies lie facing each other, each having three fortified lines. The soldiers of both armies live mostly in caves behind their trenches, which when covered with snow, have the appearance of a great host of polar bears waiting to spring at each other. The caves are warm even without fire.

No Rain Since July.

Louisville, Ky.—The record-breaking drouth in Kentucky is beginning to decrease the milk supply in Louisville. Several dairies have put their customers on half allowance and confectioners are unable to secure enough of the liquid in making certain kinds of candy. A number of distilleries have suspended operations until rain falls. In a number of small places the citizens are buying water and farmers are compelled in many instances to drive stock several miles to water.

For more than a month the Southern Railroad has been hauling water to its Shelbyville tanks and for the past three weeks it has been hauling ten carloads of water a day. Freight engines running between Lawrenceburg and Burgin are carrying double water tanks.

All the freight engines on the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad have been carrying two tanks for several weeks.

The Cincinnati Southern railroad reports that it has closed all its watering stations between Lexington and Somerset, a distance of eighty miles, and the Somerset reservoir is now running low. Other railroads report practically the same conditions.

There has been no rain since July 3. In many churches prayers were offered for rain. The weather bureau announces a possibility of showers within the next few days.

Good Coal Found in Mississippi.

Jackson, Miss.—Since the advent of the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad, coal is reported as having been found in several localities, especially in Leake, Kingston and neighboring counties. During the past few days. E. D. Terry, of Thomastowa, a village in the northern portion of Leake, has shown samples of coal taken from ten feet beneath the surface, that have been declared by the Alabama A. and M. college chemists to lack only 7 per cent. of being as fine coal as was ever mined in that state. This announcement has created considerable interest in that section of the state, and prospectors are scouring the country for deposits.

Paraguay Apologizes.

New York—Full satisfaction has been given the Argentine minister for recent firing upon the Argentine cruiser Plata, says a Herald dispatch from Ascuncion, Paraguay. In connection with the affair the president of Paraguay personally called upon the Argentine minister. It is said the fort fired upon the cruiser under the belief that she was a revolutionary vessel.

REORGANIZATION NOT NECESSARY

Democrats in Congress Say All Such Talk is Premature.

DON'T KNOW WHERE THEY ARE.

Former Leader Richardson Thinks Nothing Can Be Done at Present.

Washington, D. C.—It is hard to find among the democratic senators and members of the house who have arrived in Washington a single one in favor of the proposed "reorganization" of the democratic party. Practically every member scouts the idea and many declare it extremely ridiculous.

"Before we do anthing at all," said Representative Livingston, of Georgia, "we had better sit down, light some good long cigars and try to find out where we are at. I don't think we know exactly what has happened yet, except that we were snowed under unmercifully. It is entirely too early to undertake anything like reorganization."

Senators McCreary, of Kentucky, and Daniel, of Virginia, share the general opinion that democrats should go right ahead as if nothing had happened and that the events to transpire in the next four years will determine the issues in the next campaign and incidentally the fate of the democratic party. Old-line democrats point out the fact that the party has recuperated from defeats as severe as the recent landslide and say cheerfully that the pendulum may swing to the other extreme four years hence.

Representative James M. Richardson, of Tennessee, former floor leader of the democrats in the house, is of the opinion that all talk of reorganizing the democratic party is premature, and in fact, uncalled for. "What we want to do first," said Mr. Richardson, "is to ascertain why we were defeated. In order to do this we must wait until the popular vote in the presidential election is tabulated, and we can then analyze it. It is my present opinion that the defeat of the democratic party was due largely to democrats staying at home and not voting. Then, too, we lost some votes to Watson and Debs. It is too early yet to talk about future policies. The events of the next four years will largely determine the campaign issues.

"It now looks like the only hope the democrats have is that the republicans will fall of their own weight. Political history shows that this has happened and we democrats can only hope that it will happen again."

Poultry Exhibit.

Tuscumbia, Ala.—The catalogue of the sixth annual exhibit of the North Alabama Poultry and Pet Stock association was issued yesterday containing a list of the premiums offered by the association in the approaching show. The exhibition will begin on the day after Christmas and will continue until the last day of the year. The prospects are very favorable and the officers of the association believe that this will be the largest show of the kind ever held here. Poultry fanciers in all sections of Alabama and many neighboring states have expressed intention of entering some of their poultry and the class will no doubt be higher than in any previous exhibition here. F. J. Marshall, of Atlanta, has been engaged as judge.

Young Woman Admitted to Bar of Alabama.

Miss Octye Lee Womack, of Gadsden, has been admitted to the Bar. Miss Womack passed a very satisfactory examination.

Mexican matches are frequently two-headed.

Frank Duncan Executed.

Frank Duncan, the murderer of Officer Kirkley and desperado, was executed in the yard of the county jail at Birmingham Friday.

Duncan maintained he was innocent to the end. His last words were May God forgive me for what I have done."

He went to the scaffold calmly, came, with almost exaggerated nerve. There was no struggle, his neck was broken by the fall and the subsequent life consisted only of spasmodic heart beats.

This ends the story of one of the worst characters with which Alabama has ever had to deal.

Mantle of Snow Covers Armies.

Mukden.—The Japanese November 24th again made a preliminary bombardment of Poutiloff hill under the cover of which they attacked but were repulsed. There were encounters at other places along the front, but they were in the nature of small brushes and mostly took place at night. Yesterday there was a light fall of snow and the surrounding country now has all the appearance of winter.

SAW FAIR IN ONE DAY.

Visited Every Building

St. Louis, Mo.—Never have more perfect conditions prevailed since the opening of the World's Fair than those that marked Saturday, which was devoted to a tour through the exposition by President Roosevelt, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Alice Roosevelt and members of the president's party. It was strictly a day of pleasure and not the slightest incident arose to mar the perfect enjoyment of the occasion.

The heralded announcement that the chief executive would visit the exposition drew tremendous throngs and to guard him from possible danger that might menace him, secret service men, soldiers and police guards abounded, but they had very little to do in preserving order. The sentiment seemed to be unanimous in the minds of the thousands of spectators that President Roosevelt was the guest of each one and each did his best to preserve order. The consequence was that those in authority had only to designate their wishes and instantly the crowds parted, passage ways were cleared and hindrances quickly removed that every moment of the president's limited time might be occupied in seeing the exposition.

"This is marvelous," he said. "It is beyond description and exceeds my fondest expectations. I have had the best time I ever had in my life and I have seen more than I ever expected to see in one day's time."

From 10 o'clock in the forenoon until 6 in the evening the distinguished visitors followed an arranged schedule, hurried from one building to the next, from one part of the grounds to another and overlooking nothing of interest. From the start until the end of the tour Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Alice accompanied the president and fatigue was forgotten in the enjoyment of the day.

Sees Filipino Village.

The rest of the day was spent in the Filipino exposition reservation. Guards had cleared the area of visitors and the entire place was given over to inspection by the presidential party.

During the hour and a half spent in the Filipino section every portion was inspected. In the Igorrote village Chief Antonio who has been to Washington and met the president, presented him with an album containing forty photographs of Igorrotes. A class of the natives then sang "America" in the English tongue, having learned it since they came to the exposition.

At the Ienso Moro village the natives presented a beaten silver dish and a set of silver bottles to the president, who, in accepting, said:

"I thank you very much for this gift. My aim is to help you increase your happiness and prosperity, and I am very glad to meet you on this side of the water."

Atlanta and Birmingham Knit By Another Band of Steel.

The last rail that forms the connecting link of the Seaboard Air Line between Birmingham and Atlanta was laid Saturday. Roper tunnel was the scene of this interesting performance. The tunnel is situated about twenty-seven miles from Birmingham. There were no formal exercises at the laying of the last rail, but a great deal of interest attached to the ceremony, as it was significant of a closer union between Atlanta and Birmingham, the two most remarkable cities, unquestionably, of the South.

It is announced that a regular schedule for freight trains will be inaugurated on December 1, and that a few weeks later passenger service will be established. Mr. L. B. Parsons, division superintendent, and General Superintendent Hughes, of the Seaboard Air Line, are in Birmingham, and arrangements will be perfected for the handling of traffic upon this division.

Thousands Seeking the Land of Liberty.

New York—The largest number of steerage passengers with two exceptionsever brought to this port in one vessel, came in today on the steamer Main from Bremen. There were 2,551 names on the steerage list.

Must Remain Allies.

Paris—In the chamber of deputies today Foreign Minister Delcasse protested against the criticism of the Franco-Russian in the report of the committee on Foreign budget which contains a number of allusions unfavorable to Russia. Referring to this M. Delcasse said:

"Neither has the alliance been more necessarry and beneficial. Never has there arisen a better occasion for proclaiming France's unwavering fidelity to the alliance which has so powerfully safeguarded the mutual interests of the two countries."

This is significant of the firm attitude of the government against the socialist revolution in Russia.

Roosevelt Will Visit Alabama.

President Roosevelt will visit Alabama in March. Just after his inauguration he will make a Southern tour, and probably take in tht states of Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas.

IN THE FAR EAST

Great Attack on Port Arthur Progressing. Definite Results Expected Hourly.

TRENCHES 20 PACES APART.

In the Silence of the Night Voices of Opposing Armies Can Be Distinguished.

Tokio—The general attack on Port Arthur is progressing but the results are unknown. Generals Nakamura and Saito, leading specially trained bodies of swordsmen charged into the Russian lines and engaged the Russians in a hand-to-hand and bloody encounter. The result of the charges has not been learned.

Mukden—At Tmshinpu, of which the northern half is in Russian hands and the southern is held by Japanese, the trenches are twenty paces apart, and it is possible in the silence of the night to distinguish the voices of the Japanese.

Use Old Style Guns.

Fidaytown, six miles east of Shakhe—Since November 22, there have been light engagements day and night. On November 24 Japanese artillery began firing on Norgorod Hill, using old style cast iron shells with copper bands. Scratches on these shells, Russian artillerymen say, indicate that they were fired from worn out guns.

It is evident that the Japanese are exerting every effort to increase the number of their guns, and in view of their lack of quick firing artillery, they are bringing up guns of old construction. This is confirmed by statements made by Chinese that large numbers of worn out cannon are in Liao Yang. On November 24, an artillery duel took place. The Japanese bombarded Poutiloff (Lone Tree) Hill, the Russians replying but not vigorously.

Japs Use Pocket Stoves.

Field Headquarters, General Kuroki's Army—A light snow storm left two inches of snow on the ground. Along the tops of the hills where is located in many places the advanced lines of General Kuroki's army, the snow is deeper. The soldiers are living in earthen burrows, and shelters constructed of cornstalks and are able to keep warm through the freezing nights.

It is impossible to build camp fires in the trenches and bivouac within sight of the enemy. For warmth the soldiers depend on charcoal fires in "shibachis" pocket stoves. Some supplies of charcoal was brought from Japan, but most of it has been purchased in Manchuria. The army has employed many coolies cutting trees and making charcoal since early last summer, forseeing the present need of it.

Preparing for Great Struggle.

Mukden—The lapse of six weeks without fighting on any large scale, confirming the belief that the opposing armies have rested for the winter together with the unexpected demonstration of force which the Russians have been able to make since the depletion of their army as the result of the fighting on the Shakhe emphasizes conclusively the failure of the Japanese and their most plausible plans for earliest occupation of Manchuria.

This outcome taken in connection with the general situation appears to guarantee that with the opening of spring there will begin a contest far more terrible than any yet fought and points to the termination of the war in the next campaign. It is still possible that there will be a general attack during the winter, but the weather is now broken and uncertain and seemingly renders it impossible for the troops of either army to abandon their present shelters.

Gradual alterations have taken place in the different departments of the Russian army since the abolition of the viceroyalty as Alexieff's partners have returned to Europe with him.

The hostilities are characterized by individual efforts of a most daring and dangerous character. One outcome of the close relations between the Russians and Japanese along the Shakhe river is the occasional blowing up of houses by the opposing outposts and the snipping of their occupants.

The Chinese authorities have taken preliminary steps to bring grain into the north and to store it for the use of the starving farmers and villagers. This action was brought about by the destitution which is prevalent for some twenty miles behind the Russian army.

NO JURISDICTION.

Impeachment Proceedings Are Quashed Because It Was Shown Court Had No Power to Act.

Montgomery, Ala.—The action of the supreme court on Saturday [illegible] striking from the records of the court the impeachment proceedings brought by the attorney general against Sheriff A. D. Rodgers, of Madison county, brings to light another quirk on the part of the last legislature in not carrying into effect the provisions of the constitution which authorized the attorney general to institute impeachment proceedings against the sheriffs by filing his information with the supreme court. The attorneys for Sheriff Rodgers moved to quash the proceedings on three grounds. First, that the governor did not have the power to order the attorney general to institute the proceedings. Second, that the attorney general did not have the power to institute the proceedings, and third that the supreme court did not have jurisdiction. The attorneys asked that the information be stricken from the record and the court did so.

Jefferson Comes Up Monday.

The supreme court Saturday adjourned until Monday, when the Sixth division will be taken up. This division is composed of the following counties: Blount, Cullman, Fayette, Jefferson, Lamar, Pickens, Marion, Tuscaloosa. The next division to be taken up will be the third which is composed of the following counties: Autauga, Butler, Conecuh, Escambia, Lowndes and Montgomery.

Examination in Chilton.

State Examiner of Public Accounts J. T. Gorman has returned from Chilton county, where he went to examine the accounts of the officials of that county.

Appointments.

The following appointments were made by the governor Saturday: Notaries public—T. F. Capel of Easley, E. H. Glenn, Seale; Robert A. Morris, Birmingham; H. L. Oberlarch, Mobile; S. O. Smith, Cottonwood.

Attend Test.

Among the state house officials that attended the test of the Lowry cotton picker Saturday afternoon on Mr. McLemore's plantation were Governor Cunningham, J. K. Jackson, J. C. Adams, Gen. R. F. Ligon, Capt. W. M. Seldon, Walter Brassell, Dr. Shirley Bragg, G. F. Sedberry, Joel Miller.

WILL NOT CONTEST.

This Announcement is Made By B. W. Walker, Whom He Defeated. Question May Be Raised.

Mr. B. W. Walker, the republican candidate for congress from the Fifth district of Alabama, will not contest the seating of Mr. Thomas Heflin, the successful democratic candidate, as has been rumored.

Mr. J. O. Thompson, chairman of the state republican executive committee, in speaking of the report that Mr. Walker would enter a contest said this morning:

"Mr. Walker will not make a contest. The republicans of the Fifth district made a very active campaign and many republican votes were secured in places where no republican votes had previously been cast. The gains were substantial and the republicans are satisfied with the showing made. However, there is no doubt but Mr. Heflin secured a large majority of the people of the district. For there reasons no contest will be entered by Mr. Walker."

Question May Be Raised.

Continuing, Mr. Thompson said: "If there is any question raised as to the seating of Mr. Heflin, and I am sure the question will be raised, it will be through Mr. Walker, and if Mr. Heflin is denied a seat, it will not be that a republican may occupy it. On the other hand, if Mr. Heflin is seated, then there will be a vacancy in the Fifth district and another election will be in order."

"Will an effort be made to prevent Mr. Heflin from serving the term for which he was elected?" was asked.

"I am positive of it," was the reply.

The effort to prevent Mr. Heflin serving his term, as indicated by Mr. Thompson, grows out of the circumstances of Mr. Heflin in his congressional race.

Good from Orders.

Englishmen Will Visit the South.

New York.—It is probable that the Lancashire Cotton association will accept an invitation extended by the municipalities, cotton exchanges and chambers of commerce to visit the southern states of America, according to a Times dispatch from London.

Some objection is made to the invitation on the ground that the New England and Southern manufacturing associations are not concerned, but it has also been urged by many Lancashire manufacturers that the invitation is in the interest of American growers and in opposition to the British Cotton Growers' association. This suggestion, however, does not seem to have great support.

DOG COULD NEVER FORDIVE.

Always Attacked Trolley Men Because a Car Cut Off His Toes.

Because he could not forgive trolley employe after a car had cut off three of his toes, Bruno, a splendid St. Bernard dog, belonging to Mayor Charles A. Bookwalter, of Indianapolis, Ind., had to be chloroformed. His hostility to street car conductors and motormen was his only fault, but that phase of his character caused so many threats of damage suits that Mayor Bookwalter decided that he could not afford to keep him.

Several years ago while in the street in front of his master's house the dog was struck by a street car. His foot was caught under the wheel and he came out of the accident minus three toes. This was the beginning of his antipathy to street car men, and it grew upon him till no employe was safe if Bruno saw him off his car.

Mayor Bookwalter lives on North Illinois street. Near his residence is a place where the conductors and motormen change cars, and as many of them reach the point before their cars arrive, there are always several in the street. Up to a few months ago Bruno contented himself with attacking his supposed enemies when they passed the mayor's house off their cars. But recently he began to lie around the relieving station and before his presence was suspected he would have one of the men by the leg.

Complaints were made, and the mayor sent the dog to his farm, but Bruno wouldn't stay. No motormen nor conductods came that way, and he was lonesome. So he came back, and when sent away a second time, again returned. He was always found waiting around for an opportunity to get a street car man by the leg. So Bruno was sent on a journey from which he will never return.

"He was a great dog," said Mr. Bookwalter, "but he was made for an 80-acre field, and not for a town lot. I am satisfied that his only motive for attacking street car men was to get even for the loss of those toes. He felt the deformity keenly, and was never the same dog after he was injured. Any child could play with him, and I never knew him to attack a stranger, but the sight of a street car conductor or motorman seemed to awaken in him a spirit of revenge which was never manifested under any other circumstances.—Philadelphia Record.

One of the most remarkable places of worship in the world is the miners' chapel in Myndd Menigdd colliery, Swansea, Wales. It is close to the bottom of the shaft. The only light is that obtained from a solitary safety lamp, hung over the pulpit from the ceiling, and the oldest miner in the colliery is generally chosen to officiate.

The Danes have been building a vessel upon the lines of Noah's ark as described in Genesis. The model is thirty feet long, five feet wide and three feet in height, one-tenth of Noah's measurements. Mr. Arthur Evans, the Oxford archaeologist, who has made interesting discoveries in the so-called palace of Minos, in Crete, has found in a subterranean sanctuary certain very ancient small, earthenware statues, representing some goddess and two of her servants. The dress of the figure is said to be highly modern.

WHAT AN ENGLISHMAN SAW IN A SHRINE OF BUDDHA.

It Was On a Day of Festival—The Scene Was Calm and Peaceful, the Air Redolent of Incense—Sacrificing to Buddha.

The breeze was filling the bells hanging from the eaves of the great temple with fitful melody. High trees threw pleasant shadows across the court-yard, and beneath their spreading branches were groups of worshippers. It was a day of festival, the time of prayer petitioned by a woman whose son was dead, but, through this annual pilgrimage to the shrine of Buddha, was believed to live again. Priests in flowing robes of yellow silk, and carrying bowls of incense, administered to the devotees, while upon a table in the centre of the court acolytes piled up the gifts—plates of fresh flower, dishes of sweet fruits, and unboiled rice. Within the great shrine, dim and faintly lit, the pale fires of many candles were burning. Upon the floor were scattered in profusion shoes of gold and silver paper; red streamers draped the shrine. The scene was calm and peaceful.

Three priests, leaving their waiting groups, ascended the temple steps, their departure a signal to the bellringer to fill the spacious court with notes of solemn melancholy. As the bell tolled its gently warning each humble supplicant bestirred himself, turning to face the temple and to watch with no little reverence and dignity the temple priests. These were engaged upon their litanies, and as one chanted his fellows beat with their heavy drumsticks upon bronze gongs. Quickly the prayers were taken up, each group responding. Presently the priests knelt, and, bending forward, supported upon their hands, prostrated their heads before the images. Slowly they leaned forward until their foreheads swept the temple floor; as slowly they recovered, each attendant worshipper following their action. In a little they had risen to their feet, and, slowly passing from the temple to the tables in the court-yard, stopped before the offerings. Once again notes from the temple bell boomed forth, flooding all heaven with mysterious reverberation; again the priests swung aloft their incense fumes; again there were the crash of cymbals and the sound of chanted song, as the priests blessed the food, begging the Divine One to accept the gifts. There was, of course, no answering response; but as the prayer died away the figures of the acolytes appeared from the shadowy recesses of the temple, and moving forward to the centre table, took up the dishes, carrying them to the High Altar. Here they were placed at the very feet of Buddha as, amid a louder strain of music, the priests themselves approached. Each dish now in its turn was blessed—the flour, the fruit, the uncooked rice—each offering the symbol of innocence and purity, the three together making the sustenance of life. Very quietly the priests invoked the intervention of the Blessed One, singing again with gentle cadence the chants and litanies. Gradually their voices quickened until as the prayers fell from their lips the responses were thrown back to them with rapid diligence. The end of the service was approaching as, with a final burst of music, priests, acolytes, and worshippers claimed in loud voice the mediation of the Spirit.

To me, the mere spectator of a charming idyll, the scene ended with some abruptness, but while I hung about the precincts of the temple other ceremonies appeared to follow. As I waited the priests left the temple house, and taking the dishes from the shrine, began to divide the little gifts into equal shares. One was dedicated to the use of Buddha, one was given to the priests, a third was allotted to their generous patron, and the fourth was distributed among the worshippers. To that already set aside for sacrifice to Buddha the lady patron added her own share, carrying it up the temple steps herself and placing it with trembling hands and tottering carriage upon the shrine. To the others the priests brought stoves and water, and while some attended to the boiling of the rice, others whipped up the flour into cakes. The fruit was left untouched, and taken when the rice was boiled and the flour baked. Then of a sudden and with a pleasant transformation the previous sad and melancholy spectacle became turned to a happy gathering where a few good souls partook of food blessed by the Mighty Lord Himself. There was no merriment in the feast, but priests and worshippers alike joined it, nibbling delicately and chattering in subdued whispers. The change was natural and altogether symbolical; their beloved friend or relation being dead, they wished to share some of the joys which the good and gracious Buddha had vouchsafed to him. Thus they ate the sacrifices which had been blessed, voicing the wish of peaceful lives to each member of the little gathering and perpetual plenty to him who had so long since departed.

Presently the little feast broke up, but not the party. Each individual member had a personal sacrifice to make, and leaving his fellow-guests, one by one each made his way into the temple. Ensconced behind a pillar and quietly sitting in the shadow, I watched and waited the passing of each forlorn visitor. Tapers were burning in the temple, and yet others were added to the illumination. There were two lesser and one larger Divinity on the altarpiece, but obeisances were made before each and newly lighted tapers placed in the several sockets.—Westminster Gazette.

In the Other Pocket.

"I can't quite make your change," said the storekeeper, painfully recounting the pile of pennies in his hand. "It's a cent out of the way." "Oh, never mind," returned the munificent buyer. "But it's my cent," was the unmoving rejoinder.

Sometimes it does happen to make a difference if we know who owns the cent. The New York Press tells this story of a man who, early one morning recently, came to the assistant treasurer of a church.

"I attended service yesterday," said he, "and I made a mistake when you took up the collection. I had a penny and a five-dollar gold piece in my pocket. I think——"

Here he stopped to take breath, and the other man interrupted him with some impatience. He had heard just that complaint before. Somebody was always hunting a five-dollar gold piece.

"I think you are mistaken," said he. "We had no five-dollar gold pieces in Sunday's collection."

"That's just what I am trying to get at," said the old gentleman. "You out to have had one. I meant to put mine in the basket, but I made a mistake and dropped in the penny instead. Here is the gold piece."

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband should be a woman's constant study. Mrs. Brown and Mrs. Potts tell their stories for the benefit of all wives and mothers.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will make every mother well, strong, healthy and happy. I dragged through nine years of miserable existence, worn out with pain and wearing I then noticed a statement of a woman troubled as I was, and the wonderful results she had had from your Vegetable Compound, and decided to try what it would do for me, and used it for three months. At the end of that time I was a different woman, the neighbors remarked it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. It seemed like a new existence. I had been suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, but your medicine cured that and built up my entire system, till I was indeed like a new woman. Sincerely yours, MRS. CHAS. F. BROWN, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., Vice President Mothers' Club."

Suffering women should not fail to profit by Mrs. Brown's experiences; just as surely as she was cured of the troubles enumerated in her letter, just so surely will Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound cure other women who suffer from womb troubles, inflammation of the ovaries, kidney troubles, nervous excitability, and nervous prostration. Read the story of Mrs. Potts to all mothers:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—During the early part of my married life I was very delicate in health. I had two miscarriages, and both my husband and I felt very badly as we were anxious to have children. A neighbor who had been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advised me to try it, and I decided to do so. I soon felt that my appetite was increasing, the headaches gradually decreased and finally disappeared, and my general health improved. I felt as if new blood coursed through my veins, the sluggish tired feeling disappeared, and I became strong and well.

"Within a year after I became the mother of a strong healthy child, the joy of our home. You certainly have a splendid remedy, and I wish every mother knew of it.—Sincerely yours, MRS. ANNA POTTS, 510 Park Ave., Hot Springs, Ark."

How to Walk.

There is no virtue in a dawdling manner. The slow and languid dragging one foot after the other, which some people call walking, would tire an athlete; it utterly exhausts a weak person, and that is the reason why many delicate persons think they cannot walk. To derive any benefit from the exercise it is necessary to walk with a light, elastic step, which swings the weight of the body so easily from one leg to the other that its weight is not felt and which produces a healthy glow, showing that the sluggish blood is stirred to action in the most remote veins.—Family Doctor.

Lamar's Scheme.

The late Senator Lamar of Mississippi was habitually forgetful of everything and everybody except his friends. For years he endured untold afflictions because of constantly mislaying his eyeglasses and suspenders. While an associate justice of the supreme court he one day beamingly confided to a friend that all of those troubles were over and that his eyeglasses and suspenders never more would trouble him. "How did you manage it?" inquired his friend. "Oh, I had a pair of eyeglasses sewed to every one of my vests and a pair of suspenders to every pair of trousers."

He Was Willing.

"I don't want to speak to you again about your reckless expenditure of money," said the stern parent.

"All right, dad," replied the incorrigible youth. "Hereafter it will be up to you to hand out the coin and say nothing."—Kennebec (Me.) Journal.

Poisoning Trees.

A gardener discovered the fact that trees are often sent to an untimely death by poison, usually arsenic. The reason for this does not appear until one hears the man's explanation. Suppose a man has rented a house which has too much shade, the law will not allow him to have one or more of the trees cut down without the consent of the owner. As it often happens that tenants and landlords hold different views on the subject of shade, the trees remain as a bone of contention. It is then that the gardener is called to administer a dose of poison, for when a tree is dead the tenant may have it removed. Five cents' worth of arsenic is sufficient to kill a large tree. A hole is made in the trunk, arsenic dropped in, and nature does the rest. It never fails.—New York Herald.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK & POULTRY MEDICINE

This great stock medicine is a money saver for stock raisers. It is a medicine, not a cheap food or condition powder. Though put up in coarser form than Thedford's Black-Draught, renowned for the cure of the digestion troubles of persons, it has the same qualities of invigorating digestion, stirring up the torpid liver and loosening the constipated bowels for all stock and poultry. It is carefully prepared and its action is so healthful that stock grow and thrive with an occasional dose in their food. It cures hog cholera and makes hogs grow fat. It cures chicken cholera and roup and makes hens lay. It cures constipation, distemper and colds in horses, murrain in cattle, and makes a draught animal do more work for the food consumed. It gives animals and fowls of all kinds new life. Every farmer and raiser should certainly give it a trial.

It costs 25c. a can and saves ten times its price in profit.

Fernmore, Kan., March 25, 1904.
I have been using your Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine on my stock for some time. I have used all kinds of stock feed but I have found this yours is the best for my purpose.
